THE DEMOCRATIC MEANING:

Protection by tariff is the only principle held by the republican party which the democratic party will attack. This attack will not be a fair, square, open assault on the doctrine of protection, but will be disguised by the name of tariff reform. Democrats know perfectly well that the mass of the American people believe in protection, and that no party which openly proposes to destroy it would have the ghost of a show for popular support.

There is a strong sentiment, in which many republicans share, that the present or Dingley tariff should be revised. Those who advocate tariff revision may be grouped in three classes: First, those who believe that some of the provisions of the law are not adjusted to present industrial requirements. Second, those who have honest but mistaken views as to some of the effects of the existing tariff. Third, all those who are opposed to the principle of protection. This third class embraces all free-traders and the democratic party and is the class which shouts most vociferously for tariff revision, and can be depended upon to obstruct or prevent any revision that preserves the principle of protection. It hopes for efficient aid from the second class.

Historically the democratic party falls in this class, for it has always favored tariff for revenue only, and its tariff enactments have been, with scarce an exception, closely bordering on free trade. When it gave any degree of protection it was described as "incidental protection," thus notifying the world that the party is opposed to the principle of protection.

It is rather a notable fact that this "incidental protection" has almost invariably been conferred on special interests or on those least needing protection. The Wilson-Gorman tariff gave the manufacturers of structural steel more protection than the Dingley tariff does. It was because that "incidental protection" was studiously given to plutocratic and special interests that President Cleveland denounced it as a most iniquitous measure and refused to sign it.

There really is nothing in the alleged abuses of the tariff by which so many are wronged, and so deeply wronged as by the lawlessness of the Railway, the Beef Trust, Standard Oil and Insurance. When these are put in leash, and they are being sternly brought to book, it will be time to seek out and deal with the lesser evils of tariff abuse. In the meanwhile let us remember that the country never had so equitable, wisely adjusted and beneficial a tariff law as the present law; that it gives the small manufacturer the same protection it does the multi-millionaire and the owner of five hundred sheep the same as the owner of five thousand; that protection has always been followed and attended by prosperity while tariff bordering on free trade has always brought wide-spread distress, disaster and ruin, that the republican party is the party of protection and the democratic party is the party of free trade, and that democratic tariff reform means the destruction of protection.

"EYE" CAN SEE.

March 1 saw an end to the deficit and a surplus of about a million dollars. This may vary somewhat, but the probabilities now point to a very substantial surplus for the year. Again are the revolutionists put to rout and the successful operation of our tariff is maintained.

The Dingley law is proving to be more perfect from a revenue standpoint than any tariff law ever enacted. Increased expenditures are met by increased custom duties and internal revenue. Year before last it was the Panama canal payments that caused a deficit, and last year the Cuban treaty and great increase in appropriations for rural free delivery caused a lesser deficit, but now again our receipts exceed our expenditures, and the surplus of 1906 will probably equal the deficit of 1905. Our imports, considering our tariff, are enormous because of the prosperity of the people, because of full employment and high wages. It would be folly to think of revising a tariff that continues to bring such beneficial results both to the treasury and to the people. —Elmore (Minn.) "Eye."

Death of Nora Sargent.

In a copy of the the Phoenix, Arizona, Republican of June 12th, which reached the Gazette yesterday, the following notice appears relative to the death of a former Corvallis girl:

This morning at 9:30 o'clock, on North Center street, a funeral service will be held over the remains of Nora Sargent, a native of Corvallis, Oregon, who died in this city at the Sisters' Hospital Saturday evening. She had been in Phoenix about three months, having come here from Redlands, Cal. She was ill only three days. Her father, Harvey S. Sargent, is the inventor of a gopher gun, and was in Kansas when he received a telegram announcing the serious illness of his daughter. He reached here on the morning of her death. Miss Delta Sargent, a sister, who lives at Pinola, Cal., arrived Sunday morning, but was too late. Miss Sargent, also leaves a mother, Mrs. M. A. Warner, of Portland, and a young brother, Raymond Sargent. Miss Sargent was shortly to have been married to B. E. Peddicord, of Redlands, California.

