Topics of the Times

Doubtless some people think beaven is all right because there is to be marrying there.

Frank Gould speaks of "the curse of money." Yet he doesn't act as if he would rejoice "to see the curse re-

"Tangled Wedlock" is the title of a new novel. We take it for granted that the hero and heroine belong to rich families.

President Diag of Mexico delivers only one message a year. This circumstance should not be overlooked in trying to explain why Diaz is given so many terms

As regards the hea, furthermore, she has one conspicuous advantage over the cow. It is harder to counterfeit, adulterate or otherwise impair the usefulwas of her output.

The man who goes around croaking that the worst is yet to come either has a weak spins or knows of something that he would like to get at a marked-down price.

A Minneapolis man claims that he owns thirty-seven acres of land on the Chicago lake front. Captain George Wellington Streeter will no doubt be glad to extend sympathy.

According to the Buffalo Express, some one has invented a scheme to in sure umbrellas against thoft. The company tackling any scheme of that kind will be kept busy at the paying teller's

Mrs. Howard Gould says no woman can dress decently on less than $20,000 a year. In that case we fear there are a good many women in this country who are not decently dressed any of the time. A New Jersey woman has been getting into trouble because she spanked her 81-year-old husband. Before H. Gassaway Davis extends any sympathy he will want to know whether she caught the rascal flirting or not. It is stated that the heart of a vegetarian beats fifty-eight times a minute, and that of a meat-enter seventy-five times. Thus the meat-eating young man with a vegetarian sweetheart can see how difficult it is at times for "two bearts to beat as one."

We welcome the story of the ener mous meteor that fell late the Atlantic ocean a few days ago, narrowly missing a ship in its descent. It is a pleasing variation from the conventional sea serpent story that usually appears about this time of year.

"Always ready for sea duty, but afraid of social festivities," is the way the wife of Admiral Evans recently characterized her distinguished husband. Medical science would probably agree that the admiral has discovered which is the greater danger of the two

In the early days of San Francisco. trading vessels were often deserted by the entire crew, who went hunting gold. There was nothing for the captain to do but abandon ship and join the rush. The deserted ships left on the beach were gradually filled round with sand, and were turned into "hotels," Recent excavations for the foundations of the new Niantic block disclosed the keel and ribs of the ship Niantic, which sailed from Maine sixty years ago. It was beached at San Francisco. hauled up on land, and used as a lodging house. Where it had stood was erected the first Niantic block, which was destroyed in the great fire two уенги про.

Records of averted disasters do not get the attention that is given to disasters unaverted, but they make more efectful reading and lift one's faith in buman nature. The other day a Long Island Sound steamer enught fire, and there might have been another horror like the burning of the General Slocum. But there was no loss of life, no panie, The pliots kept the stenmer stendy, the captain fought the fire in orderly manner, summoned help, and transferred six hundred passengers to another steamer: At a children's engertalnment in a New York church gauge draperies took fire, flames shot to the ceiling, and burning bits fell on the children. The audience sprang up, but the little king of the play justified his regal part. He eried, "What are you all scared about? It's just a little fire." Meanwhile a boy at the organ was playing 'Onward, Christian Soldiers," During the flurry he did not miss a note: Two men stamped the fire outs' Others. exerted the doors and started to marshal the women and children. Most of the people kept their places, and there was no panic.

There are few things, certainly no article of jewelry, that a bride prizes more than her wedding ring. But a merried weman cannot always remain a bride, not even in Chicago, where some of them try it by getting married frequently. And the views of a married woman later in life are apr to be different from the reseate visions of the bride. Perhaps even the woulding ring loses its glamor, and becomes merely so many dollars' worth of preclons money. That this is true in cortaln cases was shown in a Chicago court recently, when a man was on trial for selling cocaine. A number of wedding rings were shown in the evi dence; wedding rings that wives who had ceased to be brides had bartered for the drug. No more startling evidence of the power of the drug habit can well be conceived than this. To barter one's hirthright for pottage were not so bad. Hunger is natural enough, and must be satisfied, if possible, at almost any merifice. But the drug flend creates his own hunger, as the drunkard creates his thirst, and neither can be satisfied, even temporarily, except at a sacrifice. And the more frequently the victim seeks this satisfaction, the greafer becomes the sacrifice. Health, ope, honor, one by one, are offered on the alfar of the drug, and, finally, the miserable life that is left goes to complete the final sacrifice. Perhaps, after all, the sacrifice of a wedding ring is small compared with some others fools make that they may know for a little while, the joy of madness.

