

ALL NIGHT BAKERIES.

Where New Yorkers Can Have Wants Supplied at Any Hour.

Among the many places of business of one and another sort that in a great city are kept open all night are bakeries.

The bakery is a peculiarly domestic business establishment, supplying mostly home wants, and as most people work days and sleep nights it might be supposed that there would be no occasion to keep bakeries open nights, but here, where with the city's manifold industries there must be a large number of people working at all times to keep things going, there are bakeries that do keep open and find trade at all hours.

Some of these all night bakeries have lunch room attachments, where people stop in to eat going to or from work, while others do a bakery business only. At either customers come in at all hours of the night to buy things to carry away, just as people do at any hour of the day, for the people who go to work at midnight or at 1, 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning want bread and bakery stuff before they go, just the same as do those who begin their labors at 7, 8 or 9, and there is likely to be in their neighborhood an all night open bakery where they can regularly supply their wants.

From 2 to 5 a. m. are the hours that mark low ebb in the all night bakery trade, but customers are dropping in all night long.—New York Sun.

ANCIENT GUNS.

Remarkable Weapons That Were Used by the Turks and Chinese.

At the siege of Rhodes the Turks constructed mortars by hollowing out cavities in the solid rock at the proper angle, and in the arsenal at Malta is a trophy of the long and glorious defense of Valetta in a Turkish gun, about a six pounder, composed of a copper tube coiled over with strong rope and "jacketed" with rawhide. In the same collection are some antique "quick firers," breechloaders, with small bores and immensely long barrels, like punt guns. The Malay pirates put great trust in the long brass swivel guns called "leas," and in Borneo these leas were used as a kind of currency, large sums being estimated in guns.

The Chinese cast excellent bronze guns (there is a fine specimen of them in Devonport dockyard), but so little did they understand gunnery that in the so-called "opium war" the forts of the Bocca Tigris, defending the Canton river, had the guns built immovably into the walls. The Sikh gunners opposed to England in the two Punjab wars, though they loaded with amazing recklessness, shoveling in the powder from open boxes, stuck to their guns to the last. The blood of the first man killed was smeared on the gun, and the whole detachment died beside it sooner than retreat.—Chambers' Journal.

Too Much of a Tonic.

When Mr. Chinchin returned home from Chinchin & Chinchin's the other day he found his wife lying worn out upon the sofa.

"Nothing wrong, I hope!" he exclaimed.

"I'm afraid I shall have to stop that tonic the doctor prescribed for Tommy," Mrs. Chinchin faintly murmured.

"Why? Isn't he any better?" asked Chinchin.

"Oh, yes, but I think the tonic must be too invigorating. Why, he has slid down the banisters six times this morning, broken the hall lamp, two vases, a water jug and a looking glass, tied a tin can to the cat's tail and scribbled his name on the drawing room paper. Of course it's very gratifying, but I don't feel I could stand much more, so I think I'll stop the tonic."

Bats Inside Bamboos.

The cutting down of a clump of bamboos in the royal botanical gardens, Singapore, shows that the hollows in the stems of these plants may afford a dwelling place for bats. On the splitting of a joint three bats flew out, and it was perceived that others were within. Care was taken to prevent further escape, and later examination of the joint revealed the presence of twenty-three bats in the hollow. Four of these were adult females and nineteen young ones. Other bamboo joints were also found to contain a number of bats. The species is known as Vesperugo pacypus.—London Scraps.

The Proper Question.

The man with the glassy eye and preternaturally solemn demeanor put down a sovereign at the booking office at Charing Cross and demanded a ticket. "What station?" snapped the booking clerk. The would-be traveler stammered himself. "What stations have you?" he asked, with quiet dignity.—London Globe.

A Criticism.

"He said this skirt of mine was a perfect symphony."
"Maybe, but it's not well conducted."
"What do you mean?"
"It drags."—Cleveland Leader.

The Real Want.

"What we want is a square deal."
"Oh, we'll compromise on that in a pinch. What we really want is a shade the best of it."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Insincere.

"Oh, John, don't you wish we could sit here and spoon forever?"
"Yes, dearest. But let's go now. I think I hear the dinner bell!"—Boston Post.

