

A British Estimate of Gen. Grant.

The Edinburgh Scotsman, May 26th, has the following notice of Gen. Grant, who had just landed in Britain:

Although Britain has had no lack of Royal and other distinguished guests of late years, few visitors of greater eminence have trodden her shores for a long time past than the plain, untitled private gentleman who, with small display of ceremony or parade, landed at Liverpool on Monday. He has never worn a crown, but he has been the ruler of one of the greatest and most powerful nations on earth. Just now, ex-President Grant is probably a greater man on this than on his own side of the Atlantic. We do not mean to say that his countrymen are at all disposed to undervalue his public services; they are too deeply engrained on the page of American history to be lightly passed over, and they are too recent to have become in any sense traditional. But Republican human nature in the United States is very much like human nature under a monarchy—constitutional or otherwise. "The King is dead—long live the King." General Grant no longer occupies the White House; for the time, President Hayes is a vastly more important and interesting personage to ninety-nine Americans out of every hundred, even amongst those who are not office-seekers. Yet if it had been possible for President Hayes to visit this country along with his predecessor in office, he would not have aroused so much interest or have had so universal a popular welcome as will certainly be accorded to General Grant if there is any opportunity for it. Of poudrous official receptions he would no doubt have had the lion's share. That would have been his right, in his capacity as head of the American nation. But it can be said of General Grant, as of no other President since Washington, that his title to distinction does not rest wholly or even chiefly on the fact that he has been for eight years the head of the American nation.

After a clear and impartial statement of Gen. Grant's civil administration, the Scotsman continues:

But after all it is not the fact that he has twice been elected to fill the Presidential chair of the United States which gives our visitor his eminence. It is impossible to forget that he had achieved greatness before it was thrust upon him. If he was chosen as a King of men it was because he had given proof of his greatness. Without entering into any consideration of the merits of the quarrel between North and South, or instituting a comparison between the degrees of military capacity displayed by the different leaders who fought in that great and memorable American civil war, everyone must acknowledge that the subjugation of the Southern Confederacy was one of the greatest achievements in modern history, and that General Grant did more than any other man to accomplish it. The indomitable courage, the stern duty of purpose, the dogged perseverance which enabled him to triumph over obstacles that had felled so many other commanders, are qualities which always elicit in a peculiar degree the sympathy and the admiration of the British people, because to these very qualities are due most of their national triumphs, and their commercial and industrial pre-eminence among the peoples of the world. Even those whose sympathies were with the cause against which General Grant fought and conquered will be ready to give him a cordial greeting. Alike as one of the greatest living citizens of the United States, as one of the most distinguished Generals of his time, and as a Chief Magistrate who uniformly displayed a friendly feeling towards England during his term of office, General Grant deserves honor at our hands.

Atrocities of the Russian-Turkish War.

London, Aug. 15.—A Bucharest correspondent telegraphs: "I have written the following as I received it, and from the terrible accounts which I frequently bring over the Balkans, I fear it must be only too true. July 31st, the day the Russians evacuated of Eski Sagra, the Turks ordered all Christian men, women and children should be shot as they left their houses. Those who remained within were burnt alive. An order was given to burn down and destroy every particle of Christian property. Many leading Turkish merchants took part in the affair. Large numbers of Basilean Bulgarians were dispatched all over Thracian district. This district is one of the richest in that part of Turkey. It did contain a very large proportion of Christians; over 20 churches and 500 schools and colleges, all of which have been burnt. The destruction extended to the villages of Boghdan, Miralis, Rani and many others, in all about 60, containing from 150 to 200 families each. Sixty or 70 persons escaped alive, but fugitives at Gabrona and Selvi estimate that from 12,000 to 15,000 Christians have been massacred in Eski Sagra and Thracian districts alone.

