Yesterday afternoon was presented the annual spectacle of a rainstorm coming from the north. On the Washington territory side all was dark and the low-hanging storm clouds shut off the hills from view till presently the drops came dancing down, the shower passing off to the southwest. Coming from the direction it did, 'tis probable this is the last of the welcome showers of June.

The Oregonian reports the discovery of rich mines in Clackamas county. Specimens of rock are exhibited in Portland which go $200 to the ton in gold and silver. The locality of the discovery is in the Cascade mountains, about eight miles south of Table rock, on a tributary of the south fork of a stream known as Henry creek, which makes into the main fork of the Molalla one mile above Ogale creek. The discovery promises to be the means of starting a mining boom in Clackamas county.

The closing exercises of school district No. 1, were held in the principal's room yesterday afternoon and were attended by a very large number of parents and friends. STATE AND TERRITORIAL NEWS.

The corner stone of the new Clackamas court house was laid at Oregon City last Thursday with impressive Masonic ceremonies.

Joseph Drake, convicted of the murder of David Swartz, was on the 25th, at Salem, sentenced to be hanged on the 13th day of August next.

Leuel Scott has brought suit in the state circuit court through his attorney, W. M. Gregory, to recover from J. A. Chapman, mayor of Portland, the sum of $200, which he alleges to be due him for professional services rendered.

On Friday last the bridge over the Snake river at Ainsworth, costing over $2,000,000 received its final touch from the workmen, and the structure was finally turned over to the N. P. R. Co., says the Walla Walla Journal. All the construction machinery was stored at Ainsworth.

The man Henry, charged with others with complicity in the murder of David Swartz near Salema a few weeks since, pleaded guilty to the crime of man slaughter before Judge Boise of the third judicial district on the 26th, and was sentenced to imprisonment for life in the Oregon state penitentiary.

Suit has been begun in the United States circuit court by Robert Bragg of San Francisco against the city of Portland to recover damages for the infringement of a patent. He claims that he is the inventor and patentee of an improvement in pump attachments for engines, hoists, and also a device for releasing horses, operated by alarms, and that these inventions have been applied in the engine houses of that city.

Printers' Picnic: The printers' picnic at Salema on the 4th is going to be a grand affair. The freemen at the state capital will stand in and have a tournament. In their horse contest carts to carry 350 feet of hose, reeled in continuous line, all couplings to be screwed up. Run 600 feet to hydrant. Lay 300 feet of hose, unspool and screw up pipe and secure water. Time to be taken when water leaves the pipe. Twelve men, including foreman, to constitute the team. Free to all. First prize, $50; second prize, $25; third prize, keg of beer and box of cigars.

The list of premiums to be given by the printers is characteristic. First, comes one to the tallest lady on the grounds, one can of tea.

To the swiftest lady compositor in the city, bronze image of "Summer."

To the tallest gentleman on the grounds, a handsome cane.

For the handsomest bouquet furnished by a lady, one year's subscription to the Statesman.

For the best cake presented the committee on prizes, Japanese tray.

To the winner of the "go-as-you-please" match, bicycles and four-footed animals barred out, one bottle wine.

To the winner of the 200-yard foot race for boys under 12 years of age, pearl handle pocket-knife.

To the winner of the 100-yard foot race for residents of Salema, a handsome badge and $10 in coin.

For the highest running jump, bottle of wine.

For the highest standing jump, a ham. For the honest printer on the grounds, General Orell and C. B. Moore's buried out, one butcher knife.

To the handsomest married lady on the grounds, perfume case.

To the printer having the largest feet, a china coffee cup.

The person on the grounds with the boldest head will be presented with a year's subscription to the Willamette Farmer.

The nicest looking elderly lady on the grounds will be presented with a bouquet cake dish.

To the most popular old maid upon the grounds, a nojolan flower pot.

To the most popular bachelor on the grounds, a box of cigars.

To the widow with the largest family of children, a load of oak wood.

To the young lady most anxious to get married, a five-pound box of candy.

To the young man most anxious to become a Benedict, a rubber doll.

To the most exquisite dude upon the grounds, a hand glass.

Just Like the Sea: A dozen small boys were playing in a back yard when one of them suddenly exclaimed: "Say, fellows, let's play nominating a president."

"All right."

"I'm agreed," chorused the juveniles. Two names were put in nomination and a vote was taken with the following result: Fuggs, 2; Nugby, 10; and the winner was the woodsman had to dig as well as chop. In consequence of this they are rather costly, and the 400 knees are worth $4,000. They are consigned to W. J. Adams, of San Francisco. This is a new and growing industry, but this country can and will have to supply ships' knees for the whole Pacific coast shortly. The timber in California is being cut away so rapidly that even now it is difficult matter to obtain timber suitable for this purpose.—News.

"HE LOST HIS GRIP."

