THE MAN WHO FEELS.

The man who feels is a happier wight
Than the man who is callous and cold,
For if he weeps in the gloom of night,
He laughs in the sunbeams' gold,
And if the tide of his life runs low,
It reaches the summits of cheer,
He knows the heights, as the depths below,
And he smiles through a pitying tear,
And after it all when all is done,
The world has most of the gladdening sun,
For the twilight lingers when day is done,
And the sun's benediction is dear.
The man who feels is a dear God's gift
To a sorrowful, travelling world,
By the hands that the burdens of life uplift
Is the flag of our peace unfurled,
We need not the souls that are callous as Fate,
And selfish, and wedded to greed,
But the pitying tear for our fallen estate
We need—and we ever shall need,
And after it all, when all is past,
'Tis the deed of love that alone may last,
And the rest is chaff in the winnowing blast:
In the garden of life, a weed.
—Alfred J. Waterhouse.

FROM THOSE THAT HATH.

All will grant that the erection of a fine Young Men's Christian Association building in this city would be a splendid thing and that the maintenance of such an institution would work not only for the betterment of the young manhood and womanhood of the city but of the people in general.

The chief question, if an active campaign for a fund is made, will arise over who shall provide the bulk of the money. It is going to take a large sum and that money will have to come from some place.

If the natural order is followed the most liberal subscribers to the proposed fund will be people who are so fortunately situated financially as to be able to make large donations without great sacrifice. Pendleton has many residents of wealth who will be able to contribute to this fund if they desire to do so. We have many residents, some men and some women, possessed of fortunes sufficiently large that almost anyone of them could establish a $50,000 Y. M. C. A. single handed. It will be logical to expect much from this element when the Y. M. C. A. subscription list is passed around. Nor is it saying too much to assert that the measure of their generosity will determine whether or not the move will succeed or fail.

It would be a blunder to look to the local merchants to bear the chief burden of financing a Y. M. C. A. Few of our merchants are in affluent circumstances. Many of them are young men just getting established in business. All of them are called upon repeatedly to contribute money for civic purposes. It would be unjust and illogical to attempt to tax them heavily for this movement. It is more of a social and religious move than a business affair. But that local business men will do their full part when the times comes may be relied upon. They are a loyal, progressive brigade and they never fail a worthy cause.

In the view of this paper the chief work in behalf of the Y. M. C. A. should be done among our people, of both sexes, who are abundantly able to give, rather than among those who may have overdrafts at their banks.

HARD TO SWALLOW.

The East Oregonian has received some "dope" sent forth professedly in behalf of the beet sugar interests and in opposition to the removal of the tariff on sugar. Here is how it goes:
"The prospects of the establishment of new beet sugar factories in Oregon is attracting wide attention, owing to the danger of the passage of the democratic bill providing for the removal of the tariff on sugar, but nowhere is the danger appreciated greater than in Wisconsin, for it was at a Milwaukee conference a few days ago that C. C. Hamlin of Colorado Springs, chairman of the executive committee of the United States Beet Sugar industry, made his declaration that the democratic bill would throttle the beet sugar industry, prevent the building of new factories at a cost of $25,000,000 and the expenditure of $25,000,000 a year in the purchase of beets from farmers."

This is the very first intimation this paper has had to the effect new beet sugar factories are contemplated in Oregon. However, this paper has noticed repeated warnings to the effect the beet sugar factory at La Grande would be removed to Utah, or elsewhere, unless La Grande people came to its rescue. We also know one Union county man who says he lost $40,000 trying to raise sugar beets and his loss was due to the fact the sugar factory desired to make all the profit and allow the farmer none.

These observations lead to the belief it will not be fatal to Oregon if no additional beet sugar factories are established while conditions with reference to the sugar world are as at present. If it necessitates a duty of two cents a pound on sugar in order to foster our beet sugar industry it is a too expensive luxury. Besides there may be people ready to suspect that perhaps the sugar trust deals in both cane and beet sugar and therefore may be ready to pluck the public whether we do or do not have a tariff on sugar. It is rather hard to rely upon the veracity of a trust that is so foxy as to tamper with the custom house scales.

The Oregonian considers the La Follette victory in North Dakota a great knockout to Roosevelt and pictures Taft as challenging the ring victor to meet him in Oregon April 19. But the Portland paper overlooks the fact that Little Bob took on a double header the other day and that if the colonel was whipped he at least was not so badly battered as was the man William.

