TO DISTRICT COURT

HALE AND WISDOM ARE BOUND OVER.

On the Charge of Assault With a Dangerous Weapon—Dragged Ben Fix With Lariat.

This forenoon Clarence H. Hale and Bert Wisdom were arraigned before Judge Fitz Gerald and bound over to the district court in the sum of $500 each on the charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

For several months bad blood has been existing between Ben Fix, the complaining witness, and Hale and Wisdom. Last Saturday morning Fix was driving his cattle off William Slusher's place on Butter Creek, when Hale and Wisdom were sighted riding toward him in a run.

According to the evidence brought out, Hale announced that he was going to rope Fix. At this Fix threw his hand down to his pistol holster and the horn of his saddle, but did not draw the weapon.

The rope caught around Fix's head and under one arm, and cut a gash on his face. Fix's horse was bucking by this time and Hale turned his animal and dragged Fix about 130 yards before he let him up.

After being let up, Hale and Wisdom undertook to catch the animal until the animal was run into a corral. There, as claimed by the prosecuting witness, the animal was caught and the pistol taken from the saddle.

Fix may feel lucky that he was not killed. To rope a man while on a horse and his animal bucking, and drag him from the saddle, is very dangerous, and in fixing the bonds this morning, Judge Fitz Gerald said it was the next thing to an attempt at manslaughter.

The only excuse given for the act of Hale and Wisdom is that Fix's cattle had been getting into their pasture and they claimed that he was responsible. Hale also claimed that Fix had threatened to kill him.

The two men were held last evening in bonds of $500 for Hale and $300 for Wisdom, which were furnished to keep them from spending the night in jail. This morning Wisdom's bonds were secured and Hale expects to raise the necessary $500 this afternoon.

BACK FROM NOME.

William Beagle and Captain Sperry Return From Alaska—Were Very Successful.

William Beagle arrived home this morning from Nome, Alaska, where he has spent the past two years. Mr. Beagle was accompanied by Captain J. L. Sperry, formerly of this city.

They were just leaving Nome when a big storm came which nearly swept away the city and Mr. Beagle was fortunate in saving himself, in speaking of this he said:

"We were on our way out with our gold dust when the big storm came which nearly swept the whole city of Nome out to sea. To our gold dust we owe our lives. It was this way: Owing to its weight we were delayed in getting on a lighter which was carrying passengers to the steamship that laid in the offing more than a mile away.

"The Nome country is all right," continued Mr. Beagle. "The mines are panning out much better than was expected, and everybody is making money. The St. Paul, the steamer we came down on, brought down at least $400,000 in the treasury vaults, beside the large amounts carried by some of the passengers. Nome has certainly become a mining camp of whose value there is no further question.

There are occasionally heavy storms at Nome which do considerable damage, but the one which was raging just before we left was the heaviest in the history of the town. The water in front of the city is very shallow and the wind has a clear sweep across the Behring Sea.

Mr. Beagle expects to return to the north country in the spring.
