

BROAD-AXE.

Our Outing.

Or Friday of last week we took passage on board a buggy for the picnic grounds situated 25 miles south of Eugene, on Silk creek, 3 miles west of Cottage Grove, which was to be held on Saturday following. We had not passed over the route from Eugene to Cottage Grove so as to take a proper view of the country for twenty five years before. Of course we had passed over it by rail at the rate of 30 miles per hour. But this gave us no opportunity to get anything more than a general view. To get a proper outline of things along this route, one should have taken a very sturdy horse hitched to a vehicle, take up the lines and, going leisurely and stop at the towns and see the people, talk with them and observe their stock, fine residences, stately barns and out-houses, their wide acres of grain, their orchards, hop fields, vineyards and berry patches and the general air of neatness, system and thrift and comfort that pervade the scene on every hand.

We did this, and the result is that we love Oregon, and more especially the Coast Fork country of Lane county more than ever. For we do think there is no spot on our green earth that is richer in soil climate, resources, for homes and in all that goes to contribute to the health and pleasure of a people.

For pure water, the Coast Fork of the Willamette river cannot be excelled; for bright sunshine and exhilarating air and magnificent scenery this time of the year, this locality is all that heart can wish.

We would like to speak of the village of Goshen, situated 8 miles south of Eugene, and of the town of Creswell in particular, but space forbids saying more than that Goshen boasts a railroad station, a warehouse, a church and a fine school house, a hotel, a post office and several neat residences, surrounded by a rich country of farm and pasture lands.

Creswell is situated some 4 miles further on. Here you will be struck by the size and pretensions of this town. And we were not astonished that the people of this town have had an ambition to make it the county seat instead of Cottage Grove, in the event this county is ever divided, as Cottage Grove has a sort of an inclination to have done some day. But we warn Cottage Grove, if ever they succeed in dividing the county, for Creswell has the seat if she gets the county to put it on.

We were struck with the evidences of business and push which we saw at Creswell during our three hours stay there. There are two full stores at this place and a drug store. The two merchants, Dr. Scarborough and J. H. Whiteaker were very busy most of the time we were there—busy out on the grass in front of Whiteaker's store; busy at a game of chess. It appears from reports that those gentlemen have had a set cent-st like Henry Clay and Lord Sumbeley of England, who played across the ocean by letter, which ended after a three years hard contest (only Whiteaker and Scarborough don't play by letter but by hand) and is to be terminated in the indefinite future.

We noticed a customer call at the doctor's store, but he being absent across the street in front of Whiteaker's store with the chess board on his hand and his antagonist's knees, the customer came on over to Whiteaker's store; and succeeded in getting what he wanted after waiting for some time for the players to make some important moves. Oh, Creswell is a business place, and don't you forget it.

We inquired here for some nourishment, such as soda, beer, or a good cigar, but we were told they didn't deal in such luxuries. And in answer to our question as to what they did for comfort in that town, Jim Whiteaker simply pecked his lower lip with the side of his hand as he puffed a volume of smoke from between his lips and said "See Webster's Dictionary." We were unable to determine whether he meant that comfort was in the pipe or the dictionary.

But our horse not having had any water since leaving town, and not out on the grass and do more business from behind their counters. Well, we proceeded on our way and soon entered upon a stretch of country for the distance of some 7 or 8 miles where the valley widens out; where lies a block of some of the finest farms to be met anywhere in Oregon. Here are hundreds of acres of wheat just heading; hop yards, orchards, vegetable gardens and splendid mansions, barns and out-houses, floral gardens, shrubbery and all the display that women of refinement and taste can devise, are seen on every hand.

But we must get on up to Lena-ti, which by some kind of hocus pocus—which no one can tell just how—is simply east side of Cottage Grove, or that part of this lovely little city which lies on that side of the river.

