That said judgment be decreed to be a specific lien against Lots 15, 16, 17 and 18 in Block "P" of the Railroad Addition to the City of Ashland, in Jackson County, Oregon, from and since August 3rd, 1911, the date of the recording of the Mortgage executed by said defendant, Arthur Conklin, by his wife to E. ARMY MEN BRING NEW IDEAS ON STOCK FEEDING

Spring the war enlisted men from American farms learned several things from European countries about intensive farming. Returning, they brought ideas which have since been exploited to the profit of American agriculturists in general.

Among other things they learned how the butter and cheese exporting countries of Europe—Belgium, Switzerland, Holland and Denmark—have been so highly successful in feeding milk cows and fattening livestock for market. These countries have long been using enormous quantities of cocoanut meal for this purpose—the residue of cocoanuts after their oil has been extracted for sommercial purposes.

The Palmolive company, manufacturers of a well-known, high grade soap containing cocoanut oil, have lately put on the market a stock food called Kaola Meal, which they manufacture from the white meat of cocoanuts after the oil for the soap has been extracted. Being a by-product, Kaola Meal is offered cheap to the customer in comparison with other fattening foods, and it has proved highly effective where it has been given in quantities amounting to 25 per cent of the regular grain diet of calves, sheep, poultry and pigs. It is also an unfailing milk-producer. Moreover, our soldier-farmers are beginning to copy the example of the French war department which found that cocoanut meal was better for their horses than oats, and they now feed Kaola to farm horses.

Farm animals nowadays are developing tastes for fancy, high grade, imported foods, almost equivalent to the whims of human beings for delicacies in their diet. But when such foods are productive of a condition in their animals far superior to that of old-time livestock which used to plug along on the same old grain and grass ration the whole year through, farmers find these foods are much more desirable for their stock—and profitable too when the fattener is so inexpensive as Kaola Meal.
