DR. MELVIN DEFENDS WORK OF HIS BUREAU

DENIES DISEASED MEAT IS SOLD FOR FOOD PURPOSE

Declares That Animal May be Partly Infected and the Remainder Wholesome and Fit for Table—Scientists Commended Department.

The government meat inspection service has been criticised for passing for food purposes the meat of animals that are slightly affected with localized tuberculosis. It is sometimes charged that diseased meat is passed for food.

"The only foundation for such statements," says Dr. Melvin, chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry, "is that the healthy and wholesome meat of an animal affected slightly and locally with some disease is passed after the affected portion has been removed and condemned. The meat or flesh may not be affected in any particular, the disease being usually confined to certain glands or organs. The diseased portion is removed; only the healthy portion is passed for food."

"This procedure is justified and sustained by the highest scientific authorities not only in the United States but in all countries having an efficient meat inspection. Objections to it usually come from those who have not made a study of comparative pathology and who are not qualified to pass upon the questions involved, and sometimes they come from those who oppose the use of meat at all as food and who wish to discredit it in every possible way."

Dr. Melvin continues:

"The idea of eating the meat of a slightly diseased animal may be repulsive to some, but a little consideration should readily convince a reasonable person that there is no valid reason for condemning and wasting perfectly wholesome meat simply because there happens to be somewhere in the animal a gland or an organ showing a lesion, or a parasitic nodule, or some slight, local condition which does not extend to or affect in any way the remainder of the carcass. The argument that all the meat of an animal affected to even the slightest degree with any disease should be totally and utterly condemned, if carried to the extreme and to its logical end, would result in the condemnation of practically every animal slaughtered and the abolition of meat as food."

"With the increasing cost of the necessities of life it becomes more important that wholesome food should not be recklessly and needlessly destroyed, and it is the duty of this department not only to protect the people against unwholesome meat, but to conserve the food supply. The only sensible course in meat inspection is to determine at just what stage a disease or abnormal condition becomes noxious, and where to draw a line between what should be condemned and what should be passed, always giving to the consumer the benefit of any doubt."

As showing that the department does properly safeguard the consumer, Dr. Melvin refers to the report of a commission of eminent scientists outside the department of agriculture who were appointed in 1907 to consider and make recommendations with regard to certain features of the meat inspection, and who said on this point:

"The commission would invite attention to a very widespread misconception as to the significance of the word 'diseased' in connection with meat inspection. To the popular mind the idea of eating 'diseased' animals is abhorrent. From the standpoint of meat inspection, however, the term 'diseased' must be used in a sense not entirely in harmony with the popular conception of this word.

"The commission could easily undertake to show that not any single animal used for food in any part of the world would, upon microscopic study, be shown to be absolutely free from all infection or lesion of said animal were presented to it for examination. There may be a strictly localized tuberculosis, consisting, for instance, of an isolated tuberculous nodule in the lungs, in the liver, or in some other portion of the body. Such nodule would make the particular point infected 'diseased' from the standpoint of meat inspection; in the opinion of some members of the committee, such nodule would also make the entire meat of the animal 'diseased' and call for the condemnation of the entire carcass! from the standpoint of meat inspection, the carcass in general would not be 'diseased,' and there would be no justification in condemning it.

"The veterinary inspector, in judging whether a carcass is 'diseased,' must do so upon the general principles of pathology in its relation to the public health, and not upon any preconceived, exaggerated, or sentimental idea.

On extra good program for Friday's change. Four full reels of the best American pictures.

1. "The Brave Hunter." Biograph. At the hunting lodge there arrives a great braggadoocio who boasts that he while in Africa only went in quest of big game, showing a lot of skins as trophies of his expedition. Out he starts, in the most approved fashion to add to his already extensive collection by bringing back some more embryonic floor rugs, and he came near getting them or rather they came near getting him.

2. "Won by a Fish." Biograph. Papa became so grouched over his bad luck as a fisherman it caused him to eject Harry, his daughter's sweetheart, who teased him about it. The next day he starts out with hope of bettering his luck, and the young people see a chance of getting back at him.

3. "An Unusual Sacrifice." Edison. A novel theme and a most unusual story. It is clearly told, of vital interest and will excite wide comment. A story of telepathy with Mary Fuller in the leading part.

4. "The Los Angeles Fire Department." Selig. A remarkable picture showing in vivid reality the modern methods which are used to fight a fire in a large city.

5. "Scenes in Korea." Selig. A picturesque travel picture, giving glimpses of life and habits of these oriental people.

6. "For the Papoose." Pathe. A squaw man is tired of his Indian bride and falls in love with the daughter of a white settler. He persuades the Indians who he lives with to attack the settler's camp and kill all but the white girl, with whom he later escapes, taking his Indian child with him. He is pursued by the squaw's brother, who in a desperate fight kills him.

