TO-DAY'S TELEGRAMS.

PORTLAND POINTS. A Friend's Work - A Row in Camp - Collided With a Locomotive - Highwaymen in the Metropolis - Quite a Conglomeration.

PORTLAND, Nov. 27. - About a year ago a man by the name of Lynch got acquainted with a young widow by the name of Emma Alpin, of Warsaw, New York, and representing himself to be a capitalist of California and a lawyer and D. D., induced her to elope with him. She was possessed of about $2000, which he quickly went through with and then came to this city. Mr. Morehead, agent of the Immigration Board, while in the East, met the lady's folks, who inquired of him about the man Lynch, and was told the story. Upon Mr. Morehead's arrival here he caused the arrest of Lynch on a charge of lewd cohabitation, he having another wife in the East. In default of $1000 bail he was placed in jail. Mr. Morehead says that the lady, who was before the meeting an innocent, well-to-do Christian, is now by this fiend made a miserable social, financial and physical wreck.

It seems that young Hanlon, of police court notoriety, has not monopolized the meanness of the whole family, but there is quite a sprinkling left at their home since his departure to the penitentiary. Mr. Fred Tucker and wife, who live next door to the Hanlons, left their children with a Mrs. Dusenbury, who also lives next door, while they went down town last night. Returning late at night to get the children, they found Willie Dusenbury and old Hanlon quarreling. Mr. Tucker stepped up to ascertain the cause, and was met with a volley of curses from old Mrs. Hanlon. At this juncture the old man stepped up to Tucker and struck at him with a knife, cutting a hole in his coat very near the throat. Tucker then knocked the gate between them and knocked him down. A warrant was sworn out against the old man on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Yesterday a sausage vender was on his rounds delivering his wares when he heard a locomotive bell ring near him. He rushed for his cart and made off, only to meet another obstacle in the shape of another vehicle which got between him and the sidewalk. As the locomotive came up the sausage man's horse shied, and the locomotive struck the cart, upsetting it and throwing Mr. Sausage out in the mud. The horse and cart were dragged about twenty feet by the engine. The horse's ankles were badly cut, but can be cured.

Between twelve and one o'clock last night a hack driver who had been over to East Portland was alarmed to see a man emerge from a dark corner on Fourth and G streets and make a vicious grab at one of the horses' heads, attempting to stop him. The horse shying, escaped his would-be captor. Again at another corner of G street a similar attempt was made with like results. No pursuit was instituted, and the driver was thankful to get home with his head in good shape.

I suppose the north end of this city would furnish material for a good item, but your reporter has visited that place several times with that view, and always finds himself in such a conglomeration of boats, engines and mud, that the starting point has never been reached. If I can get a clew I will air the mixture some time in the near future.

Mr. Louis Kuebler, of Leezer & Kuebler, is at the St. Charles.

LEAVING THE G. A. R.

Twelve Hundred in Indiana Alone Desert the Republican Annex - A New Order Will be Formed of National and Non-political Character. INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 28. - A secret meeting of nearly twelve hundred Democratic veterans and members of the Grand Army of the Republic posts scattered throughout the State was held in the Capitol building last night, at which it was resolved that every Democratic member of the G. A. R. should abandon the order, and all present pledged themselves to withdraw from their posts. A name and constitution for a new order was adopted. The new order is to be charitable and non-political in character. Adjutant General Koontz, who presided, stated at the conclusion of the meeting that he had letters from men in eight States, indicating that the movement is national.

THE OPIUM SMUGGLING CASE.

The Washington Territory Speculator on Trial in New York. ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 28. - The trial of Erwin Gardner, of Washington Territory, for opium smuggling, commenced to-day. A jury was obtained, and the case opened by the government who set forth a strong case. In their argument they claim to be able to prove without doubt that Gardner and his confederates smuggled into this State from Canada over thirty-five hundred pounds between October 1887, and February, 1888. Two witnesses have thus far been examined. The case will probably last three days.

LORD LONSDALE'S JOURNEY.

He is Seen on His Travels Northward - He Expects to Go Farther North Than Anybody. WINNIPEG, Nov. 28. - James Carnie, a representative of the Hudson Bay Company, arrived here last night, and reports that two months ago he met Lord Lonsdale and two servants in good health, making their way northward on a fleet. Lord Lonsdale is traveling in the interests of a Scotch naturalist society, and expresses his confidence of reaching a point further north that has yet been reached.

EATEN BY WILD BEASTS.

A Montana Miner Who Used too Much Opium Eaten in His Cabin by Mountain Lions.

HELENA, Mont., Nov. 28. - The skeleton of James Robinson was found in his cabin in Lincoln Gulch, Deer Lodge county, on Friday. All the flesh had been eaten from the bones, and the hands and head were severed from the body. Robinson had not been seen for three weeks. On a table in his cabin was found some opium, to the use of which Robinson was addicted. It is supposed he took an overdose, and became unconscious, when mountain lions entered the cabin and killed him and ate his flesh.

