COMETS TAIL TO BRING DESTRUCTION

Massachusetts Scientists Say it is Now Time to Worry.

Scientists of Boston and Cambridge appear to be divided in their opinion as to the effect upon the life of the earth of cyanogen that is believed to be present in the tail of Halley's comet. That cyanogen bands show prominently in the comet's spectra was established at Yerkes observatory. This fact was made known to Camille Flammarion, the French scientist, who ventured the opinion that the gas, which is colorless, poisonous, and has an almondlike odor, may possibly destroy all life on the earth.

The majority of local scientists are not inclined to agree with Flammarion. They believe the gas of the comet's tail is so rarefied that it will be repelled by the earth.

The Truth on "Less."

"Less" Matlock, of the Perkins Hotel, and Fred M. Swift have left for a month's visit to New York. While Matlock said he was going simply for "pleasure and business combined," there is a pretty strong rumor that he will return to Portland some time next month with a bride. The name of the young woman in the case is said to be Miss Sadie Jenkins, of Los Angeles, member of a well known family in the Southern city. Matlock and Swift evaded their friends when they started on their trip, going from Portland to Vancouver, where they boarded the North Bank train. The rumor has it that Matlock is to meet his bride-to-be at Chicago, where the wedding is to take place, and the couple will then continue on to New York staying at the Astor Hotel in that city.—Portland Telegram.

Herders Perish With Flock

On the desert near Donnelly mountain, two men, five dogs and 3,000 sheep lie frozen to death in the snow, according to a recent dispatch from Reno, Nevada. A storm overtook the sheep while far from the corral. Two feet of snow fell, making it impossible for the animals to proceed. They huddled together and froze to death. The herders succumbed with them.

Remembers Comet of '35.

Stock Taking Sale

We are going through our stock. All broken lines and remnants are thrown out on the bargain counter. Come in and see them. There are some good values.

We find we have a few more mens suits and overcoats, ladies and misses suits and coats than we really ought to have at this season of year. We don't want to carry them over and we have decided to cut the price so deeply, that they will move. Come in we wont ask you to buy unless you feel that you are getting the best values you have ever seen.