The Pastime. The home of good pictures. Special features for Friday and Saturday's program.

"The Woman Haters." Vitagraph. Very rare. Not many of this kind. This is one case in ten thousand. It is an interesting one, worth studying. What would this world be without the women. The woman haters are funny chaps worth seeing. Try to get a young fellow to adopt their views—but he doesn't. There is a touch of rare art about this refined story and it is a happy departure from the commonplace.

"A New Beginning." Lubin. A pretty picture, many of its scenes have great beauty and there is beauty in its significance. Miss Ormi Hawley and Jack Holliday play in it a young married couple who, in the throes of a serious disagreement are brought together again in the last scene with love renewed.

"A Mardi Gras Mixup." Kalem. A picture with New Orleans as its background and has an element of freshness and interest at the very start. The many laughable situations which arise and the novel scenes of the Mardi Gras makes this comedy highly pleasing.

"John Milton." Eclips. This story deals with John Milton (the blind poet) after "Paradise Lost" had been printed and Charles II was king. The love story is furnished by the poet's favorite daughter, Debora, whose lover is Lord Devenant.

"Exhibition Drill of the H. M. S." Excellent.

The Cosy. Wednesday and Thursday, another pleasing program, the kind you like to see.

"The Coward." American. Lively western with an exciting man hunt as one of the chief events. For years the coward had been exasperated by his companions until one day he killed his man. Flooding for his life the coward bravely performed a humane and heroic act and proved his courage and bravery.

"Blighted Lives." Solax. A young man in great need of one appeals to a friend for aid. The man, his unsuspecting river in love, sent him a check and then accused him of forgery. In a great trial scene he is found guilty and sent to prison, while his rival won the girl. The ending is dramatic in the extreme.

"Shriners Parade at Rochester." Eclair America. Views of an elaborate parade and ceremony that is very interesting.

"Gaumont Weekly." $7,000,000 fire in Houston, Texas, Pennsylvania R. R. wreck, Maine heroes honored, Laurence, Mass., children march in New York, boats go down in flames, Mardi Gras week in New Orleans, floods in England, Taft at Washington's tomb, championship skating contest on ice in Berlin, Paris fashions and many other events.

"The Kodak Contest." Eclair America. A prize was offered for the funniest photograph and so a husband and wife's photos appeared in the daily paper, a misunderstanding occurred which was explained in time.

Coming Friday and Saturday, "The Battle of the Redmen," a stupendous western production in two reels, made by the "101 Ranch Wild West show company. Two tribes of Indians in the east.

FACE COMEDY PRESENTED AT GRAND THEATRE

The popular Wilbur company will present one of the funniest and cleverest face comedies ever written, entitled "A Married Bachelor." It tells the story of a young man who has to tell some very clever lies to receive the money his aunt left on her death bed. There is a deacon in the play who is extremely funny, and he is the goat of all the bachelor's lies and tricks. The Wilbur company gives an extremely clever performance of the farce.

"Chet" Wilson will continue his clever work in conjunction with the stock company.

Yet Solomon in all his glory never wore an opera hat that would open and shut.

Stops Falling Hair and Destroys Dandruff

Makes the Hair Grow Long, Heavy and Luxuriant and We Can Quickly Prove It

If You Wish to Double the Beauty of Your Hair at Once, Just Get a 25 Cent Bottle and Try This

Surely try a Danderine Hair Cleanse if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair with little trouble and at a cost not worth mentioning—just moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few moments you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of Dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow abundantly long, strong and beautiful. It at once imparts a sparkling brilliancy and velvety softness to the hair, and a few weeks' use will cause new hair to sprout all over the scalp. Use it every day for a short time, after which two or three times a week will be sufficient to complete whatever growth you desire.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lose it, if you will just get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

Baby's Voice

Every woman's heart responds to the charm and sweetness of a baby's voice, because nature intended her for motherhood. But even the loving nature of a mother shrinks from the ordeal because such a time is usually a period of suffering and danger. Women who use Mother's Friend are saved much discomfort and suffering, and their systems, being thoroughly prepared by this great remedy, are in a healthy condition to meet the time with the least possible suffering and danger. Mother's Friend is recommended only for the relief and comfort of expectant mothers; it is in no sense a remedy for various ills, but its many years of success, and the thousands of endorsements received from women who have used it are a guarantee of the benefit to be derived from its use. This remedy does not accomplish wonders but simply assists nature to perfect its work. Mother's Friend allays nausea, prevents caking of the breasts, and in every way contributes to strong, healthy motherhood. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores.