San Francisco Libelers on the Road to Merited Punishment.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 28. - Judge Hornblower to-day held Adolfo Carrillo and W. W. Knott to answer for criminally libeling Frederico Picaso in Knott's weekly paper, the Enterprise. The evidence during the trial showed that a contract existed between the Enterprise publishers and Carrillo, by which the latter was to write articles of scandalous nature with a view of extorting money from the persons thus attacked.

Reasonable Observations.

"Ah," she said with a tender sadness as they strolled along beneath the trees on Water street, "nothing but leaves." "Yes," he replied, "and somebody autumn make arrangements to take them away." "I was not speaking of chestnut trees," she said softly, "though summer around here." "I will go winter the house," he painfully murmured, and with a backward spring, he left her struggling with the problem weather life is worth living or not.

The Ananias Club, of Boston, in electing Professor Wiggins an honorary member, passed over three or four Republican campaign writers. This is a shame. Wiggins is comparatively undeserving. He is not a liar proper; only a prophet.

BAKER COUNTY MINES.

Signs of Activity Noticeable in Various Districts - A Brief Synopsis. From the Baker City Democrat.

At Rock creek mining operations have closed down for the winter, with the exception of development work on two or more properties. D. M. Kelly & Co. have one or two miners at work running ahead of tunnel work and will probably continue development for several weeks yet, or until snow gets too deep. J. H. Bock, representing Mrs. Berger & Bock, of Portland, has commenced work on their properties in this camp, but will probably not do more than the annual assessment work with the intention of going ahead extensively in the spring. Messrs. Berger & Bock have great faith in their locations at Rock creek, and well they may, for this district gives evidences of being one of the richest silver belts in this section.

In the Pochahontas district the Tom Paine, Baisley and Robbins' mines are showing up splendidly. J. W. Young, one of the owners of the Tom Paine, is in the city, and informs the reporter that his property is proving to be all that was expected of it. Their Salmon mill is kept running night and day on $40 rock, and the ore veins in the tunnels are widening out, and the ore of its usual richness, some of it selected stock - too rich for mill process, just the stuff to put in a hand mortar. Their new boiler and engine from Portland is expected daily, and when once in place on the mine nothing will prevent the mill running all winter.

The Gray Eagle is looking fine, and those who control it are negotiating for its sale to Eastern capitalists. It's a good property, and an investment for capital. More hopeful signs are noticeable at Cracker creek, and persons in a position to know whereof they speak say there is a great future for the mines of that section. The mines are valuable, and their setback was solely on account of complications arising among members of the companies - the merits of the mines never being brought in question. About twenty-five men are on the payroll of the Columbia, under the superintendency of H. Stevenson, and this force will be kept on all winter. The arrival of spring will bring about operations on the Columbia on a grand scale.

Twelve or fifteen men are at work on the Eureka & Excelsior, but the force will probably be increased in a short time. At any rate extensive work is contemplated in the spring. The Gray Eagle mine of Murphy & Young is turning out the highest grade of silica ore on the coast. Operations there are being superintended by Jos. Murphy, and it is expected that upwards of 400 feet of tunnel work will be done this winter. One thousand pounds of ore from the Gray Eagle is now in the city awaiting shipment to the reduction works at Park City, Utah.

At Cubell Cove extensive development work on numerous properties will be pushed all winter. The La Bellevue, at Granite, is turning out the concentrates in large quantities.

A large force of miners are at employed the Monumental, and things look encouraging. The mill is now undergoing repairs and will soon be in condition to do custom work. Ike Klopp's mine will be operated this winter on an extensive scale, and there is every showing that the property will justify the erection of a milling plant in the spring.

The different owners of gravel mines, in the districts of Sumpter, Granite and surrounding country, are putting their claims in condition for next season's run, and the outlook is favorable for a prosperous year.

Mine owners are all confident that the year 1889 will make a grand era of prosperity for the mining industry in Baker county, and they are all taking advantage of the present to reap the benefits that may come from their industry.

As We Go Marching On.

From the Louisville Courier Journal. To-day in the face of disaster, the party is sounder of heart, and clearer of head, than a year ago, before the President called public attention to the necessity for reform by his message to Congress.

The work that lies before us is not to be done in one campaign, but all the forces of intelligence, all the forces of invention, all the mighty power of labor, all the sacred rights of man, are working in our behalf.

"It will take a good deal of courage," says Mr. Taulbee, "for a man to say anything about tariff reduction for some time to come."

But these silent influences which change the fate of nations do not stay for men of courage, or for men without courage, to talk about them. "My will fulfilled shall be, For in daylight or in dark, My thunderbolt hath eyes to see His way home to the mark."

That cause survives any defeat which rests on principles of inherent justice. The tariff of to-day is an organized robbery; it is slavery legalized. With that tariff the Democratic party is at eternal war, and, in possession of the Government or in opposition, it will talk and work and vote.

H. A. Projos, a Chicago man who went to Constantinople for his health in 1873, afterwards entered the Turkish service as a receiver of monies. He resigned some time ago, leaving $2500 short in his accounts and went, to Marianople, where he was arrested for a shortage in his accounts, and taken to Russia and kept several months in a dungeon, and was denied a trial. He has since been released.
