The Tidings is in receipt of a fine box of Evergreen strawberries, just ripe off the vines, raised by J. L. Harner on his Oak street home place. They are beauties and are of the variety that sometimes ripens so late that they are on the table at the Christmas dinner. Mr. Harner is supplying us with a number of these fine plants for our family berry patch.

Dr. F. G. Swedenburg has purchased the property on the Boulevard owned by Mrs. Wilson, which he will remodel and occupy for a residence.

GREAT DOUBLE BILL AT VINING

"The Trap," which comes to the Vining theater Friday with Olive Tell in the leading role was rendered conspicuous at the outset by the fact that it was written by Richard Harding Davis, the master of the dramatic situations, assisted by Jules Eckert Goodman, Frank Riecher who directed the production, is a student of dramatic suspense, and was himself a well-known player of the speaking stage, having appeared in Shakespearean roles for many years with Sothern and Marlowe. He is regarded as one of the ablest authorities on Shakespeare in America.

The action in "The Trap," a Universal production, takes place in the Yukon, during the gold-rush days, and reverts to New York. The wild, picturesque scenery of the Klondike, the habits of the men and women who went there to cajole the yellow harpy gold are portrayed with intense realism, it is said. The subsequent events, which transpire in New York, reflect the plot strength of the Davis story. In bas-relief to the plot and action are the photographic possibilities present when depicting homes of wealth. The aggressive methods of the men who vie with each other for a place in New York's business world, are faithfully portrayed.

On the same bill is Charlie Chaplin in Sunnyside. Many funny scenes—depicting life on the farm as he sees it.

Mrs. Pat Doran is moving today from Rogue River to Ashland to reside, and is occupying the house belonging to Mrs. Sloan on Helman street.

Earl Utter has accepted the office of messenger for the Western Union Telegraph company, in place of Jack Brady, who resigned to enter high school.

Many Ex-Service Men Will Enter College

Ashland will furnish a large number of students to the various state institutions of learning this year, according to reports coming in. Among these will be a number of ex-service boys who will take advantage of the state soldiers' educational law recently going into effect, and will enter some one of the colleges in the state. Some of these have had some time in college, which was interrupted by the war, while others realize the advantages to be derived from college training and are leaving good positions in order to enter school this year. The university of Oregon and the Oregon Agricultural college have the preference among these students going out, although several will continue their course in colleges already commenced.

The following ex-service men are known to be planning on going to college this year: J. H. Jones, Meredith Beaver, Oscar Silver, Oliver Anderson, A. M. Thronson, V. Ward Hammond, Fred Schuerman, Harold and Glenn Simpson, Neil Shinn and Robert Keller. There will probably be others whose intentions have not been learned.

Edmund Barrett will also return to O. A. C. this year. He, however, is entitled to government educational compensation on account of disability received in the war.

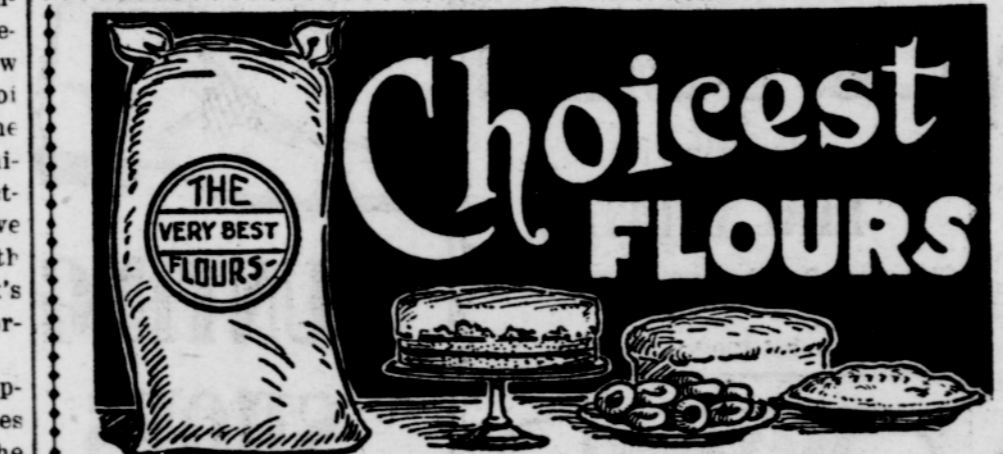

Many other Ashland young people expect to enter college somewhere his year. Those who have made final arrangements are Elmer Bagley, Harley Holmes, Chester MacCracken, Lyle Sams, Lilly Poley, Edith Herrin, Lottie Morthland and Marquerite Hammond. A number of others are thinking about it and talking seriously of entering college and will no doubt decide to do so at the opening of the year.
