PROCTOR KNOTT.

How His Famous Speech on Duluth Was Inspired.

Proctor Knott had no idea that his speech on Duluth would make his reputation. Relating the story of the speech he says: "A lobbyist called upon me and told me that a bill would soon come up to improve the harbor of Duluth. I asked him to tell me where Duluth was. I knew, of course, its situation, but I wanted him to understand that I thought but little of his bill and he was thus able to refuse his request. He did not see my irony, but he put his hand in his breast pocket and pulled out a map. Here was the whole civilized world drawn in circles, and these circles grew smaller and smaller until at last they terminated in a dot at the center, and on that dot was printed the word 'Duluth.' These were hundred-mile circles, and the distances of all the great cities of the country were noticed, and their small dots looked like hamlets compared with Duluth. To look at that map you would suppose that if you wanted to go to Liverpool, London or Constantinople you'd have first to go to Duluth for your start; and on the map were printed statistics showing that there were 2,000,000 square miles about that point, all tributary to Duluth. The bland young man delivered his eulogy of this mighty embryonic city, and I saw as he did so the chance for some fun in the house. I asked him to leave the map, and said that I lived on a little creek in Kentucky and that most of my people had never seen a ship. He did this, and he suspected nothing, saying: 'Mr. Knott, I hope you will study that map and go for our bill.' I replied, 'I will go for it,' but I never saw him again. As I thought more over the matter the fun grew upon me, and I found that I could make my speech on the land bill and bring in Duluth. I went to the library and prepared some of the best parts of the humor, and I intended it only as an introduction to my more sober speech. When I got the floor I found the house with me, and when my time was extended I could not go up from the ridiculous to the sublime. I went on with the humor and dropped the serious oration, and the speech over which I had spent days of labor was never delivered. The greater part of the humorous speech was the result of the inspiration of the moment, and while I made it I never thought that it would put the country upon a broad grin. I was astonished the next day to find everyone talking about it, and that my friends at the capital congratulated me upon it."

Helping the Right Side.

To help the right side is not only commendable in a general point of view, but is judicious and prudent when that help is enlisted in behalf of the right side of the body, just over the lower ribs in the region of the liver. The most efficient help is afforded by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, an anti-bilious medicine of incomparable efficacy. Inaction of the liver is accompanied by constipation, sick-headache, fatigued tongue, nausea, occasional vertigo, an unpleasant breath, yellowness of the skin and ball of the eye. The author of these symptoms, liver complaint, routed by the Bitters is accompanied by them in its flight. Fever and ague, which always involves the liver, dyspepsia, rheumatism, debility and kidney troubles are all malaises to the early relief and final cure of which this standard medicine is adapted. Don't use it by fits and starts, but systematically, that its full effects may result in a perfect restoration of health.

Though well over seventy, Prince Bismarck still works as hard as he did when he was twenty years younger. He never goes to bed until 2 o'clock in the morning and eats a hearty supper before midnight.

Tonic, Alterative and Cathartic.
Simmons Liver Regulator cures malaria, biliousness, dyspepsia, headache, constipation and piles. It is most effective in starting the secretions of the liver, causing the bile to act as a purge. When there is an excess of bile in the stomach, the Regulator is an active purge; after the removal of the bile it will regulate the bowels and impart vigor and health to the whole system.

It is believed the president will tender William T. Coleman the position of chief commissioner to the New South Wales exposition.

We believe that every case of pulmonary disease, if treated in time, may be relieved and cured by Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Productiveness.

An idea of the productiveness of the northwestern soil may be gleaned from the following, found in the columns of the Northwest Horticulturalist: A. J. Burr, of Olympia, W. T., raised five barrels of cranberries on a bed 50 feet square. W. T. Wright of Milton, Oregon, sold this season 12,000 pounds of grapes from one and one half acres of land. One acre of strawberries produced 3,600 pounds; 1,000 pounds of blackberries grew on one-third of an acre. Robert Locke, of Hillhurst, W. T., raised over 500 bushels of potatoes to the acre, and 30 tons of cabbage to the acre. A. W. Hidden, Vancouver, W. T., has a three acre prune orchard that gave him a net income of $1,800 in one season. James Biles, of Olympia, W. T., has raised the Royal Ann cherry that produced from 400 to 500 pounds to each tree after they were 12 years old, and peaches that produced as high as eight boxes to a tree. Seth Lewelling, of Milwaukee, Oregon, has 54 cherry trees, from which he gathered, in one season, 11,000 lbs. of cherries.

"Are you the man who compiled a list of deadboats?"
"Yes, sir, but if I made any mistakes."
"You run in my name as being able to pay but wouldn't do it."
"Yes, sir, but."
"Here's $25 for you. That send off got me a job as treasurer of a dramatic company."

Cancers, and cancerous tumors, are cured by the purifying effects of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

It is true that the busiest man is often the happiest man, but he often doesn't have time to realize it.