> therees of attempts to infrance Cot improper means have been under investigation in Washington. Such accusations are frequently unide against persons whose interests may be beneficially or injuriously affected by proposed legislation. For tunately, they are seldom sustained, because they are seldom justified. There is much legitimate and far less improper lobbying in Congress and in the State legislatures. It is proper for a legislator to seek information on any subject on which he must vote, and it is proper for a lawyer or a layman to give or even to volunteer the informa-Former members of Congress frequently open offices in Washington, and offer their services to persons interested in the passage of laws. They receive pay for their services, and when they appear before congressional comultrees with arguments in behalf of their clients, they are as honestly engaged as when they appear in the Supreme Court. But many unscrupulous egislative agents have been dishonest, and have attempted bribery, and have caused the word "lobbyist" to become a term of reproach. In some States at tempts improperly to influence legislaion constitute a felony, punishable by disfranchisement and disqualification from holding public office. The antiorthery laws are directed also against lobbyists as well as against corrupt legislators. In the British Parliament registered and officially recognized legislative agents perform those functions which reputable American lawyers undertake by supplying the needed information concerning private bills. In addition they are required to stand as sponsor for bills affecting private interests; but they must not attempt privately to influence the votes of members, being bound by the same honorable restrictions which forbid tampering with a jury or bringing private pressure to bear upon a judge who must decide the case. The scandals of the old system which this admirable custom has displaced in England were greater than any that have disgraced the American Congress.

0000000000000 ONE THING THEY COULD DO

"Young men of to-day are purely selfish," complained a weary and disgusted hostess. "I know many, and with a very few exceptions they accept my hospitality and then decline to contribute to the gayety of my entertainments." Her companion, a man of years and experience, smiled quietly.

"That's an old grievance." he said I remember hearing my mother say the same thing fifty years ago. I remember, too, with what relish she used o tell the story of a spirited woman of her acquaintance who administered jus- | had so much to say she couldn't fit it all tice, as she saw it, on a certain occasion.

"The woman had married an English man who had been an officer of a crack regiment, but who sold out when he married. Quite naturally, therefore his old comrades were often at their house, and to the disgust of his wife. they answered your description of the young men of to-day. One evening, when there were several of her countrywomen among her guests, my mother's friend vainly tried to make the dashing troopers come to time. But when she suggested cards it was 'The Tenth doesn't play cards.'

"A suggestion of music was met with "The Tenth doesn't sing."

"At last one of the American girls said something about dancing, and my mother's friend tried to make up a set. Then came the haughty declaration, The Tenth don't dance."

"'Well,' said the exasperated hostes, 'at any rate, the Tenth marches!" "And march it did," concluded the man, "in deflance of the English husland's wishes."

Writers' Cramp.

Writers' cramp is a serious matter to people whose work requires that they use a pen very much, while for the unaccustomed writer who takes an the least, very discouraging. The trouble is more than muscular in this kind ly to be troubled with writers' cramp, because they are taught to hold the pen lightly and make all the move-dering what friend this sould be whom-ments from the arm instead of the Esra had brought with him. She had nohand. The old fashioned method ticed that he was roughly clad, presenting the pen between the thumb and fore was vulgarly some in his attire. much that all control over them is as a restraint upon the Girdlestones. host. The pen should be held between As the long afternoon stole away she tied up, however, in such a way that there became more and more impatient and exthe joint. The fromble may often be pectant, she had been sewing in her relieved by putting the hand and wrist into the bottest water one can stand -Boston Herald.

Berived. Little drops of water,

Little grains of sand. Make the milkmen happy And the grocers bland. The Bohemian.

Most parents in raising children don't know the difference between training and the lack of it.