The Value of Grip to a Struggling Man: It used to be said of a man in the mines when he became discouraged, downcast and disinclined to labor, plain or project and very much inclined to get drunk whenever he had a chance, "he's lost his grip."

There seems a great deal of hidden meaning and force in many of these phrases which are evolved, not out of dictionaries or the closets of pedants, but from the situations, necessities, emergencies and results of every-day life.

Because a hopeful and energetic man or woman, full of enterprise and plan, takes a firmer hold or grip on life. You may see it in their resolute walk and carriage, by the manner in which each foot-step is planted, and when they shake hands with you they take your hand as if they meant something by it.

It seems to me that getting this "grip" on life is yet an untaught science; that there is a quality of the mind born of resolution and decision, whereby this grip is maintained; that it is of vast importance it should be better understood and comprehended; that disease and weakness, first mental, next physical, comes of losing the grip; and that it is a matter to be considered, both with reference to the "here" and the hereafter.

I think a good "grip" on life will help to cure almost any failing and any disease. Doctors will tell you and many of us know of people who ought to have died, according to all the rules of medical science, long ago, but who wouldn't die because they said they wouldn't, and they didn't. They never let go their "grip" on life.

GETTING A GOOD GRIP: It is wonderful what a strengthening effect a word may have on a person's mind as regards holding his "grip." You see to yourself in time of difficulty, doubt and discouragement, "I will," "I will," "I will," do this and so, and keep on from time to time repeating these words, and you seem to call life yourself at last a power—a power of will which helps to remove the trouble. You laugh, of course, at this and say, "that's all imagination." Of course, laugh away. It will do you good. Try to keep the next time you want to climb out of the dumps, say "I will climb out of this mire." Keep on saying it. See if it does not help you to climb.

You need to eat, perhaps, for your heart is heavy, your body weak, your will ditto, your appetite gone, the world a vale of tears and life a burden. A "heavy heart" means literally and physically a heavy and cast-down brain, for if you could examine that useful organ at such times you might find it was below its proper place; that it was not pumping blood with its accustomed energy, and that the blood about it was more or less congested and of sluggish motion, all of which causes give that peculiar pain and heaviness known as "heartache." Of course if the heart does not pump properly neither will the stomach, and if the stomach does not work what will work inside of us? Our organs are much like one of bricks—upset one and the rest follow suit.

It is very important that things do work properly inside of us in order that we may properly work things outside.

WHAT IS GRIP? Call it will. What will I do not know? I know the quality of which each person has more or less, and is a very desirable quality. A person having it in plenty and knowing it, and knowing the necessity for its use, can do great deeds in the world. It will set us up as a power, and there is good reason to believe that it may be increased by cultivation, or by willing to have more will. There is reason to believe that its quality for clearing the system, purifies the blood, regulates the liver and acts on the bowels. Breaks up colds, Chills and Fever, etc. Strengthens the organs on which it acts better than bitter, nauseous Liver medicines, pills, salts and draughts. Sample bottles free, and large bottles for sale by W. E. Dement & Co., Astoria.

ACROSS THE CONTINENT.

Oregon and Transcontinental stock is down to 74.

Cholera is decimating the inhabitants of southern France.

Thus far not a single bill affecting any of the territories has passed congress, though many have been presented.

A demonstration favoring the nomination of General Butler for the presidency was held in Faneuil hall, Boston on Thursday night. About 1,500 persons were present.

The river and harbor bill, as reported to the senate, is greater by $1,233,000 than the house bill. The following are among the new items added: Improving Coos bay, Oregon, $25,000; Cumberland river, above Nashville, $30,000; Cedar river, Michigan, $15,000; mouth of the Columbia river, Oregon and Washington territory, $150,000; mouth of the Coquille river, Oregon, $10,000.

Ha Noi dispatches state that the Chiue regulars, with artillery, have entrenched themselves at Laogon, in vicinity of the French, and attacked the French forces on Monday, on the march, killing and wounding forty-two. General Megroill immediately set out with reinforcements. General Miles telegraphs that the French numbered 700 and were on the way to Laogon. Though greatly outnumbered, they routed the Chinese.

Bismarck, in the course of a speech in Berlin on the 26th inst., said: "I would round the house that some time ago an outbreak and second war between France and Germany was generally expected, and that an inclination thereof existed everywhere. Nevertheless, our relations with France are now as cordial and amicable as with any other country. There exists complete trust in reciprocal treatment, and in our mutual order. I am pleased at having an opportunity for mentioning this fact."

The majority report of the committee on public lands in the house declares forfeited certain lands granted to the Northern Pacific road, and is a lengthy document. The substance is that congress possesses the power to declare forfeiture of lands, and sound public policy requires it should be exercised. The provisions of the bill on which the report is made, apply to that portion of the main line from Wallula, Washington Territory, to Portland, Oregon, 214 miles, and that portion of the branch line from Ainsworth to Puget sound, 180 miles.
