

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1889.

A STRIKE among the seamen and firemen on ocean steamers now going on in England has begun to be felt at Boston, where men claiming to represent English sailors are preventing vessels from obtaining crews.

The Chicago Globe asserts that less than 30 per cent. of the population of that city is foreign. Further, that the bulk of the foreign population is industrious and law abiding, the anarchists and their congeners being only an insignificant portion.

It is said that the trustees of a heavily mortgaged church in Lincoln, Neb., in order to raise money to clear the debt, sold advertising space on the walls of the auditorium and that "handsome advertising cards appear in conspicuous places, the charge being $5 and the agreement including an endorsement from the pulpit."

PRUSSIA has a bored well that furnishes fresh water, salt water, and gas for illumination. The fresh water comes up from the depth of 100 feet, the other water and gas come up from the depth of 2,000 feet. A pipe has been put down that brings up only the salt water and gas, while the fresh water issues up on the outside of the pipe.

THE Canadian government will soon adopt a policy of hostility against immigration. All alien laborers, except British, will be prohibited from coming to Canada, and the funds which the dominion government has hitherto granted in aid of immigration, amounting in the aggregate to a quarter of a million sterling, will be withdrawn.

The heirs of Colonel Nicholas Lotz, who died in the last century, have held a meeting at Reading, Penn., and have taken steps to sue the government for $17,000,000. Lotz, it seems, furnished the American army with hay during the revolution, for which he was never paid. His descendants will probably have Lotz of trouble in collecting the money.

PAPER doors are said to be great improvements over wooden ones. They are formed of two thick paper boards, stamped and molded into panels and glazed together with glue and potash and then rolled through heavy rollers. After being covered with a water proof coating and one that is fireproof, they are painted, varnished and hung in their usual way.

THERE is a deed on record in the clerk's office at Gainesville, Ga., which conveys to the purchaser all the land south of the grantor's door. The grantor or maker lived near Clarke Creek church, and the deed covers all the surface of the earth south of that point. If the heirs of the purchaser could hold the premises conveyed, the Rothschilds, Vanderbilts and Goulds would be the veriest beggars compared with them.

It Came at Last.

Near the corner of Wall and Pearl street New York thirty-nine years ago, editor David M. Stone of the Journal of Commerce noticed a strong odor of gas from the street. He made a complaint when the odor became unbearable, in December, 1849, again in 1850, once in 1851, once in 1856 and again in 1888, but all these were fruitless. He also made during these years numberless appeals to the police, board of health and other authorities, but they disregarded his requests. For ten years the street has been so permeated with gas that if a cobblestone were lifted out the odor would be noticed for many blocks. But editor Stone has had his revenge in a quiet way. Last Tuesday afternoon the heavy iron covering of an electric conduit manhole near the place of the leak and the stones of the pavement for six or eight feet on three sides of it went up into the air, and the shock of the explosion was felt throughout the neighborhood. No one happened to be passing and no one was killed. The gas had evidently leaked into the vacant space and the electric wire had ignited it. The manhole is being repaired, but the gaspipe will be left. An adjoining building may be the scene of the next explosion. Editor Stone the next day published in his editorial columns a long leader on the subject, telling of his many attempts to get the leak repaired since 1849.

The Postmaster's Ordeal.

"This is terrible," moaned the postmaster at Chugglesville, as he mopped the perspiration from his forehead. "When does the"—began a man at the window. "Next mail from Indianapolis gets in at 2:30," announced the suffering postmaster, interrupting him. "How did you know what I wanted?" gasped the man at the window. "Haven't I answered that question fifty times to-day?" wailed the postmaster. "Don't I know that half the Republicans in this town are trying to get my post-office away from me? It's awful to talk on this subject, so please go away.—Chicago News.

A Scrap of Paper Saves Her Life. It was just an ordinary scrap of wrapping paper, but it saved her life. She was in the last stages of consumption, told by physicians that she was incurable and could live only a short time; she weighed less than seventy pounds. On a piece of wrapping paper she read of Dr. King's New Discovery, and got a sample bottle; it helped her, she bought a larger bottle, it helped her more, bought another and grew better fast, continued its use and is now strong, healthy, rosy, plump, weighing 140 pounds.
