TO-DAY'S TELEGRAMS.

LANDRETH, THE MURDERER, HUNG AT DALLAS.

Another Brotherhood Engineer Arrested—The Mount Hood Party Retired Safely—The President, Mrs. Cleveland and General Sherman Going to Visit the Coast—Record Broken—The Markets.

LANDRETH HUNG.

He Breaks Completely Down on the Scaffold and Had to be Supported While The Noose Was Adjusted.

DALLAS, Or., July 7.—Wm. Landreth, who brutally murdered his stepdaughter at Independence last January, was executed at Dallas at 12:30 yesterday. Landreth has been confined in jail at Salem for safe-keeping since the commission of the crime. He has lived in great apprehension of the mob law, but during the last few days has rested easy. At 7:30 yesterday morning he was placed in a carriage and taken to Dallas, arriving there before 10 o'clock. Once there his fortitude gave way. He spent the last few hours in weeping and talking to visitors about his crime. When led forth from jail to the scaffold, he had to be almost carried. He was seated on a chair on the trap while the death warrant was being read. He refused to say anything. He was then raised to his feet and the cap drawn over his face, and the noose adjusted. The doomed man swayed to and fro as if he would have fallen but was caught. The trap was sprung, and his neck was broken instantly. The body was taken down after twenty minutes. The crowd was admitted to view his features and he was then taken out and buried in the cemetery south of town.

THE MOUNT HOOD PARTY.

Experience a Disagreeable Trip, But They Get Back Safely.

PORTLAND, July 7.—The Mount Hood party returned in good condition yesterday afternoon and report that they have experienced an exceedingly disagreeable trip. Torrents of rain deluged them until the morning of the Fourth. The summit was reached on the afternoon of the Fourth. The red light was not started until 10:17 P. M., several hours after their arrival. The wind was blowing very hard, and the failure to get the matches to burn was the cause of the delay. The party saw the light which was set off on Portland Heights and the fireworks at Corvallis, and the calcium light signals reflected from the tower of Kamm's block in Portland.

COMING TO THE COAST.

President and Mrs. Cleveland and Allen G. Thurman to Visit the Coast.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—Chairman English, of the Democratic State committee, has just returned from Washington. He reports that President Cleveland promised that Mrs. Cleveland and himself would visit California next year, and that Allen G. Thurman will visit the coast this fall.

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS.

Grant County's Citizens Present a Petition to Congress—An Amendment Lost.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Congressman Hermann to-day presented a petition from citizens of Grant county, asking Congress for an increase of duties on imports of foreign wool. An amendment to the Mills bill, proposing to keep up the duty on lead, was lost by a vote of 62 to 62, being a tie.

ANOTHER ARREST.

Evidence of a Damaging Character Being Discovered.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Another of the Brotherhood engineers has been placed under arrest. Much evidence of a damaging character has been elicited, and it looks as if the Brotherhood are implicated in a dynamite plot to destroy the C. B. & Q. Company's property. The arrests caused considerable excitement.

THE MARKETS.

About the Same in Chicago—Unchanged in San Francisco and Portland—Foreign Markets Firmer.

PORTLAND, July 7.—The Chicago markets closed yesterday at 81 1/2, 81 3/4 and 71 1/2. At San Francisco and Portland the prices for wheat are unchanged. The cables report the foreign market somewhat firmer.

BROKE THE RECORD.

A Horse Makes a Three-Eighth Mile Dash in 34 3-4 Seconds.

HELENA, July 6.—Daniel B., a six-year-old horse, yesterday broke the record for the three-eighth mile dash, making the distance in 34 3/4 seconds. This is the best time on record.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Brought Forth a Mouse—A Queer Kind of a Ticket—Democrats at Washington Much Pleased—Public Land Bill Passed—New Style of Bandana—Not that Kind of a Woman.

WASHINGTON, JUNE 29, 1888. Verily the Republican mountain hath brought forth a mouse. The party which elected Lincoln, the rail-splitter; Grant, the tanner, and Garfield, the tow-path boy, and which has so loudly claimed to be the people's party, the friend of the "mudsills," etc., has taken a new departure this time; they have selected a member of the blue-blooded silk-stocking aristocracy to head their ticket, whose only distinction is that he is the grandson of his grandfather, and have hitched on to the tail a New York banker, whose only distinction is the possession of many barrels of ready cash, which he is expected to distribute around liberally during the campaign.

