Erce Lrade Demonstration.

London, Dec. 18.—A great demonstration in favor of free trade was made at Rochdale to-night. John Bright and Thomas Bayley Potter were present. Resolutions were passed thanking Potter for his efforts, and those of free trades with America. Potter made a speech in the United States, to promete free trade with America. Potter made a speech in the United States, in which he said he reciprocated kindly the sentiments expressed by Americans towards Englishmen at many gatherings which he attended in American. He paid a high compliment to the sobriety and fraternal behaviour of the Americans, and concluded by presenting to Bright a number for congratulatory letters from chief American cities, in which hope was expressed that Bright would see American before he died. Bright, in reply, said he could not adequately express his thanks for these letters. He had received hundreds of invitations direct particulars, and the action of the Savage Company was a complete surprise to him. Of course if the Savage ceased pumping the water would rise in Hale & Norcross to the 2000-foot level and prevent all work below. He had not had time to investigate the matter, but should set about it at once. John W. Coleman, in behalf of the managers of the Savage

The break in values which followed the announcement that the pumping machin-ery of the Savage mine was to be shut down had caused so much uneasiness that prominent stockholders and brokers have counseled the management to reconsider their resolution and endeavor to make some arrangement by which a portion of the expense of pumping may be borne by the Hale & Norcross. One great reason for rackrenting is that the tenants may be kept from increasing the size of their holdfrom increasing the size of their holdings. This was not always so. About thirty years ago the landlords thought it would be most profitable to let the land in large farms, and thus oblige the bulk of the population to work as farm laborers. But this plan causes such a great increase in wages that large farms did not pay on account of the cost of working them, and to-day a farm of twenty acres, which may be worked by a farracrand his family, will sell for as mych as a farm twice the size, because "ife latter necessitates hiring laborers." My idea of the settlement of the and question is as follows: I would first fix the yearly value of the holdings, giving the tenant credit for all the improvements. I would denvive the landlord of the power of The Gas Company in a F. 1977.

The directors of the gas company are considerably flurried over the refusal of Auditor Dunn to audit the demands of the company for lighting the streets.

After I have finished my work I hope to spend the remainder of my days in peace and quiet with my family on the banks of the Hudson.

That this was not idle talk was proved by his refusing the nomination of the Democratic party. The battle of Mobile bay is graphically described. At one moment of the fray the Brooklyn, one of the vessels of the fleet, was seen to back by the Admiral on board the flagship Hartford.

The romantic incident of the Admiral's being lashed to the mast has led to conbeing lashed to the mast has led to considerable controversy, says his son. The difference of opinion resulted from the fact that Farragut did not remain long in one position. While the fleet was entering the bay "he was in the port main rigging, where he was secured by the signal quartermaster, as before mentioned. But when the ram made her attack he had returned to the deck, and when the Hartford was about to ram the Tennessee he took up his position in the port mizzen rigging, where, as his flag-lieutenant (now commander). J. C. Watson, says: 'I secured him by a lashing, passed with my own hands, having first begged him not to stand in such an exposed place.' After his return to New Orleans he wrote to one in his confidence:

"Don't give yourself any uneasiness about any one trying to undermine me. I can see as much as any one, but don't choose to act upon it until the time comes. I fortify myself as well as I can, and trust to my honesty for the rest. Some will try to injure me, but I defy them."

Mr. Robinson, the deputy who was in charge of the raiding party, has reached the city, and gives a full account of the affair. He says that it is impossible to over-estimat the utiliance with which the mountainers met the officers.

He says that Berrony is a Frenchman of bravery and ability and shrewaness, and that he has a determined following that fully understands the situation. He says that when he arrested Berrony he said: 'I have two stills and there they are. I've been running them for ten years, and I defy you to take them."