Watch a man peel an apple and you'l'

The Firm of Girdlestone

FRIDAY, JAMES A CONAN DOYLE

***********

り不回しく CHAPTER XIX. (Continued.) She went down the avenue and had a few words with the sentry there. She felt no hitterness against bin now on the contrary, she could afford to laught at his peculiarities. He was in a very bad humor on account of domestic diffiles. His wife had been abusing him. and had ended by assaulting him. "She used to argey first and then fetch the he said ruefully, "but now it's the poker first and there ain't no argeyment at all."

Kate looked at his savage face and burly figure, and thought what a very woman, his wife with him.

"It's all 'cause the fisher lasses won' lemme alone," he explained with a leer.
"She don't like it, knock me sideways if she do! It nin't my fault, though, I allers had a kind o' a fetchin' way wi'

"Did you post my note?" asked Kate. "Yes: in course I did," he answered It'll be in Lunnon now, most like." His one eye moved about in such a very shifty way as he spoke that she was convinced that he was telling a lie. She could not be sufficiently thankful that she had some thing else to rely upon besides the old scoundrel's assurances:

There was nothing to be seen down the lane except a single cart, with a loutist young man walking at the horse's head had a horror of the country folk since her encounter with the two bumpkins upon the Sunday. She therefore slipped away from the gate and went through the wood to the shed, which she mounted. On the other side of the wall there was standing a little boy in buttons, so rigid and motionless that he might be one of Madame Tussand's figures, were it not for his eyes, which were rolling about in every direction, and which finally fixed themselves on Kate's face. "Good-mornin', miss," said this appari-

"Good-morning," she answered. "I think I saw you with Mrs. Scully yesterday? "Yes, miss. Missus, she told me to wait here and never to move until I seed you.

She said as you would be sure to come. I've been waitin' here for high on an "Your mistress is an angel," Kate said enthusiastically, "and you are a very good little boy." "Indeed, you've hit it about the missus," said the youth, in a hourse whisper, nodding his head to emphasize his re-"She's got a heart as is big enough for three.

Kate could not help smiling at, the enthusiasm with which the little fellow

"You seem fond of her," she said. "I'd be a bad 'un if I wasn't. She took out of the work'ns without character or nothing, and she's a educatin' of me. She sent me 'ere with a message."

"What was it?" "She said as bow she had written inon a telegraph." "I thought that would be so," Kate snid. "She wrote to Major-Major-him as is a-follerin' of her. She said as she had no doubt as he'd be down to-day, and you was to keep up your sperrits and let her know by me if any one was a-wexin' "No, no. Not at all," Kate answered. smiling again. "You can tell her that my guardian has been much kinder to-day. am full of hope now. Give her my warmest thanks for her kindness."

"All right, miss. Say, that chap at the gate hasn't been giving you no cheek, has he him with the game eye?" "No, no, John." John looked at her suspiciously. "If he basn't it's all right," he said, "but I think as you're one of them as don't complain if you can 'elp it." He opened his hand and showed a great jagged flint which he carried. "I'd ha' knocked his other peeper out with this," he said, 'blowed if I wouldn't." "Den't do anything of the sort, John, but run home like a good little boy." "All right, miss. Good by to ye!"

Kate watched him stroll down the lane. He passed at the bottom as if irresolute, and then she was relieved to see him throw the stone over into a turnip field, and walk rapidly off in the opposite direction to the Priory gates.

CHAPTER XX.

with her correspondence it is, to say windows hate men him driving up the exempe he a high degener, Thurs was a broad-shooldered, red bearded man sitting beaute him, and the owner from the Flying of cramp. Very often a low, nervous Bull was perched belied. Kate had rush- was absolutely necessary that the firm condition will cause it. Then one ed to the window on hearing the sound should take it as a warning that the of wheels, with some dim expectation that in order to extricate itself from its diffisystem is run down and needs general her friends had come somer than she toning up. Very often, however, the suticipated A glance however, showed trouble is all in the way you hold your ber that the hope was rain. From behind a curtain she watched them alight and planned and eleverly carried, and which come into the house, while the trap wheeled round and raftled off for Bedsworth not been for an unfortunate chance." sgnin.