Paving work is ready to start and there are so many new streets upon the waiting list that a lively season is promised for the coming summer. So much work should produce a reduction in paying prices.

When one congressman challenges another congressman to oratorical battle and the other congressman accepts surely interesting stuff may be expected.

The ladies are assuredly correct in desiring that a daily garbage system be provided. It is much nicer to have garbage hauled away than to force people to smell it away.

THE REALM FEMINE

Bein' right is greater than bein' good—and it's different. It's easy enough bein' good, because everybody agrees about it, but in doin' right there's nothin' to back you up but your own sense.—Maggie Schultz in "Kindling."

For chilblains put two quarts of boiling water into a basin and hold the bare feet near the steam. When the water cools a little dip the feet in and out as quickly as possible several times. If the chilblains bother again the next day repeat this process and they will not come back again.

For a felon put a teaspoonful of baking soda in a cup of water with enough water to moisten it without dissolving the soda. Wet a rag in this and bind it on the finger and keep the cloth wet for three days and nights.

Braid should be sewed on by taking a long stitch on the back and a very tiny stitch on the right side directly through the braid and down again. Be careful to hold the material smoothly over the finger. Keep the braid straight and firm and turn all corners sharply. You will find when using soutache that you can work more rapidly and keep the braid straight more easily if you use an embroidery frame.

A hostess noted for her dainty tea table always uses rock candy crystals in place of sugar. It looks very pretty in the cups with the slice of lemon, and gives just the right sweetness. In place of sandwiches she sometimes serves indescribably good "rollovers," so named by one of her friends. They are made thus: The cook takes rounds of baking powder biscuit dough cut out as if for biscuit, and places in the center a spoonful of jelly, marmalade, mincemeat, or sandwich filling of any kind, rolls it up and bakes.

S.S.S. CURES OLD SORES

If an old sore existed simply because the flesh was diseased at that particular spot, it would be an easy matter to apply some remedy directly to the place that would kill the germs; or the diseased flesh might be removed by a surgical operation and a cure effected. But the very fact that old sores resist every form of local or external treatment, and even return after being cut away, shows that back of them is a morbid cause which must be removed before a cure can result. Just as long as the pollution continues in the blood, the ulcer remains an open cesspool for the deposit of impurities which the circulation throws off. S. S. S. cures Old Sores by purifying the blood. It removes every trace of impurity and taint from the circulation, and thus completely does away with the cause. When S. S. S. has cleansed the blood, the sore begins to heal, and it is not a surface cure, but the healing process begins at the bottom; soon the discharge ceases, the inflammation leaves, and the place fills in with firm, healthy flesh. Under the purifying and tonic effects of S. S. S. the system is built up, and those whose health has been impaired by the drain and worry of an old sore will be doubly benefited by its use. Fancy waistcoats are among the new features in spring costumes. These dreary little accessories were worn with some of the smart late winter suits, and with such excellent effect that they have been successfully brought out for spring in many different materials, such as Bulgarian and Egyptian embroideries done on linen's and coarse meshes.

Two tablespoonfuls of butter, 2 tablespoonfuls of sugar, 2 eggs, 1 cupful of milk, 2 1-2 cupfuls of flour, 2 teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a few drops of lemon juice, and 1 cupful of blueberries, raspberries, blackcaps, or any small berry, floured. Bake in gem-tins half an hour. Eat either hot or cold, with or without sauce.

If Caruso, the great tenor, happens to lose his voice or become incapacitated because of such illness as has kept him off the operatic stage the last half of two seasons, he will be consoled by the knowledge that his royalties from a phonograph company will exceed $100,000 a year for many years to come; while Madame Tetrazzini is grateful that the same company refused to pay her $1000 five years ago for the very same effort that they are now paying her $35,000 a year for. Then the diva was willing to take the lower figure outright for her records but a year ago she demanded a bonus of $25,000 besides the royalties and she got it.—Popular Mechanics.

cream together 1 cupful of sugar, 1-2 cupful of butter, 2 beaten eggs, 2 squares of melted chocolate, and a small pinch of soda (may be omitted). Add a cupful of chopped walnuts, 1-4 teaspoonful of vanilla, a pinch of salt, 1-2 cupful of pastry flour. Drop with a teaspoonful on greased tins, and bake in a hot oven.
