PLURAL WIFE ASKS DIVORCE.

Curious Test of Polygamous Marriage Before Utah Court.

Salt Lake City, Utah.—A test of the legal status of a Mormon plural wife is before the district court here and is likely to be carried to the higher courts before a conclusion is reached. The trial is the suit for divorce brought by Clarissa Reed Marsh against George J. Marsh.

Marsh, who is 32 years old, took a first wife in 1854 and this couple had ten children. He married Clarissa Reed, then 32 years old, in 1888 under the rites of the Mormon faith, the "celestial" marriage ceremony being performed in the temple at Logan. Six children were born to this couple. Troubles came in after years and the second wife finally determined that it was necessary to establish her status and that of her children. Her counsel advised her that the best method was to bring suit for divorce. Marsh has set up the defense that she is not his legal wife.

Mrs. Marsh has won the first bout in the courts, Judge Morse having ordered the payment of alimony and counsel fees by Marsh pending the decision of the court. He ruled that the fact that the couple lived together as man and wife and had raised children justified a decree for temporary support until the case could be tried on its merits.

A sidelight on the personality of this plural wife was given in the hearing on alimony when she was asked how long she had known Marsh before she was married to him.

"I was acquainted with him ten years," she replied. "I never really knew him."

The status of thousands of other plural wives and their children is involved in the decision of this case. There has been a disposition heretofore to recognize the claims of such persons who became involved in polygamy before it was denounced by the Mormon people in the manifesto of 1892.

Car Thieves Bound Over.

The three alleged boxcar thieves arrested at The Dalles several days ago and brought here by Sheriff Taylor were today bound over to the grand jury under $400 each.

Helix to Celebrate.

Helix will celebrate the fourth of July this year and plans are on foot to make the eagle scream in good old time fashion. Committees have been appointed and money is now being raised with which to carry out a patriotic program. The little town is also preparing to observe Memorial Sunday with a program under the auspices of the churches and lodges. The program is to be held at a o'clock Sunday afternoon, June 2, and Judge S. A. Lowell is to be the speaker.

Throw at Bartender; Broke Mirror.

A traveling man, who last night became engaged in an altercation with "Fergie" the bartender at the St. George and who threw a glass which caromed off the latter's ear and smashed one of the big mirrors in the bar, was this morning fined ten dollars by Judge FitzGerald upon his promise to repair the damage which will amount to about $100. The only other offender in court was Ross Bennett, who upon pleading guilty to being drunk, was given the usual sentence.

Wants Damages for Accident.

Joe Bohl, proprietor of the Ford garage, last night submitted to the council a claim for $200 damages for the injuries sustained by his wife and to his automobile when, in returning from the Barnes animal show at night, he ran into the rope with which the streets about the burning Wonder Store had been fenced off. Bohl claims there was no warning light suspended from the rope while the firemen claim that there was and that they picked up the damaged lantern immediately after the accident. The claim was referred to the claims committee and the city attorney.

A. M. Erb is Laid to Rest.

Many Odd Fellows gathered in their hall this afternoon at 4 o'clock to pay their last tribute to their departed brother, A. M. Erb, the Pendleton pioneer who died several days ago. Deceased had been a member of the I. O. O. F. for many years and his 35 year medal was pinned to his funeral casket. Following the ceremonies in the hall, the body was taken to Olney cemetery where it was interred. Deceased left no relatives so far as known and all efforts to locate the place where a wife and child were buried proved futile. He left considerable property but no will disposing of it and, in case no heirs are found, it will revert to the state, although many times he had signified his intention of leaving it to the Odd Fellows home.

Tomorrow Ladies' Day at Ball Park.

Tomorrow is Ladies' Day at the ball park and a cordial invitation is extended to every lady or girl in the city to be present to witness the fourth local contest between the Walla Walla and Pendleton teams. Manager Garrett will start Mountain in the box and, if necessary, will himself go in later, and if Strand pitches against Osborne in today's game, Walla Walla will in all probability put Kelly up to do slabwork before the admiring eyes of the ladies. The grandstand as well as admission at the gate will be gratis to the ladies who care to attend.

TRIES TO SAW HOME IN TWO.

Coloradoan, Taking Divorce Decree Too Literally, Lands in Jail.

Denver, Colo.—James W. Ponder, who has a small truck farm near Denver, started to carry out literally the terms of an agreement with his former wife, who had obtained a divorce, by sawing their home in two, giving her one-half and keeping the other himself.

As a result, Ponder is in jail and will be tried on the charge of malicious mischief.

Ponder could not see how he could give his former wife half of the barn and keep the other half himself, nor how he could divide the horse and wagon, but it was easy to talk half the chickens and give the other half to her.

Ponder turned the horse loose and the animal ran away. He made a bonfire and burned the wagon, tore the barn down and split it into kindling, killed the hog, dressed and buried it, then started to saw the house across the middle when Mrs. Ponder had him arrested.

DRAYMEN DEMAND MAIN ST. STANDS

EMPLOY ATTORNEY TO CARRY PROTEST BEFORE COUNCIL

Lawyer Declares City Ordinance Keeping Drays Off Main and Court Streets is Unjust—No Paving for College Street.

Representing the licensed draymen of the city, Attorney Joe Skrable appeared before the city council last night and argued against the ordinance which bars them from taking a stand on Main and Court street, declaring such a law to be an infringement upon their rights as citizens, virtually depriving them, he said, of their means of livelihood. A protest signed by the draymen and many citizens was presented to the council two weeks ago and the attorney asked that some recognition be given it.

In the course of his argument, Mr. Skrable declared that the supreme court of Texas had held a similar law to be illegal and he declared his opinion that the courts of this state would make a like decision if the matter were ever brought before them. He maintained that the presence of the drays on the main thoroughfares is a great convenience to the public and does not interfere with traffic except on special occasions at which time the police power of the city is sufficient, he declared, to rule them off to prevent congestion.

No Paving for College St.

Upon the recommendation of the street committee last night, the proceedings for the paving of College street were dropped for the time being.

Sales Agent Garrow of the Warren Construction company took occasion last night to make a correction of a statement made last week to the effect that Seattle operates a municipal paving plant and lays its own pavement at a cost of 32 cents a square yard. He declared that during the week he had made an investigation and found that Seattle only maintains a municipal repair plant.

Engineer Lonergan of the same company advised the council that the Alta, Cottonwood and Webb street pavements would be ready for acceptance by the next meeting and asked that the council be prepared to take action at that time.

Must Cut Weeds.

Acting upon the suggestion of the Civic Club, the council last night authorized the publication of a notice to residents of the city requiring them to cut down the weeds in the streets upon which their homes abut.

A petition signed by C. K. Cranstun and others asking for the installation of an arc light on west Wilson street was referred to the light committee.

A petition and demand signed by S. A. Edwards and others for a sewer on High street was likewise referred to the proper committee.

Upon the recommendation of Street Commissioner Heathman through Councilman Cole, an order was made for the construction of a cement sidewalk in front of the E. D. Turner property on West Court street, the costs to be assessed against the property.

Permission was given to the I. O. O. F. lodge to decorate the streets for the grand lodge convention which is to be held in this city next week.
