

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Take all of our great national industries, and the best paying of all is that of mining. We refer particularly to gold, silver, copper, lead and zinc. The common impression that mining does not pay is unfounded. Taking the figures compiled from the United States census report of 1930, and an analysis of the returns is interesting and instructive. The statistics are based on the per capita return from agriculture, forest industries, manufacturing and mining. Agriculture yields $297 to each person engaged; forest industries, $425; manufacturing is $764, while mining reaches the very respectable sum of $1910 per capita. This is a surprising showing, to say the least, and must be encouraging to every one interested in developing the mineral wealth of the state.

From the mayor's veto, found in another column, of the ordinance recently passed by the common council granting a franchise for ten years and fixing the price of arc lights at $6 per month and incandescent at $1.41 per month, it appears that another bid which was proposed at the time the ordinance was passed offered to furnish arc lights for $5 per month and incandescent at $1.35 per month. The new bidders have put up a bond for $2,500, approved by the mayor, guaranteeing to enter into contract within 30 days if accepted by the council. These are the good and substantial reasons which the mayor gives for vetoing the ordinance. The mayor figures that $1,800 will be gained to the city by the new bid.

The mayor's veto will give the council ample opportunity to take plenty of reflecting time. The great difficulty with all important matters before a city council is too much haste and generally loss to the city. In many cities throughout the United States franchises are sold to the lowest bidder, not under sealed bids, but by open bids as an auctioneer cries off a horse or any other article at acrier's sale. The council might do well to advertise and let the electric light contract by open bids, every man to bid as often as he desires. Now is the time for the council to do good service for the city. Certainly no man will bid lower than the light can be furnished for at a profit.

The defects in the tax law passed by the last legislature brings vividly to mind the results of tax agitation. The entire state, every municipality, county and school district are wonderfully perplexed to know what will be the result. While the governor may realize that it is his duty to call an extra session of the legislature to cure stupid blunders in the tax law, he also knows that the majority of persons elected to the legislature are inexperienced people. Such people are more likely to be agitators than men of sound experience. The two greatest evils of the day are the tax agitator and the tramp labor delegate who never works but with his mouth and becomes a labor agitator. The average inexperienced would-be statesman easily imagines there is some difficulty with taxation, valuations and equalization of taxes. No matter what official position he occupies the ever present question of taxation affords him a ready theme with which to employ his energies. After he continues his agitation until he learns some few things about taxation, he realizes that the difficulties which makes up the sum total of his methods and questions of agitation have existed in all ages since taxation was practiced. The amateur legislator is nearly always found busy with his thoughts with tax bills. After the law is amended to suit his suggestions, to his surprise he finds more things out of joint than before.

Correct Material for Eye Glasses.

The best material for spectacle lenses is the "Crystal" brand of crown glass. All of the first quality spectacles are made from this material. It is imported from Germany in the rough and finished in this country. The cheaper quality of lenses is made from flint glass. It is softer, and is not susceptible of so high a polish or so fine a finish. It is the same material that is used in the manufacture of common window glass. If you look across the edge it has a green tint. In the best lenses you will never see this tint. They are free from bubbles and all imperfections. They are ground to an accurate focus, and are mathematically correct in every way. I am carrying a constant stock of the best quality lenses. Every one is carefully inspected and tested before it leaves my office. I will not put an imperfect lens at any price. Dr. Darrin, Hotel Corvallis, Nov-16th to December 1st.
