OUT OF THE VAULT

Curiosity leads to day-long search for Umatilla man uriosity, they say, killed the cat. Luckily for Darel Beemer of Umatilla, being curious is not always fatal. Beemer was the subject of an intensive search and rescue effort in March of 1999 after he disappeared during a trip to McNary Dam.

Beemer, 25, was one of a group of developmentally disabled clients of Rise, Inc. on a social outing to the hydroelectric dam just outside Umatilla. He had gone into the bushes around 3 p.m. on March 16, 1999, to change into a dry pair of pants after wading in one of the ponds on the dam's grounds. When he failed to reappear, Rise Inc. employees began a search. An hour later, Umatilla County Search and Rescue was called. They were told that a fisherman saw Beemer climbing the dam's fish ladder within the first hour he went missing.

Ed Beemer, Darel's father, was puzzled at how the young man could have breached dam security, but said Darel was able to get into places others could not. "He's pretty limber," Beemer said.

About 23 hours after he was first reported missing, a pair of Darel's pants was found near an elevator door inside the dam complex. Searchers eventually found him hunkered down in the Grout Tunnel, at the 235-foot level. Jan Good, the coordinator of the search and rescue team. said she was told Darel liked to play hide and seek, and the tunnel was the perfect place for a game. Also, Darel was unable to speak due to Down syndrome, and so was unable to lead rescuers to his hiding place.

Ed Beemer was grateful Darel was found, a little dehydrated and cold, but none the worse for his day-long ordeal. "What he did, he did for no other reason than curiosity," he said. And he credited the search and rescue team and Rise inc. employees for giving "110 percent" during Darel's disappearance.

100 Years Ago From the East Oregonian March 25-26, 1917

The little village of Nolin today presents a warlike appearance with armed men accompanying the children to and from school. However, the enemy calling for all this display of armament is of the four-footed variety. The appearance of a rabid coyote last night and of a mad dog this morning terrified the whole community and extreme precautionary measures are being taken. The coyote bit practically very dog in the community during the night, killed a number of chickens and attacked a flock of geese. All children were escorted to school this morning by men with guns.

A flash fire in a motel unit at the Pendleton Motor Park, 1010 S.W. Court, singed the eyebrows of Charles Bunker, a workman at the scene, and caused some damage to the bathroom, the city fire department reported. The fire occurred at 3:42 p.m. Friday and the fire department quickly extinguished the blaze. It was caused when vapors from an adhesive used in laying tile crept along the floor to an open heater. Bunker was the only workman inside. Because of the vapor a door was left open and this kept the heater going full blast, as it was operated thermostatically, firemen said.

Arrate Iraolagoitia from northern Spain says she was surprised by cowboy hats, belt buckles and boots when she arrived at Pendleton High School this year. The 16-year-old telephoned her relatives and later mailed photographs as proof. Her family asked," Do they ride horses to school?" Of course not, Arrate replied. The exchange student with ASSE International says Spaniards learn about the United States from movies, such as "Fame' or "Grease." Her friends and relatives believe American high school is a big party. Now Arrate can correct them. "No, it's just school." The visitor from Spain's Basque country lives with Merilee Huffman of Pendleton. Her host family also includes Tod, 19, and Brandi, 15.

'Town That Garbage Built' for sale in Pennsylvania for $1.5M

REDUCTION, Pa. (AP) "The Town That Garbage Built" is up for sale.

A family that has owned the Village of Reduction in Pennsylvania for nearly 70 years has decided to divest itself of the 75-acre property. The $1.5 million asking price includes farmland, 19 singlefamily homes and a 1914 one-room schoolhouse.

The village once home to about 400 employees of the American Reduction Company. The company operated a plant that processed tons of garbage a day from Pittsburgh, before the city opened its own facility in 1936. Newspaper headlines at the time proclaimed it "The Town That Garbage Built,"

Current owner David Stawovy's father bought the property in 1948 for $10,000. His father and grandfather operated a dairy farm on an adjacent plot of land, Stawovy told the Tribune Review. When his father expressed interest in buying one of the American Reduction homes, a company official asked him "Why don't you just buy them all?"

Stawovy said his children aren't interested in the property and his family can't afford to maintain it.

"I've done it all my life," he told the newspaper. "I've got to be the mayor, the fire marshal and the dog catcher."

About 60 people still live in the village, and most say they prefer to stay put.

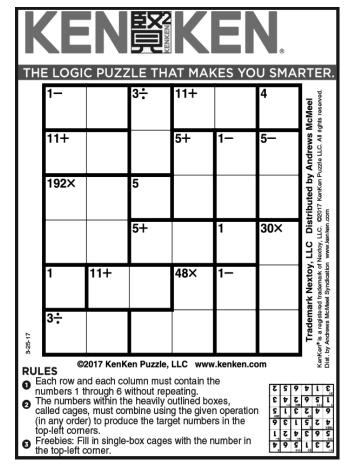

Andrew Knopsnider has lived in the village for over two years in his cottage overlooking the Youghiogheny River.

"I'd like to stay," Knopsnider said. "It's nice and quiet and peaceful."