Harrison and Morton is a queer kind of a ticket to ask a workman to vote for, but of course the Republican managers expect the support of thousands of the wage-workers of the country. The question is will they get them? Time will tell. If the Chinese had votes they would doubtless be solid for Harrison.

The Democrats in Congress are much pleased with the Republican ticket, as the following opinions show: Senator McPherson—"It is a very weak ticket. In the first place Harrison has no element of popularity in the country; second, his Chinese record will lose the Pacific slope; and I do not see how he can hope to carry any doubtful State." Senator Butler—"The nomination is the weakest the Republicans could possibly have made. Harrison possesses no personal popularity, and has no claims to statesmanship. I served with him for a long period on the committee on Territories, know him well, and am certain that he possesses no elements of leadership." Senator Harris—"Harrison is as good a man as the Democrats could have desired. If we cannot beat him, we cannot beat anybody." Senator Faulkner—"Harrison is a weak man. I cannot see how a man defeated three or four times in his own State can hope to be elected." Representative Biggs—"Harrison will not stand a ghost of a show. California will go Democratic, and Cleveland and Thurman will be elected." Representative McAdoo—"That ticket cannot carry New Jersey. Cleveland and Thurman are now certain to be elected." Representative Burn—"The Republicans are blundered. I presume they don't expect, seriously, to elect that ticket." Representative Frank Lawler—"I don't see how any laboring man can vote that ticket." But enough of this. The above is sufficient and is the general reflection of the opinion of every Democrat in Congress.

The House has passed the public lands bill, with an amendment retaining title in the government to coal mines found on the public lands, but allowing entrymen to mine such coal deposits until Congress acts further in the matter.

A new style of bandana has made its appearance among Democrats here. It has portraits of Cleveland and Thurman in the center, with an eagle and the American shield in each corner.

Mr. Cleveland was on Tuesday officially notified of his nomination by the committee appointed by the chairman of the St. Louis convention. He responded in a few well-timed remarks, and stated that he would communicate further with the party at large shortly by issuing his letter of acceptance. The committee went to Columbus Wednesday evening to notify Mr. Thurman.

An amusing incident occurred at the White House Tuesday. Mr. Leroy Springs, a member of the notification committee from South Carolina, during a conversation with Mrs. Cleveland, remarked that South Carolina would give the President 40,000 majority, but that if the woman suffrage people would nominate her, she would receive the unanimous vote of the State. "But," said Mrs. Cleveland, quickly and laughingly, "I'm not that kind of a woman."

The fight for revenue reform is again raging in the House. There will be no rest until a final vote is taken upon the Mills bill. When that will be, is at present extremely doubtful.

General Sheridan has gone to his summer cottage on the Massachusetts coast.

Wide Awake Undertakers.

The Montana undertaker is nothing if not humorous, as witness the following advertisement which appears in one of the principal papers of the Territory.

Oliver & Co. have received their stock of caskets and are now ready to attend all funerals to which they are called. The stock comprises caskets and coffins of all sizes and descriptions from a beautiful tiny white casket for infants, up. It must be remembered that Oliver & Co. are not beginners, their work will be well and skilfully done. Their charges too will be reasonable and the monopoly and high prices which have long existed will now be broken. The hearsees are the handsomest in town. The bodies of departed loved ones need no longer be carted to the last resting place in an old spring wagon, repulsive to the mind and objectionable to the eye, but with that advancement in the art which the world is making, the new firm will keep abreast. Here again the old style of preserving bodies, that of using ice, which is unpleasant and obnoxious, need no longer be tolerated, and it is only those who are behind the times who still cling to that custom. The new firm use the most advanced embalming process, which gives a life-like appearance to the corpse, and is cleanly. It will also save the body from decomposition much longer than the old way. Ice was useful, but it is now a thing of the past.

We hope that all the people of this town will have set little use for an undertaker, but when the hand of death falls upon a relative or friend do not forget that we are ready to bury them properly and at a fair price.

Who wouldn't be willing to die even in Montana to enjoy such advantages and to foster genuine enterprise.

The St. Louis Globe Democrat declared that the Louisiana Lottery would pay money at Chicago to defeat Gresham. Well, Gresham was defeated, and what did it cost?

PORTLAND LETTER.

Eastern Oregonians in Portland—A New Opera House—Fire Losses for the Past Six Months—Tippecanoe Men—Excursions—Police Court—Other Newsworthy Items.

PORTLAND, ORE., July 6, 1888. J. B. Huntington, J. W. Blaisdel and J. L. Sewell of Baker City, S. Williamson of La Grande, and Fred Page-Tustin of Pendleton, are in the city.