She went slowly back to her room, won-room, but she found that she could no ing her to my son; the other was by the longer keep her attention on the stitches, young lady's death. Do you follow me? She pared pervously up and down the little apartment. In the room beneath she She remembered having once heard it re- make her change her nand." marked that many of the richest men on more important person than he seemed. She had determined to remain in com all the afternoon to avoid Ezra, but fresh gir, she thought, would have a reviving effect upn her. She alfo ed down the stairense, reading as lightly to possible not to disorb the gentlemen the refectory. They however, for the appeared to hear until after she had She went out on to the little lawn while fay in front of the old house. There were some flower beds scattered about on it, but they were one

as a dead silence

ium of conversation ded away, and there amused herself by attempting to improve the condition of one of them, and kneeling down beside it she pulled up a number of the weeds which covered it. There was a withered ross bush in the center. so she puiled up that also, and succeeded in imparting some degree of order among She the few plants which remained. worked with unnatural energy, pausing very now and again to glance down the irk avenue, or to listen intently to any

In the course of her work she chanced look at the Priory. The refectory ed the lawn, and at the window of it there stood the three men looking out at her. The Girdlestones were nodding their heads, as though they were pointing her cut to the third man, who stood between them. He was looking at her with an expression of interest. Kate thought as he represed his one chareles had een a more savage and brutal face. He was flushed and laughing, while Eara beside him appeared to be pale and anxious. They all, when they saw that she noticed mained vividly impressed upon her mem-Girdlestone had been so pleased at the sarly appearance of his two allies, and the spect of settling the matter once for all, that he received them with a cordiality which was foreign to his nature, the strange, fierce red one, and the two hard familiar pale ones which flanked it.

"Always punctual, my dear son, and always to be relied upon," he said. "You are a model to our young business men. As to you, Mr. Burt," he continued, "I am delighted to see you at the Priory, much as I regret the sad necessity which has brought you down."

"Talk it over afterwards." said Ezra. shortly. "Burt and I have had no luncheon yet."

"I am near starved," the other growled, throwing himself into a chair. Ezra had been careful to keep him from drink on the way down, and he was now sober, or as nearly sober as a brain saturated with liquor could ever be.

Girdlestone called for Mrs. Jorrocks. who laid the cloth. Erra appeared to have a poor appetite, but Burt are vora-When the meal was finished Ezra drew a chair up to the fire, and his father did the same, after ordering the old woman out of the room, and carefully losing the door behind her. "You have spoken to our friend here about the business?" Girdlestone asked nodding his head in the direction of Burt "Yes. I have made it all clear." "Five hundred pounds down, and a free assage to Africa," said Burt. "An energetic man like you can do creat deal in the colonies with five hunired pounds," Girdlestone remarked. "What I do with it is nothing to you gov'nor," Burt remarked surlily. the job, you pays the money, and there's an end as for as you are concerned."

"Quite so," the merciant said in a conciliatory voice. "You're free to do what you like with the money." "Without axin' your leave," growled Burt. He was a man of such a turbulent always ready to go out of his way to make himself disagreeable.

"The question is how it is to be done," interposed Ezra. "You've got some plan in your head, I suppose," he said to his father. "It's high time the thing was carried through, or we shall have to put up the shutters in Fenchurch street." His father shivered at the very thought.

Anything rather than that," he said. "It will precious soon come to that." "What's the matter with your lip? It ems to be swollen." "I had a turn with that fellow Dims dale," Ezra answered, putting his hand up to his mouth to hide the disfigurement. "He followed us to the station and we had to best him off, but I think I left my marks upon him."

"He played some hokey-pokey business on me," said Burt. "He tripped me in some new-fangled way, and nigh knocked the breath out of me. I don't fall as light as I used."

"He did not succeed in tracing you?" Girdlestone asked uneasily. "There is no hance of his turning up here, and spoiling the whole business?" "Not in the least," said Egra confidently. "He was in the hands of a policeman

when I saw him last."

