LAUS DEO.

Let praise devote thy work and skill employ
Thy whole mind, and thy heart be lost in joy.
Well-doing bringeth pride, this constant thought
Humility, that thy best done is naught.
Man doeth nothing well, be it great or small,
Save to praise God; but that hath saved all;
For God requires no more than thou hast done,
And takes thy work to bless it for His own.
—Robert Bridges, newly appointed poet laureate of England.

What a wonderful change has occurred in the Mexican atmosphere?

Where now is all that Now Where is sarcasm and ridicule That Bluff? about our government's peace policy and about our grape juice envoy, John Lind. What has come over our tory newspapers that they have suddenly become so quiet in their abuse and misrepresentation. Have they after all concluded that a constitutional government would be the best thing for Mexico and that government by murderers is not as essential as they thought.

After a bluff has once been called it is the cheapest looking thing on earth and Messrs. Wilson and Bryan called the Huerta bluff with such speed that our tory newspapers have been left speechless.

It is too bad that through a mistaken notion on the part of the Indians the government has

They Have to Learn by Learning. been compelled to refuse the right to a site for a fish hatchery at Gibbon. There is every reason for believing that the establishment of the hatchery would benefit the Indians as much as the whites. The Indians would gain through the fact the river would be better stocked with fish. The Indians are exempt from paying fishing licenses and therefore would be called upon to pay no part of the expense. The hatchery would be located under such an agreement that the government could withdraw its permit any time it saw fit to do so. So the rights of the Indians would be safe.

However since the local redmen were all opposed to the hatchery the government has done right in denying the request. The Indians are the best judges as to what they want in this instance. The logical course will be to observe their wishes and let them learn in their own way in time how they stood in their own light. Next time they may do better.

The dirtiest thing about the Sulzer impeachment is the utter viciousness of those who are

The Real Charge trying to bring Against Sulzer. about the downfall of the New York governor. Tammany is after him and after him with claws sharpened and eager to kill. Not though because Sulzer has done anything wrong. It would not matter in the slightest to Murphy if Sulzer were a murderer and a bank robber if he would but play the Murphy game. He is hated not for any villainy but for his virtue.

Sulzer's great offense is that he insisted that the New York legislature proceed to pass a direct primary law in keeping with the promises of the democratic platform and in keeping with the promises also made by the republicans. Such a law would put Murphy out of business and it would put Barnes, the republican boss out of business. Therefore Murphy and Barnes will leave nothing undone to destroy Sulzer. They want to make an example of him so that never in the future will a New York politician dare to claim a soul of his own and dare to do his duty to the people in defiance of orders from the bosses.

The fight against Sulzer, in view of the plain motives back of the same, is an outrage on public decency. He is not being tried for any irregularity about his campaign fund. That is purely a nominal charge taken up because it was the only thing to be found. The real charge against Sulzer is that he has tried to be a man while Murphy insists he should be a slave. The newspapers know this yet most of the papers offer no encouragement to Sulzer in his fight and quietly damn him by placing him in the same category as Murphy.

It is no wonder boss rule is so hard to down in this country and it is no wonder our governments become so perverted.

Students from Oregon who go outside the state to attend institutions of higher learning

A Tendency That display little patriotism and they Needs Watching lose in more ways than one by their action.

For a student who intends to reside in Oregon in the future there is a great advantage in attending an Oregon institution. Through such attendance a student may gain a state wide acquaintance that will be extremely valuable and pleasant in later life. The student who goes abroad and then returns to the state after his graduation parts for life with his college mates.

Nor does a student gain better educational facilities by going away. This is true of both the university and agricultural college. The university, despite its adversities, is a splendid institution and is located in one of the finest towns in Oregon. The Oregon Agricultural College is unsurpassed by any other agricultural college in the west and this institution also is admirably located. Neither the university or the agricultural college are adjacent to large cities and this is a positive benefit to students. A student should go to college to acquire college training, not to get into the gay and busy whirl of a large city. There will be ample time for that later. The student who goes to a college adjacent to a small town will spend less money, will have fewer temptations and will do better work than the student attending the school in the large city.

The drift of Oregon students to outside schools is something that needs watching. It looks bad for Oregon. If our schools are lacking in any way they should be made right. But the trouble is not so much with our schools as with the students who go away.

Why, how was that?" questioned Smith, in an agitated voice. "Because the doctor assigned to this ward is an idiot. In collecting his instruments after the operation, he missed a needle and a pair of scissors of the "Hohenzollern luck" and the latter in my friend here on the right. You see now the reason for the two operations" Just then the surgeon put his head in at the door and asked: "Has any one seen my silk hat?" Smith fainted.

GRASSHOPPERS IN KANSAS.

(Chicago Inter-Ocean.)

"What's the matter with Kansas? Well, this time it's grasshoppers.

In the western part of the state the grasshoppers are so many and so voracious that the farmers have appealed to Governor Hodges to enforce the old "warning out law."

There are many queer things in Kansas and one of the queer things is this same "warning out law." It was enacted after the grasshopper plagues of 1873 and provides that "every able-bodied man, woman or child between the ages of 12 and 60 may be called upon to fight grasshoppers."

Will Governor Hodges "warn out" the Kansans? His name suggests that he will find some other way to combat the grasshopper plague.

A NEW CLASSIFICATION.

A prosperous-looking young man stopped at the men's furnishing counter in one of the local department stores recently and asked to look at some shirts, recites the Youngstown Telegram.

"Have you any choice?" asked the salesman.

"Don't think I have," replied the prospective customer.

"Would you like to look at something a tittle fancy?"

Raising his right hand in a slight motion of dissent and giving the salesman a knowing wink, the young man replied:

"No, show me some married man stuff."

THE "HOHENZOLLERN LUCK." (The London Chronicle.) Does the Kaiser ascribe any part of the prosperity of his reign to the possession of the "Hohenzollern luck?" The "luck," a plain gold ring with a black stone first appears in history when Frederick the Great received it from his dying father, with a note declaring that so long as it remained in the family the race would prosper. Legend affirms that one day, centuries before, when a Hohenzollern prince was about to be confined, a large frog hopped on the bed and dropped the ring from its mouth. The "luck" was stolen from Frederick William II by his mistress, the Countess Wilhelmine, in 1790; hence, it is said, the Prussian disasters of the new few years. It was recovered in 1813, just before the great war of liberation, which re-established the fortunes of the Hohenzollerns.

REAL CAUSE FOR ALARM. (From a Foreign Exchange.) Smith had just been operated on for appendicitis. During his period of convalescence he became quite chummy with the two other patients who shared the ward with him.

"How are you feeling, boys?" said Smith one morning to them.

"Oh, we are all right," they both answered together, "considering that we both had to undergo two operations."

BY THE SCISSORS HE WAS A WORSHIPPER.

A new preacher on his way to the service one Sabbath evening met a young man whom he had seen on one or two occasions.

"Isn't this Mr. Harkins?" asked the domine, stopping the young man and extending his hand. "I am the new preacher who has just come to town."

"Yes, sir," replied the young man returning the handshake. "I am Mr. Harkins."

"I have seen you several times," pleasantly continued the pastor, "but until now I haven't had the pleasure of making your acquaintance. I presume that you are accustomed to divine worship every evening."

"Oh, yes, sir," was the smiling response of the young man. "I am on my way to see her now."—Saturday Evening Post.