Lovers of the legitimate drama in Portland—and there are many of them—are happy. We are going to have a bran spanking new opera house, and the Lord knows we need it. Portland, the great metropolis of the roaring, rowdy West, boastful of being the richest city of its size in the United States, claiming a population of 60,000, is going to build an opera house. Now, talk about moss backs. Why, it isn't much over twenty years ago since the people here commenced kicking about their wretched theater, and here we are going to have a new one already, and we are going to show up the man that said Portland was behind the times, and let us paralyze him.

Articles of incorporation for this new concern—the Grand Opera House Company—were filed yesterday. The incorporators are Fred K. Arnold, A. D. Charlton, I. W. Baird, J. C. Moreland, D. B. Olyphant, Ellis G. Huggins, and B. P. Cardwell. The capital stock is $150,000—1,500 shares, $100 each. I. W. Baird, a famous minstrel man, who wears a diamond on his shirt front as big as a business, is the man who rustled up the money and is the leading spirit of the project. The plan is to erect a brick building on the southeast corner of Third and Yamhill streets 100x160 feet, three stories high, of handsome architectural design.

Howe and Hudson also have in contemplation an opera house, and they say it will be built this season, in all probability. The fire insurance agencies of the city report losses by fire during the six months ending June 30, $17,953; insurance on same $48,025.

A morning paper here, in answer to a report for the names of men now living in Oregon who voted for William Henry Harrison in 1840, has received a list of 52 names. So far Eastern Oregon has not been represented in the list. If this item should find its way into the hands of any old "Tippecanoe" men who would like to be enrolled, they will please address "E. O.," Abington Building, Portland, Oregon.

A regular old-fashioned organ grinder and monkey are now doing the city. The monkey is dressed in a blue costume suit, wears a plug hat and stands erect. While the man, who is a great, stout, sleepy looking beggar, grinds out his terrible music, the monkey walks about gathering up nickles, for every one of which he dots his hat and makes a gracious bow. It is said the beggar, whose name is Laverio, owns several houses in San Francisco.

At 12:30 last night fire broke out in a house occupied by W. E. Driskell, on the corner of Ninth and Washington, doing $200 damage before extinguished by the fire company. Driskell fell from a ladder while battling the flames and was seriously hurt.

Lewis & Dryden have made arrangements for conducting regular excursions to Summit House, Eliot Glacier and Mount Hood every Tuesday and Friday. They will be operated on the Raymond & Whitcomb plan, which provides for all expenses, railroad and stage fare, board, lodging, etc. Single round-trip tickets will be sold at $20.

The police court to-day presented an unusually lively appearance. There were twenty-seven cases on the docket and the house was full of spectators. The charges entered against the names that graced the transcript were as follows: Drunks, 2; lewd conduct (females), 6; disorderly conduct, 4; abusive language, 2; assault with dangerous weapon, 2; violation, curfew ordinance, 1.

Mr. Dickenson, the old man who kept "Pap's Last Year" peanut stand on First and Alder for a number of years, was examined in the police court to-day for taking a shot at one Figalido, proprietor of a feed stable on Front street. The old gentleman, who has every appearance of being honest, and inoffensive, stated that Figalido had been tantalizing him till he could stand it no longer. He wanted to fight Figalido, he said, but Figalido kept out of his reach and abused him at a distance. Finally, in a moment of uncontrollable anger, he drew a pistol and fired toward his antagonist, not intending to hit him. "Why Judge," said Pap, "if you think I couldn't kill a man twelve feet distant, you don't know me." In passing on the matter the Judge said it seemed to be an aggravated case, and that if he had the authority he would punish the prosecuting witness and discharge the defendant, knowing Pap to be a peaceable and law-abiding citizen, who attended strictly to his own business. The law, however, compelled him to place the old man under bonds to appear before the grand jury, which he did in the sum of one hundred dollars.

Brought Down the House.

From the New York World. The statement of a Milwaukee railroad freight agent that 31,250 extra barrels of beer were consumed in Chicago during the sitting of the late Republican Convention went upon the record of House proceedings in Washington yesterday.

Gen. Spaulding had it read as an argument in support of the Democratic interpretation of the free-whiskey tariff plank of the Republican platform and, in theater parlance, brought down the house.

Jay Gould is in favor of the wool tariff of 1867. He is a flockmaster and gets a large clip from his lambs in Wall street.