"That is well. Now I should fike, be fere we go further, to say a few words to Mr. Burt as to what has led up to this. I wish you to understand," he said. that this is no sudden determination of ours, but that events have led up to it in such a way that it was impossible to avoid Late in the afternoon Bara arrived at it. Our commercial honor and integrity afternoon off now and then to catch up the Prany. From one of the passage are more precious to us than anything else, and we have both agreed that we are ready to sacrifice anything rather than lose it. Unfortunately, our affairs should have a sum of money promptly culties. This sum we endeavored to get would have succeeded admirably had it "I remember," said Start. "Of course. You were there at the time. We were able to struggle along for some time after this on money which we borrowed and on the profits of our Afwhich most of us learned of holding a contrast to the young merchant, who rican trade. The time came, however, Evi- when the borrowed money was to be refinger is also very likely to encourage dentity he intended to pass the night at paid, and once again the firm was in danthe Priory, since they had let the trap ger. It was then that we first thought of a cramp. The massles become tense of the Priory, wines they had let the trap and hard, until finally they contract so he had come, for his presence would act to turn the scale in our favor, could we touch a penny of it. One was by marry-through a daring speculation in diamonds,

which was, though I say it, ingeniously

Burt nodded his shaggy head. "This being so, we did all that we could could hear the dull, muffed sound of men's to arrange a marriage. Without flattery velors in a long continuous monotone. I may say that no girl was ever approach. broken only by the interposition now and ed in a more delicals and honorable way again of one voice which was so deep than she was by my son, Ezra. I, for my and lond that it reminded her of the growi part, brought all my influence to bear of a beast of prey. This must belong to upon her in order to induce use the red-hearded stranger. Kate wondered his advances in a proper spirit. In spite what it could be that they were talking of our efforts, she rejected him in the over so earnestly. City affairs, no doubt, most decided way, and gave us to underor other business matters of importance, stand that it was hepeless to attempt to

'Change were eccentric and slovenly in "Someone else, maybe," suggested Burt, their dress, so the newcommen alovenly in "The man who put you on your back their dress, so the newcomer might be a at the station," said Egra"Ha! I'll pay him for that," the navey

"A human life, Mr. Burt," continued o great that she felt Girdlestone, "is a sacred thing, but a hu man life, when weighed against the existeace of a great firm from which hundreds derive their means of livelihood, is a small exhalderation indeed. When the Miss Harston is put against the fate of the great commercial house of Girdlestone, it is evident which must go to the Our house has for nearly forty years been a bright spot in the darkness If it should fall now it would be a stum bling block and a scandal. You see, there fore, that greater interests are at stake own with weeds | than the mere dross of this world. Hav-arise, I had made every arrangement some time before. This building is, as you may have observed in your drive, situated in a lonely and secluded part of the counry. It is walled round, too, in such a try. It practically a prisoner. I removed the know where she has gone to, and I have spread such reports as to her condition hat no one down here would be surprised to hear of her decease."

hance sound which night catch her eur. "But there is bound to be an inquiry. Hew about a medical certificate?" asked "I shall insist upon a coroner's mest," his father answered. 'An inquest! Are you mad?" "When you have heard me I think that ou will come to just the opposite conclusion. I think that I have hit upon scheme which is really next-heat in its implicity." He rubbed his hands together, and showed his long yellow fangs in his enjoyment of his own astuteness. farmer is delighted if his investment

Burt and Ezra leaned forward to lists them, stepped precipitately back from the while the old man sank his voice to She had only a momentary whisper. glance at them, and yet the three faces, "They think that she is insone."

un id. "Yes." "There's a small door in the boundary wall which leads out to the railway line.

"Well, what of that?" "Suppose that door to be left open would it be an impossible thing for a cissy woman to slip out through it, and higher cost of living, the increase in to be run over by the ten o'clock exvalue of farm lands and the higher

"If she would only get in the "You don't quite catch my idea yet Suppose that this express ran over the dead body of a woman, would there be fered in the market except by ineffianything to prove afterwards that she was dead, and not alive at the time of the accident? Do you think that it would standard of labor advanced on the ever occur to any one's mind that the exfarm. The farm laborer must underpress had run over a dead body?" stand modern agricultural machinery "I see your meaning," said his son thoughtfully. "You would settle her and and how to operate it to obtain employ-

then put her there." (To be continued.)

THE WORLD'S PERFUME.