Here we arrived at sun set, and put up our faithful horse, "Black Dick," at Homeaway Bro's livery stable, who cared for Dick in just such a manner as any gentlemen who reads the BROAD-AXE will always treat a gentleman-horse like "Dick" Amis. Dick has served us in the bunch grass regions years ago, even away up in "The Gorge" in the side of Steins Mountains, and never failed. Some men have deceived us, and forfeited their word and honor, but Dick has not done so, and he stands higher today in our estimation than he did the day we first became acquainted. And while we are passing this tribute upon that horse we want to say we don't see why Dick should not have green pastures and a place where the flies will not molest him when his horsemanship shall cease to feel the vicissitudes of this life.

We remained over night at the Sherwood hotel, and received every attention that the excellent landlord and his good lady could extend. We speak for this house the patronage of the public. No better house is to be found this side of Roseburg.

Well now the town! What can we say of it, only this and nothing more: It is a great big town with stores, hotels, livery stables, machine shops, printing office, a mill, an excellent water system, a wide-awake, enterprising, well-behaved civil people. The town is well laid out, having wide, liberal streets, and is neat and clean; and is destined, we think, to become the best city in size and importance that is between Eugene and Roseburg.

TO WHAT GANG DO YOU BELONG?
You claim you are republicans from your head down to your feet.
You hold aloft your party to every eye you meet.
And you claim the Pub's have saved the land, are never in the wrong;
But now you are divided—to what gang do you belong?
Is your section running wildly to a "silver party line,"
Holding up your hands in horror at the utterance of 727
Or is gold the only metal that will carry you along?
You're a Pub you'll have to tell us to which gang you belong.
You say you are a democrat, and proudly hold your head;
You'll shout out for your party till the day that you are dead—
Governer carried high the party with a band both bold and strong.
But now you are divided—to what gang do you belong?
You have talked about low tariff just as long as that would stick,
And you've hit high-tariff argument your very hardest lick;
But to it gold or silver that will carry you along—
Oh, say now, come and tell us to which gang you belong!
And the whiskey men have roused you and you're going to make a fight;
But you've got to have some money—do you think free-silver would?
We have no way of knowing to which gang you do belong.
But when you see a person that calls himself a Pop,
You know just what his goals are without going to his shop;
The stamp of Uncle Sam he knows would care our nation's wrongs,
And you know that moment to which gang that he belongs—Mrs. E. J. C. H.

ANNOUNCEMENT.
HADLEYVILLE, Or. June 10, '05.
Bro. Amis, please announce in the BROAD-AXE that there will be a Farmers and Laborers Congress picnic on June 29, 1895 at Meriau's Park. The following PROGRAMME will be discussed: Land, Transportation, Initiative and Referendum, Coxey Good Road and Municipal Bills, Omaha Platform.
F. M. NIGHTSWANER,
R. P. CALDWELL,
LEVI GEEK, Committee.

Jack Cogswell of McKenzie, gave this office a call Monday. Mr. Cogswell is now above 80 years of age we believe and is hale and hearty for that age. Has been a life-long democrat until the organization of the peoples' party, since which time he has been an unyielding, unbending middle of the road man.

Sanders will pay you the cash for every pound of chittim bark you will bring him this season.

THE BROAD-AXE may be found on sale at the University Book Store on Willamette Street, between 7th and 8th, at all times.

Remember always, that we are in need of the little amount you owe on this paper. It cannot do us any injury, our platocratic enemy without "sinews of war"—money. Any one who has the mind can send us a new subscriber.

Chittim bark is a legal tender at W. Sanders'. Bring it in and see.

Judge Fullerton, Thursday morning, sentenced Stepiens to the pen for two years, and the would-be rapist Brown to four years and to pay the cost of prosecution.

Dr. R. L. Willoughby, having dissolved his connection with Dr. Gray, desires to inform his friends and patrons that he may be found at all business hours just across the hall, opposite his former office, in the room recently occupied by Mrs. Witherow as a milliner store, over McLung's Store, cor. Willamette and 8th sts. Give him a call. 2-11-05

Bring all your chittim bark to Sanders and get the cash for it.
