> THE MUQUI INDIANO Civilized Methods of the Whites Objected

Constant Williams, of the Seventh infantry, forwarded to the headquarters of the department of Colora-io the particulars of the trouble with the Moqui Indians. The Moqui Indians are few in number, and dwell in the mountains of Arizons, about one hundred and fifty miles from Fort Wingate, the nearest military post. They are a peaceful and industrious tribe, but ignorant of all matters outside of their own little villages. It is even said they believe they are the only people in the world with the exception of four companies of United States cavalry that appeared on the occasion of their last outbreak. - Gov. Solomai phtained some progressive ideas from a visit to Washington with two other Moquis about ten years ago. On his return he described the immense numbers of peo ple, the railroads and gigantic buildings he had seen. The Indians, thinking he was crazy, placed him in con Snement for some time. Solomai has never abandoned his desire for reform, and has quietly gathered about him followers that comprise about onethird of the Moquis. Capt. Williams, to ascertain the cause of the disturb ance, visited the villages, and found that it arose from a second attempt of Solomai to adopt the customs of the calefaces. A meeting of the two facions was held in the square of the vilactions stated their case. Gov. Solo nai said he wanted his children to go school and be brought up as white hildren are. When he and the others and done this the hostiles had raised objections, had seized some of their cornfields, and threatened to seize others. They had even gone so far as to threaten to expel them from the town. So Solomai had asked for the envalry to be sent. The hostiles num bered about two-thirds of the tribe, and they were led by one Lomahun gyoma. They were opposed to progress of any kind, and wanted to follow the steps of their forefathers. After Solomai had finished his speech their chief rose to reply. He substantially admitted the truth of Solomai' statement, saying that he and his followers did not want to be civilized or have their children go to school, or to wear white men's clothing or to eat made prisoner at the same time, died | fields at Moencopee because they had belonged to them in former years and had been unlawfully taken away. In the spring he intended to take away more of the fields of the followers of Solomai. He also added that the difficulty could be settled in no other way than by the coming of United States that he had deemed it necessary to ask for two troops of the United States cav-NEW YORK, March 29.-The World alry to be sent there. THE VANISHING MOOSE. Departure of New York's Came for Parts

A deer, when started by a hunter or driven by hounds, usually returns in a few days to the same hill or mountainside where he was first found; but a moose, says Madison Grant in the Century, when once thoroughly alarmed, will start on a long, swinging walk, and, taking with him his entire family, leave for good. It is one of the greatest difficulties-and there are many-in still-hunting this animal, to avoid getting him under way, for them the hunter may as well break camps and try other fields, since not a moose will be found within miles. They scent a moccasin track or the smoke of a fire at an incredible distance. A fresh trail may be found one day and arrangements made to follow it at daybreak on the morrow. During the night the moose, returning to his old haunts, detects the danger-signs, and all the hunters find in the morning is a trail six or eight hours old leading for parts unknown in an almost perfectly straight line. The moose is at that moment, perhaps, twenty miles off and water by hounds like a deer, but will turn savagely to bay, still they will not remain in a locality where dogs are running; so that when the white hunters became numerous in the Nort's woods, and especially when they introduced hounding; the moose simply left. the country and passed either eastward to Maine or northward to

Years later, four or five were brought back to Saranac, but would not stay. The Roman Consul. The most honorable office in the Roman republic was that of consul. There were always two elected every olebeians. The consul must be at east forty-three years old and must have held the office of quaestor, sed le practor. The consuls were the headsof the republic, discharging all public functions, such as receiving ambassa dors or assembling the senate. Their insignia were those of a king except a crown. They were always attended each by twelve lictors or servants, bearing the boxes or bundles rods with an ax in the center. The lictors, however, proceeded only one at a time, the lictors of the other following him. The year was named after them, and any laws passed at their recoinmendation also went by their names. They commanded the armies of the republic, and when both were with the same army they commanded on alter nate days. Under the emperors the office became an empty honor, though surrounded with much greater state.