HORNS OF ALASKAN MOOSE.

Inspire in Mind of Every Intelligent Human Being a Feeling of Genuine Awe.

After all has been said about the horns of the world's greatest horned animals, there are positively none that equal in impressiveness the gigantic mass that crowns the head of a really big Alaskan moose. Take them in situ, as the geologists say, on the head of their rightful owner, and in length, breadth and thickness they inspire in the mind of every intelligent human being a feeling of genuine awe, says W. T. Hornaday, in Scribner's Magazine. I do not see how an intelligent dog or horse can behold a pair of 75-inch moose antlers without being profoundly impressed. The antler springs horizontally from an upper corner of the head, on a stem of solid bone that is like the trunk of a hickory sapling. A foot or so from the burr it throws off toward the front, quite gratuitously as it were, two or three big spurs of bone that are of much use in the fight. As soon as there is room for real development, the main stem flattens out into an enormous slab of bone, perhaps two inches in thickness, from 12 to 18 inches wide, and from two to three feet long. This is the "palmation," and a very appropriate name it is, too; for in the center it is hollowed like a human palm, and studded along its upper edge with from six to twelve fingers and thumbs of solid bone.

In sheer exuberance of strength and excess of horn material an Alaskan moose antler occasionally throws off from the lower surface of its palm, or it may be from the front of the beam, a big, rugged spur root of bone, which always has an extra impressive effect on the beholder. The largest antlers of Alaskan moose are in the Field museum, at Chicago. They have a spread of 78 1/2 inches and weigh 93 1/2 pounds.

Whose Say-so is Best?

With nearly all medicines put up for sale through druggists, one has to take the maker's say-so alone as to their curative value. Of course, such testimony is not that of a disinterested party and accordingly is not to be given the same credit as if written from disinterested motives. Dr. Pierce's medicines, however, form a single and therefore striking exception to this rule. Their claims to the confidence of invalids does not rest solely upon their makers' say-so or praise. Their ingredients are matters of public knowledge, being printed on each separate bottle wrapper. Thus invalid sufferers are taken into Dr. Pierce's full confidence. Scores of leading medical men have written enough to fill volumes in praise of the curative value of the several ingredients entering into these well-known medicines.

Amongst these writers we find such medical lights as Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bonnet Medical College, Chicago; Prof. Hale of the same city; Prof. John M. Sander, M. D., late of Cincinnati, Ohio; Prof. King, M. D., late of Cincinnati, Ohio; Dr. Grover Cox, of New York; Dr. Bartholow, of Jefferson Medical College, of Pa., and scores of others equally eminent.

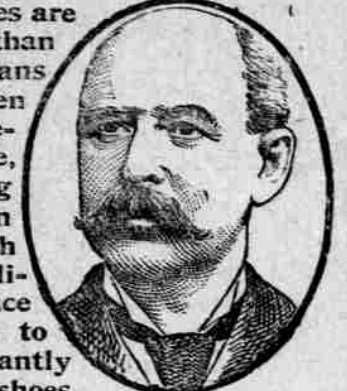

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the most cases of female weakness, prostration, an overversion and retroversion and corrects irregularities, cures painful periods, dries up discharges and weakens drains, sometimes known as pelvic catarrh, and a multitude of other diseases peculiar to women. Bear in mind, it is not a patent nor even a secret medicine, but a special preparation of a regularly educated physician, of large experience in the cure of woman's peculiar ailments, who frankly and confidently takes his patients into his full confidence by telling them just what his "Prescription" is composed of. Of no other medicine put up for woman's special maladies and sold through druggists, can it be said that the maker is not afraid to deal thus frankly, openly and honorably, by letting every patient using the same know exactly what she is taking.