New York, Aug. 15.—The Turkish legation complain of the Russians near Kara firing upon a flag of truce and wounding Osman Effendi. Twelve unarmed Mussulmans surrendered to the Russians and 7 of them were massacred by Bulgarians and 3 by Cossocks. At Batak, a village exclusively Mohammedan in the district of the Muz, 100 houses were burned and 100 men and 300 women perished; 1 survivor. At Cababodis 100 houses were burned and 200 men and 300 women perished; 2 persons escaped. At Kestambel 150 houses were burned, and 300 men and 600 women killed. At Chems, a mixed village, 60 of the Mussulman houses were destroyed and 120 men and 200 women perished; 1 survivor. At Tandja, a mixed village, 100 houses were destroyed, 250 men and 400 women perished; 3 survivors. Villages abandoned on the approach of the Russians were given to the flames, and nearly 5,000 houses were destroyed. The legation concludes from the information received that the Russians have adopted a uniform system to try to seize defenseless villages and after destroying them with cannon shot, to massacre the unarmed inhabitants and carry off the women for the purpose of outraging their persons when they are not killed at first. The Russians threaten Christian villages with the same fate if they do not surrender and if the inhabitants refuse to be reconciled.

Officers Reinstalled.

On Friday evening August 10th, John Earl, D. G. W. C. Tempier, installed the following officers of Rosa Lodge, No. 39, I. O. G. T., located in Polk county, about two miles from the Salem Ferry, Francis D. Prentiss, W. C. T.; Miss Lucia Hosford, W. V. T.; Mrs. A. Winslow, W. R. S.; Lewis Emmitt, W. F. S.; Daniel Finley, W. T.; Miss Lulu Vandervoort, W. M.; P. R. Wislow, W. C. and Mrs. Annie Hanville, W. I. G.

A New Process.

H. M. Dougherty showed us yesterday a sample of dried potatoes dried by a new process. The dryer upon which it was prepared is a new and simple one that can be used in every household. Invented and patented by Messrs. Cole & Kelly of Portland. Mr. D. will exhibit this new Oregon invention at the coming State Fair.

GENTLE WORK.

A prodigious amount of laziness, false pride and greed are concealed under this phrase. Many thousand hands are to-day idle, waiting for something to do. And in spite of commercial depression the country has work waiting, enough for a million of hands. The farmers are crying for help, the trades are deficient in first-class workmen; our kitchens are poorly supplied with domestic service; and yet the market-places of the unemployed is full. Why?

If a merchant advertises for a book-keeper, a hundred persons step forward at once. If an author seeks for an amanuensis, he must choose between as many eager applicants. Every government officer who controls the appointment of clerks has more names on his list than there are details in a month's work. The demand is for something that will not soil the hands, that will not start perspiration, that will secure a livelihood without involving much exertion.

Genuine hard work is regarded as only semi-respectable. Men do not seek work; they look for a "situation," in which they may avoid work. They do their best to maintain the appearance of enjoying elegant leisure. But if an absolute sinecure cannot be found, they endeavor to give their employments an air of dignity, of repose, of freedom from homely fatigues. In a word, they seek a "light" business.

This false standard of respectability indicated by the word "gentle," degrades manhood. Young men are ashamed of that which should be their glory. It is not he who does the least for the most money, who can wear the best clothes while at his daily avocation—whose business involves the least display of strenuous effort; it is not he that is the most to be respected. The salary without real labor is a disgrace. Partial idleness, however concealed under a show of business, is a misfortune, and if purposely indulged in, a shame not to be countenanced. Clean hands that will not engage in genuine labor, are already covered with a stain that water will not wash out.

The refinement that draws back from manual employment, and prefers mental dawning is a sham, and should not have social recognition. Better be a grubby blacksmith, doing thorough work, than a titled officer enjoying a large income as a return for nominal services. Better be a day laborer than a pensioned loafer. Better be earning a comfortable livelihood by the sweat of one's face upon a farm, or in the kitchen, than depending on the uncertainty of desk work in an overcrowded city. Better be a simple carpenter than a hair-splitting scribe or pharisee.

We wish this evil spirit of "gentle" laziness might be exercised, driven out of common conversation, expelled from popular thought, and cast down from its shameful throne of power. Its sway is anti-Christian, and its cry is the old one, "What have we to do with thee, thou Jesus of Nazareth?" There is not a gentler idler in the land who does not wish to be let alone. They ought to be stirred up.

At the Fair Grounds.

The Messrs. Platter & Co., from the Eastern States, arrived at the Fair Grounds on Saturday last, with the following named stallions, and have commenced preparing them for contests for the Society's premiums, at the State Fair. The thoroughbred stallion "Council Bluffs," by Vandal, dam, Lena Hardin. The thoroughbred stallion Ozark, by Pat Malone, dam imported Sunny South, (bred in England.) They have also with them the bay mare Lotty Moores, by imported Australian, dam, Edna, by Lexington, with filly foal by Ozark. The stallions are large, of fine form, and have distinguished themselves on the turf in the East, but as the owners contemplate permanent residence in Oregon, they prefer to give their horses a trial here, that all may know of their speed and powers of endurance. Other horses will arrive during this week.

