THE MOTTO

To one whom years had rendered wise : Some plea ant thought or weighty truth, That briefest syllables comprise Some word of warning or of cheer To grave upon my signet here."

"And reverend father," said the boy, "Since life, they say, is ever made A mingled web of grief and joy; Since cares may come and pleasures fade, Pray, let the motto have a range Of meaning, matching every change.

"Sooth," said the sire, "methinks you ask A labor something over nice. That well a finer brain might task-What think you, lad, of this device? (Older than I-though I am gray.) 'Tis simple-'This will pass away !' "

When wafted on by Fortune's breeze, In endless peace thou seem'st to glide, Prepare betimes for rougher seas, And check the boast of foolish pride ! Though smiling joy is thine to-day, Remember, 'This will pass away !'

When all the sky is draped in black, And, beaten by tempestuous gales, Thy shuddering ship seems all a wreck. Then trim again thy tattered sails : To grim Despair be not a prey ; Bethink thee, 'This will pass away !'"

"Thus, O my son, be not o'er proud,