It costs the devil little trouble to catch the lazy man.—German Proverb.

Things Theatrical.

Franklin Rifeble has been engaged for a prominent role in "Israel."

Trixie Frignanza is making a tour of the country in Cohan's "American Iden."

Eva Tanguy is giving a new song and dance in Ziegfeld's "Follies of 1909."

Stella Mayhew has been engaged by Lew Fields to play in his production, "Old Dutch."

Ethel Levey captured a London audience on her first appearance in the English metropolis.

Mabel Tallaferro has sent out dainty circulars requesting her friends of the public to know her in future as "Nell."

The report is cheering the profession that there is such a demand for actors in the productions of the season that there are few idle ones.

Law Points.

A sale of the good will of a partnership business in connection with a sale of the business is held in Southworth versus Davison, 106 Minn., 119; 115 N. W., 363; 19 L. R. A. (N. S.), 739; to bind the members thereof individually as well as copartners.

The surplus arising from a foreclosure sale of decedent's real estate after his death is held in Kitchens versus Jones, 57 Ark., 502; 113 S. W., 29; 19 L. R. A. (N. S.), 723, not to be personally within the operation of a statute allowing the widow and minor children a certain sum out of personality left by him.

The Cossacks.

All know what the Cossack cavalry of the czar are, but not all are aware how these famous soldiers got their name. It is derived from the Slavonic word kos (scythe). In early times when the rude and hardy peasantry of Russia went to war with any neighboring country for want of other offensive weapons they were compelled to use their scythes, which circumstance gained for them the cognomen of Cossacks (scythemen).

Hissed Into Slumber.

A curious remedy for sleeplessness is used by the inhabitants of the Samoan islands. They confine a snake in a hollow bamboo, and the hissing sound emitted by the reptile is said to quickly induce slumber.

The Stinging Ray.

The stinging ray possesses two large pouches in which it secretes soles and other fish upon which it preys. It has a long whiplike tail, terminating in a forked end, which contains its sting and is its weapon of offense and defense. It has a huge liver that yields an oil which is esteemed a valuable specific for burns.

Printed Books.

The earliest example of a book printed on both sides of the leaf with metal type dates from 1469. The first book printed with a date was a Latin psalter, 1457.

Dog Sacrifices.

Numerous accounts have been given, both in ancient and modern times, of the sacrificing of dogs for religious purposes. They were immolated at certain periods by the Greeks and Romans to almost all their deities, particularly to Mars, Pluto, Minerva and Proserpine; also they were offered to the moon, because the dog by his baying disturbs all charms and spells and frightens away specters and apparitions.

All Gags and the Veterinary.

Now list to the tale of All Gags Ben Moustafa's beautiful horse. No soldier of all the rolling sands owned half so fine an animal. Yet the horse had one defect that made it practically useless to the warlike All Gags—it feared the sound of firearms. One day All Gags took it to a famous veterinary. This wise man examined the horse and then in less than a minute cured it of its restiveness, so that a gunshot which formerly would have made it quiver like a reed now went all unheeded.

"Wonderful!" cried All Gags. "I would give 100 pieces of silver to learn that remedy."

"Done!" said the doctor calmly, and then, after carefully depositing the money in a little leathern pouch, he drew a roll of cotton from each of the horse's ears.

Some of the oriental modes of salutation are very peculiar. For instance, in central Tibet the custom is for the saluter to stick out his tongue, hold his right ear, rub his left hip and bow deeply, all these motions being carried on at once. Certainly the other fellow need have no fear of personal assault from the subject of these curious antics. Less ludicrous, but equally reassuring, is the Chinese custom of rubbing noses on bended knees. The salutation of profound bow of India and the Mohammedan countries serves a similar purpose.—St. Nicholas.

Illustrated Proverbs.

This game must be prepared for in advance by cutting from advertisements, papers and magazine pictures or parts of woodcuts and pasting them on cards to illustrate what has been defined as "the wisdom of the many in the wit of one."

Seven days in a row, with the name of a day of the week under each one, may stand for "Every dog has his day;" a shapely new pair of shoes, "All's well that ends well;" a man's and woman's head approaching each other as if to kiss, "Two heads are better than one."