Floored Him.

A drunken man entered J. C. Adkin's house yesterday afternoon and leveled a pistol at Mrs. A., who was in bed at the time. Mrs. A., and the children of course, commenced screaming, which Mr. Adkin, who was in the back yard hearing, came to their rescue. In the meantime the man started up street and after questioning his family Mr. A. went in pursuit. Overhauling his man Mr. A. asked for an explanation of his conduct. The man being a foreigner Mr. A. could not understand him and started for officer Minto to have him arrested, when the hunter caught hold of him. Mr. A. seized a cane from a by-stander and knocked the assailant down. Both parties were arrested and brought before Recorder Bowie this afternoon. Adkins was discharged and the other man fined for disorderly conduct.

The Glorious Home.

"A home in Heaven!—what a glorious thought!" As we think of it in connection with the earthly home, never permanent, how great the contrast! Around that home is thrown the eternal light of reality; within, forever, the "decease" of the infinite God—"There shall be no sin"; "Nothing that do-fleth shall enter therein"; "There shall be no death." No circle of friends or of families shall be broken. Home!—home of all homes!—a home indeed! No anxious thought for to-day, no fear for to-morrow. Then there is such a sacredness. I have seen pictures in words, but never one like this. The Treasure of treasures to the heart is there. We speak of the realms of the best, That country so bright and so fair, But what must it be to be there!

Oregon Made Twine.

Mr. Edward Akin brought down yesterday, twenty-four pounds of twine for the Farmers' warehouse and Kinney's mills, for sewing sacks, being the first twine manufactured by the new enterprise of H. M. Crane's at Albany. The twine brought is strong, free of knots, and pronounced by those who use the article of superior quality. A sample neatly labeled may be seen at Reed & Cox's Real Estate and Insurance Agents, in the Opera House building.

An Important Point Settled.

Judge Hols decided the mandamus suit of Burnett vs Secretary Chadwick in favor of Mr. Burnett. This decision is quite important since it makes it the duty of District Attorneys to appear on behalf of the State, when the commonwealth is a party.

Nature turns over a new leaf in the spring.

FROM HON. W. R. DUNBAR.

WALDO HILLS, Aug. 19. Have been rusticated in the harvest field since noon on the 18th inst. Came out here for a rest—neighbors wanted help so I mused in with a Header and Thresher crew. Have made a full hand so far both in the field and at the table.

Grain yield here in the Hills is good and the quality of the wheat is most excellent. As soon as the rush is over here I will be in the lecture field again. This week will wind up the harvesting in the Hills if the rain holds off. Yours in haste, W. R. DUNBAR.

A Handsome Rig.

Gen. J. W. Nesmith, of Polk county, received on Saturday by express, an elegant saddle and trappings from President R. B. Hayes, a gift that the General can well be proud of, and that a hundred years from now will be shown by his posterity as a mark of the esteem and friendship that existed between the President of the United States and our present distinguished fellow citizen and pioneer. President Hayes seems to be reversing the order of present-making from the late administration, by giving mementoes instead of receiving them.

An Elegant Diploma.

Hon. Geo. P. Holman, Secretary of the Pioneer Oil Company of this city, on Saturday, received the medal and diploma awarded by the Centennial Commission for the best exhibit of oils at the International Exhibition at Philadelphia. The medal is similar to the one received by Mr. T. L. Davidson for the best exhibit of wool. The diploma is a beautiful specimen of the art of engraving and was executed by the Bank Note Company of New York. Mr. Holman should have it framed and exhibited with samples of oil paintings at the coming State Fair.

A New Industry.

Mr. O. Dickinson has a small piece of ground on which hemp is growing this year. It is the first, so far as he is informed, that has been tried in Oregon. The stalks are now nearly ten feet high, and if Mr. Dickinson's experiment of growing hemp in Oregon prove a success a new industry may spring into existence in our State.

Fine Specimens.

