A choice selection of books for young people has just arrived and these will be placed where parents can call and look them over in case they wish to buy books for Christmas gifts for their children. The object in having the exhibit at an early date is to allow dealers to have time to order any books wanted that they do not possess in their stock. MELBOURNE.—A vigilance committee of 2000 has been organized in the city of Brisbane, for the active suppression of all disloyal movements. The resignation of C. W. Root as councilman from the Second ward was read at the meeting of the city council last night. Mr. Root has been compelled to abandon work of that sort on account of his health, and as it is difficult for him to attend the councilman's duties devolving upon him he desired to resign in favor of some other representative of his ward. G. M. Frost was appointed in Mr. Root's place last evening and was sworn into office.

Previous to taking possession of the Ashland F. E. French, the new proprietor, purchased a lot of new machinery and equipment to take the place of the antiquated machinery that has heretofore done the work in that establishment. Since taking over the plant he has been busy installing this and fitting up the plant until it presents an entirely different appearance. Among the improvements are two new press machines which take the place of hand ironing and do the work of three persons to each machine. A new yoke and neckband press machine has been installed, as has also a new washing machine. All these additions are run by steam. Mr. French is contemplating many other additions and improvements to his plant, which he aspires to make one of the most modern and up-to-date laundries on the coast. He has a large force of employes engaged at the present.

George Irwin and H. H. Bechtell, while coming up the highway on loads of hay a day or two ago, saw a meteor fall, and apparently light somewhere in the section of Frederick, about two and one-half miles north of here. As it was between one and two o'clock in the afternoon of a bright sunny day the men did not see the "shooting star" until it was near the earth, but as it flashed across their vision directly in front of them it was clearly outlined between the hay wagons and the pine trees beyond. According to Mr. Irwin it appeared to be a ball of fire about the size of a baseball with a tail of colored sparks. The men searched a bit around that section trying to locate the landing place of the meteor, but failed to locate it.

MONDAY'S NEWS

Members of the council, together with Mayor Lamkin and Water Commissioner Hosler, made a tour up Ashland canyon yesterday morning with a view to investigating the various reservoir sites to be in readiness against the time when Ashland's water supply will have to be increased. They visited the site located on the west fork, as the nearest and most accessible. This, the council claim, is a splendid location for a reservoir. It is only about a mile and a half above the reservoir on the left fork.

The councilmen found also that it will require an immense amount of work to erect new reservoirs farther up the canyon. Roads will have to be made, timber cut out and various preliminary work gone through before the actual labor of building the dam is started. The chances are that the council will have the lower dam enlarged and meter the city. This will probably be done next spring.

Home Billings received a letter this week from a friend in Seattle containing a clipping from the Seattle Post-Intelligencer which relates of a party from San Diego who claim to have found in the Ashland free auto camp the best accommodations to be found on a 4000 mile trip. The article is as follows:

ASHLAND, Or., Sept. 6.—A. Ammon, wife and family were visitors at the free auto camp here yesterday. They have made over 4000 miles on this summer's trip from their home in San Diego, having visited Yellowstone and Glacier national parks, and are now homeward bound.

They boast a complete set of Good-year tires which have traveled 5000 miles without even a puncture or a blowout, and are apparently good for as many more miles, "which is going some," says Mr. Ammon, "considering the poor condition of the roads on account of paving in Oregon and Washington this year."

They stopped over for a day at the Ashland camp, which they say to be the best they have found on the Coast. The camp is located along a sparkling, lively mountain stream in beautiful, accessible Lithia park, a hundred-acre natural park which has within its confines springs of soda, sulphur, lithia and pure artesian waters.
