Our Poets.

[This space is given for the use and benefit of our local writers of verse, and we hope to make it a pleasing feature of the paper. To that end contributions are solicited, but they must possess undoubted literary merit to obtain place and recognition here. - ED ;

Written for the Scott, |

That flashes in the darkness With truth and strength and power.

Give way before its name, But leaves me weak, uncertain-My troubled breast affame: I feel a trance come o'er me, My powers of thought are gone-'Tis Love that's firmly bound me And tamed me like a fawn.

This once impulsive nature That shunned the living truth, Hath been subdued and gentled By the winged, fickle youth. A girl so fair and lovely, With bright, delightful eyes, Brought down in meck submission That spirit from the skies.

Her shadow fell about me, Her eyes were fixed on mine; I felt their radiant solendor Like sunrays on the brine, Pierce deep into my bosom. Lo! I was stunned and caught. Was mesmerized and caught!

And that unfathomed passion That holds the world in thrall, And overshadows all. The subtle essence, garnered Within the heart's deep cell,

Nor time nor change can e're efface Or check the potent spell.

The contest would have been closer between the O'Mara and Curran but for the fact that the former broke three drills and was detained in taking steel from the hole. This is considered good work by miners as the rock was the very hardest granite. A grand ball at Berrie's hall wound up the evening's entertainment,

James Payne, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Pearl and his neice. Miss Scamons, arrived in town Friday. The ladies were fairly "carried away" with the grandeur of the scenery in and around Cornucopia, and in the afternoon visited the Hope mill and the Union and Companion mines, accompanied by Mr. ana Mrs. Warinner. Down, down to the bottom of the shaft then to the north through the drift, each with a candle to admire the beautifully tinted quartz. With quartzbag in hand these fair ladies nearly loaded themselves down, and after securing all the specimens they could carry, Miss Rea, our photographer, secured a very fine picture of the group on the dump of the mine. It is always a source of pleasure to us to show the wonder-seekers through our mines, and where they are so enthusiastic as was this party, the task is doubly pleasant, for at every step new beauties and wonders present themselves.
