THE REMEDY MUST COME.

Only three days ago, the last birthday of our nation was celebrated. It will soon be forgotten, and the occasion for its celebration is already absent probably from the minds of those who participated. Indeed, on the day itself how many asked themselves what all this noise, all this activity, these processions, bands, firecrackers, orations, parades, etc., were for. Some perhaps even thought this display was next to foolishness. The fact is that as we grow older as a nation we lose sight of the spirit, the intrinsic nobility, enshrined in the cornerstone of our liberty—lose appreciation of the mighty sentiment of the Declaration of Independence, the solidity of its powerful reasoning—and the observance of the Fourth of July becomes a mere form, with the soul of its origination absent.

Working as the people do for daily bread, in a practical, every-day struggle with the world—seeing on every hand that the selfishness, the greed of the few works the ruin of the many—it is but natural to think that the boasted glory of our liberty, the patriotic embodiment of our birth in the Declaration of Independence, is but emptiness, is a snare, a delusion. This feeling is a prevalent one. Those who have been wronged in their contact with the world and its vampires, and their name is legion, cannot understand the soul of a Fourth of July celebration. They merely see the superficial outwardness of its observance, and cannot understand why so much ado should be made about nothing. They cannot see what this boasted liberty, this mighty Declaration of Independence, has done for them. They fail to observe the justice of our fundamental institutions when they allow the rights of the many to be trampled upon, and the few to profit thereby. Such being the case, the thrill of patriotism is absent in their breasts, and the glory of a Fourth of July celebration is a mockery. Let them know that liberty, the declaration, our constitution, are glorious, glorious blessings; but it is their perversion, their misinterpretation, the insecurity of law, that causes the injustice of life. Let them know that the power of gold can command intellect, can command strength, can command law and its interpretation, and that the noblest, the soundest, the surest institution capable of manufacture by the human mind, is not secure from its attacks. Even liberty, that sweet privilege secured by the grand patriotism of our forefathers, is not safe, and already under the vigorous assaults of mammon is losing its significance to the masses. There is a power greater than kings, more grinding, more terrible, than the tyranny of an emperor. It is the power of gold, and already do all of us feel its silken, subtle chains. Mind is stronger, but gold can command mind. Give it its full scope, with unscrupulous intellect to wield it, and liberty will indeed become an empty name, and our constitution a mockery. And it seems that this unity is slowly and all too surely being accomplished. But there is a limit to its engagements. If there is no other remedy, it will be found in the millennium of a revolution.

Hans is something from Cleveland's inglorious address which sounds like good common sense:

"The laws should be rigidly enforced which prohibit the immigration of a servile class to compete with American labor, with no intention of acquiring citizenship, and bringing with them and retaining habits and customs repugnant to our civilization."

Ten thousand Greenbackers in Indiana won't vote for Harrison, because he said in a speech a year or so ago that all Greenbackers were idiots, and the number of asylums ought to be increased to accommodate them.

HARRISON and Morton are relatives by marriage.

EVERYBODY HELP.

The paper mill and woolen mill bonus is steadily climbing. The amount is increased to-day by Dr. G. W. King's efforts $345. This makes $1,045 in subscriptions that Dr. King has personally solicited. Won't some other wide-awake citizen go out and argue with his friends? The $10,000 can be raised easily, and the EAST OREGONIAN means to keep hammering at it until it is a reality. A woolen mill and paper mill in Pendleton will increase the value of all real estate in the town fully ten per cent. Corner lots on Main and Court streets will increase in value, if these mills are built, from $300 to $1,000. Will you not invest $75 when the return is sure to be $300, or $250 when it is to be $1,000? You are both narrow-minded and short-sighted if you will not. Subscribing to the fund is nothing more than making a good investment. Now, the owners of real estate who refuse to lend assistance in this matter may imagine that the mills will be built anyhow and they will receive the same advantage as if they had given. They will be disappointed in this, for unless every real estate owner in Pendleton, of any importance whatever, subscribes to this fund the necessary amount cannot be raised, and therefore the mills will not be built. Hence it is necessary that every real estate owner should do his duty, and do it liberally and willingly. By giving to this fund, land owners are simply taking a small amount from their pockets and replacing it with a larger amount at no distant day. It is simply a matter of business, plain on its face; a self-evident truth apparent to all, who will view it fairly and liberally. Let all do their share. How much did you say you will give?

SAYS a letter from Indianapolis, General Harrison's home:

"Go where you will among laboring men of any trade in Indianapolis and you will find the utmost antipathy to General Harrison. It is a tradition quoted often and with great force that in a speech at the time of the strikes in 1877 he said that $1 a day was wages enough for any laboring man."

This shows what kind of an aristocrat Mr. Harrison is. He believes that honest labor should be paid starvation wages, yet he is a high tariff man. Strange, isn't it?

The Washington Star is the author of this:

"With Benjamin at one end of their ticket and Levi at the other, the Republicans ought to get out a large share of the Hebrew vote in November."

We ask every reader of the Daily and Semi-Weekly EAST OREGONIAN to endeavor to secure one or more campaign subscribers to it, Semi-Weekly, to November 15, 1888, 75 cents; Daily, $1.25.