Mr. Frank Cooper returned yesterday from Southern Oregon bringing with him the finest set of mineral specimens ever brought to this city. Among the samples brought are gold, silver copper and tin ore. Persons interested in the mining of precious and valuable metals in Oregon, should examine them.

Arm Dislocated.

On Saturday last the 18th inst. Oscar Remple, aged nine years, son of James Remple, Esq. of South Salem had his left arm dislocated at the elbow by being thrown from a horse he was exercising. A physician was sent for and the joint replaced. The youngster was comfortable this morning, and in a week will be as good as new.

To the Afflicted—Ladies in particular.

Why need you suffer with Paralysis when you can be cured?—Why will you suffer with Rheumatism when you can be cured? And why have so many aches and pains when it is within your reason to be cured?

I am now established in Salem, prepared to treat all Chronic Diseases, such as Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Consumption, Kidney disease, and in fact all diseases that human flesh is heir to. Special attention paid to Female Weakness and nervous prostration which is so common to Ladies. Children's diseases not excepted. In connection with my practice, I have one of the celebrated Medicated Vapor Lightning Cream Baths, which aids vastly in removing all chronic diseases. It opens the pores of the skin, and throws off the slimy, morbid matter, which is one of the great causes of so much suffering. When we once think that two thirds of all we take into our system pass off through the pores of the skin, we need not stop long to wonder why we are sick, when we pay so little attention to the most important excretory of our bodies. During the past nine months I have had this bath in operation, and many can testify to its efficacy. I treat patients by the week, or by single treatment.

Ladies will do well to give me a call. Residence, southeast corner of Center and Summer Streets, Salem. MEX. D. W. CRAIG, M. D.

A. L. STINSON, Book and Job Printer, and Bookbinder, Kelman's Block, Old Senate Chamber, Salem.

Estray Notice.

At Wm. Taylor's, 7 miles east of Salem, in the Waldo Hills, is a COW and CALF. The cow is a speckled or roan Durham, five or six years old. The calf is the same color as the cow, and is a heifer. The cow is not marked or branded, except a "V" on her hip. Also, one red STEER, two years of age; half crop and a bit in the right ear, and a bit in the left ear. The cow came to my place about ten days ago, and is supposed to be from Salem. The steer came to my farm about a year ago. The owner or owners will please come and take them away, and pay for this notice. W. TAYLOR.

END TO THE SENATORIAL INVESTIGATION.

It is known to all men that are aspiring for the United States Senate, that no vacant place exists, and therefore I, S. Friedman, AUCTIONEER and COMMISSION MERCHANT, do say and warn all persons from purchasing until all my stock of clothing, Dry Goods and Boots and Shoes are all exhausted; and I furthermore, openly and above board, say that I have examined carefully into the "Investigation," and therefore I exonerate L. P. Grover and demand that he retain his seat in the United States Senate; but before departing it is expected he will buy his uniform of S. Friedman. Take warning by this and avoid litigation by trading with S. Friedman, and you won't be called upon to explain how you got your clothing.

Do you know Stiles? Yes; have known him a long time, and I never saw him here in overcoat. Now, Mr. Stiles, you can buy a good BEAVER OVERCOAT of S. Friedman for $18, worth $25, and you can get lead PENCILS for 5 cents. Now, as I am in need of money, I want all those who get stilled by the Hon. Mr. Stiles' bad character to pay to S. Friedman what they are indebted to him, or somebody will say "YOU ARE A DEAD BEAT."

Now, one more caution: I want you to all know that I am no politician, and don't want an office, and I don't care a little odds so me which one gets to the table first, but whenever your commerce with me I want you to confine yourself to the TRUTH only, or you may expect from a Russian—we are now eating Turkey.

The best caution: Take this advice: Buy what goods you can find at S. Friedman's because he spends his money here; because he sells cheap; and because he gives good bargains.

You can buy a good pair of beaver pants for $5, a beaver coat for $10; a good cashmere suit for $15. It is your interest to trade where you get the best bargains. Therefore, trade with S. Friedman. You will find his next door above the Post Office, at Salem. Why is it Friedman can sell cheaper than others? First, he is outside the incorporation and has no city tax to pay. Next, his rent is low. Then he buys on credit, never pays for his goods, and sells for CASH. Remember the place—next door to the Post Office. S. FRIEDMAN. Done at Salem, July 22, A. D., 1877.
