The witness described the manipulation of labor leaders and told of hiring prominent union men in Philadelphia and New York to accomplish his purpose. He was asked to name the men who aided in the political fights and Mulhall said: "Michael Collins of Philadelphia; secretary Curtin of the building trades council of Philadelphia; Jacob Cassler of New York; William Ryan of the electrical workers of New York, and George Burke of New Jersey who was later named deputy collector of internal revenue."

MULHALL TELLS LOBBY PROBERS OF HIS WORK

Received $100 Weekly, Besides His Expenses, For His Efforts in Behalf of the Manufacturers.

LETTERS ARE PRODUCED

Senate Committee Will Retain Mulhall Until They Have Exhausted His Testimony—House Committee Will Have to Wait Before They Can Secure Him for Probe.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—How the National Association of Manufacturers used leaders of labor unions through him to re-elect Aldrich senator from Rhode Island and to defeat Senator McComas of Maryland for re-election and William Hughes as a candidate for congress from New Jersey in 1904 was told before the senate lobby committee by Mulhall, self confessed chief lobbyist and strikebreaker for the organization. The witness described the manipulation of labor leaders and told of hiring prominent union men in Philadelphia and New York to accomplish his purpose. He was asked to name the men who aided in the political fights and Mulhall said: "Michael Collins of Philadelphia; secretary Curtin of the building trades council of Philadelphia; Jacob Cassler of New York; William Ryan of the electrical workers of New York, and George Burke of New Jersey who was later named deputy collector of internal revenue."

Backed the Republicans.

Mulhall said the National Manufacturers usually backed republican candidates in the primaries. After Senator McComas was defeated, Marshall Cushing, then secretary of the Manufacturers' Association, sent him to "feel him out." Cushing, the witness said, told him McComas was a candidate for the federal bench and that Mulhall was to tell him that his advocacy of the eight hour bill had cost him the senatorship, and that he ought to repudiate his advocacy of it. Cushing's letter which Mulhall was directed to burn, read: "If he honestly means to let up, you can promise him we will remove any obstacle to his political ambition." Mulhall testified McComas refused to abandon his advocacy of the eight hour bill.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—As the result of reported jealousy between the senate and house lobby investigating committees the senate committee met at nine o'clock today instead of ten-thirty, with Mulhall on the stand. Chairman Overman sent a letter to Chairman Garrett of the house committee, positively refusing to release Mulhall to the house probes.

Mulhall Identified a letter from Marshall Cushing, secretary of the Manufacturers' Association, written in 1904, accompanying a check for $200. Cushing warned Mulhall to be careful in cashing the check. The witness said the money was used in "a close congressional district."

Overman's letter to Chairman Garrett reviewed the circumstances of the house subpoenaing Mulhall last night and added "without intending the slightest disrespect of the probe or your committee, it will be obvious to you that we will be obliged to hold the witness, Mulhall, until our examination is completed, at which time we will be glad to release him, subject to subpoena by you, and I will make available upon your order, any or all papers which now or which may come into our possession in connection with the matter."

In September, 1904, Cushing wrote Mulhall that hereafter he would receive every Friday a check while he retained his connection with the "Workmen's Protective Association," an organization he formed to work for the republican ticket. Cushing sent him a hundred dollars weekly.
