WINTFR EXCURSION RATES TO YAQUINA BAY.

A New Departure on the Southern Pacific and the Corvallis & Eastern Railroads.

Recognizing a long felt want, and desiring to give the public cheap rates to the coast in the winter as well as the summer, for persons who desire to see the bounding billows in their widest moods and imbibe the pure ozone of the winter air at the coast, the Southern Pacific Company in connection with the Corvallis & Eastern Railroad have placed on sale, taking effect Nov. 2, 1904, and continuing until March 31, 1905, from all points on their lines, round trip tickets to Yaquina at the same rate as during the summer. These tickets will be sold on Wednesdays and Saturdays only and will be good for return sixty days from date of sale.

Dr. Minthorn's sanitary baths will be in operation and anyone who desires a genuine health resort during the winter cannot do better than spend a month or so at Yaquina.

Similar tickets will be sold from Albany, Corvallis, Philomath and all points west on the Corvallis & Eastern R. R.

Full information as to rates, baggage, etc., can be obtained by applying to the agent or direct from W. E. Coman, G. P. A., S. P. Portland, or Edwin Stone, manager, C. & E. R. R. Co., Albany.

P. S.—Through tickets to Portland are sold by the C. & E. at Corvallis and by the S. P., Portland to Corvallis via Albany and the C. & E. at the same rates via the west side, viz: $2.60. C. & E. trains connect at Albany with the Albany-Portland local both ways.

IMPROVED CHICKEN COOP.

It Can Be Shifted to Fresh Ground as Often as Conditions Render It Advisable.

The engraving represents a coop which I have used with much satisfaction for several years. It is made of matched lumber, with a small door in the rear, which could not be shown in the front perspective. The slats are of half-inch stuff nailed at top and bottom. The flap is of three-quarter-inch lumber, with cleats on the lower side which fall between the vertical slats when the flap is let down. It is hung with T hinges when raised, as shown in the engraving; it makes a sort of vestibule, sheltering the interior of the coop from the hot sun and sudden driving showers. At night it is let down, and makes the coop warm, dry and safe from rats, skunks and other nocturnal prowlers. Above the flap is an opening for ventilation, covered with wire cloth.

VERMIN-PROOF COOP.

When chicks are eight weeks old two roosts are fastened into the coop a few inches above the ground, and the youngsters make the coop their nightly lodging until nearly full grown. This saves them from a great deal of persecution and suffering to which they are liable if placed with the older fowls at night as soon as the mother hen is removed.

At all times when the coop is occupied it is shifted to fresh ground as frequently as once a week, and is frequently turned over and sprayed inside with kerosene.—George S. Martin, in Farm and Home.

NOTES FOR BEEKEEPERS.

Drones are the male bees. Have a good supply of hives in readiness.

Drones have no stings and no means of defense.

Keep a supply of comb foundation to use in the hives.

Cross, stinging bees are usually the result of improper handling. Keep plenty of room above the brood nest for the storage of honey.

A colony that seems slow in building up may have a defective queen.

Much surplus honey cannot be secured if the bees are allowed to swarm at will.

Rough treatment will not succeed, but will irritate the bees beyond redemption.

Colonies worked for extracted honey are less inclined to swarm than those for comb honey.

Use one-pound section boxes in the crates and the best crates for holding them on the hives.

As the season advances and the hive becomes crowded with bees, more ventilation should be given.

Swarming may often be discouraged by giving a young queen to the hive that is getting ready to swarm.

To have a swarm right is to have all the bees, and if the queen is there at all she will be in the hive with them.

To obtain a crop of honey in a profitable manner, the surplus boxes must be ready to put in the hives when needed.

A section filled with comb in which there is little honey put in the surplus cases will entice the bees into the upper ones.

The best way to get rid of moth worms in empty combs is to put the combs in empty boxes and fumigate them with burning sulphur.—St. Louis Republic.