Industry in Which an Entire Town Is Interested.

Few people-in America at leastknow that the town which might be said to supply the world with its perfume is Grasse on the Riviera, about 12 miles by train from that center of ly. Farming as a profession is becomgayety, Cannes. It holds a population of some 15,000 persons, the great majority of whom are employed in the new conditions of agriculture. The inperfume industry which yields an in- ducements are potential for young men come to the town of a million and a to qualify as farm laborers and the field offers as brilliant prospects half a year. any other profession. The farmer !

The little perfume city is set on the side of the mountain Rocavignon and not so much in quest of cheap labor as efficient help and is willing to pay a in the valley around it more than 60,-000 acres of flower beds produce the wage scale proportionate to the ability and proficiency of the laborer as an up petals from which are drawn the little to-date farm hand,-Goodall's Farmer drops of sweet incense that are sent out to all quarters of the globe. Every available bit of ground, says Jane R. White, in The World To-day, has been walled in and the cassia or rosebush has to pay its yearly tribute of fragrance in return for the care lavished upon it. Here and there the flowers run riot, but usually tiny irrigating ditches separate the neat even rows of violets, jonquils, jasmine, tuberoses heliotropes, roses and lavender. One breathes a new atmosphere here: it is as though the invigorating mountain air had been sprayed with eau de cologne. When one goes into the factories of the town the process of manufacture one notes is much the same for all per fumes except those made from the rose or orange petals. Glass sheets, held by frames a few inches apart, are smeared thickly with lard, and between these sheets the freshly picked blossoms are scattered, touching the frames, but not pressed by them. In one day the oil of the flowers exudes and the lard absorbs the precions drops. Before the grease is fully saturated the flowers are changed many times, the number depending upon the amount of oil the flowers contain. If the flowers are plentiful they may be changed as often as every six hours and in the case of the jonguis 30 times, but Jasmine is usually changed 80 times before the layers of lard are entirely saturated. Attar of roses and neroll, the base of eau de cologne, are made by a different method. The perfume may be extracted by an ordinary process of distillation if a very even heat is main tained, but the usual method is the "bala marie." A large kettle of lard is immersed in a tub of water at the boiling point until the grease reaches a uniform temperature and is entirely salt; another consists in covering the melted.

Into this warm lard the petals of orange blossoms or of roses are thrown. The petals remain a day or less in this bath and then the wilted flowers are withdrawn and fresh ones added until the mixture reaches the required strength. Women beat the mixture into a cream and the "bain marie" rooms look like cake bakeries.

To make one pound of attar of roses, which is worth $200, 20,000 pounds of rose petals are required. A thousand pounds of petals are needed to make a pound of neroll, which averages in value $20 a pound,

A Special Brand,

Brown-I want to thank you again for that cigar you gave me yesterday. I enjoyed it immensely, Green-I'm glad you liked it.

the way, I have another of the same class milk left at his house in a clean brand if you care to smoke. Brown-No, thank you. I didn't be sour or off flavor twelve hours later smoke the other one. I have a grudge because it was left standing in a warm ing. against Jones, so I gave it to him.

When you know a successful man, you also know of some little weakness that keeps him from succeeding a kinds of dishes for several days. Also Farm machinery put in repair before great deal better.

He who can move his ears can usual ly make his hair stand on end.

Farm Labor

can only protect himself from exorbitant wages by the purchase of costly

The world moves forward and the prices of agricultural products will not soon revert to old low standards. The farmer will not find cheap labor of-ment. Machinery is too expensive to be trusted with inexperienced operators, and the man who can skillfully handle modern farm implements is in demand on the farm at a wage scale that will compare favorably with the Farmers are now practical business men and the majority of them keep books on farm operations and know the amount of their profit and loss annual-

Carrying a Trunk in Buggy.

ticle in a small buggy, make a frame

out of two pieces of one and one-half

Nail a board across the ends as show:

HOW TO CARRY THE TRUNK.

Place the free ends beneath the seat and under the foot rest in front, letting the frame extend behind the buggy. The trunk or box, explains Prairie Farmer, can then be placed on the end of the frame behind the seat of the buggy. It

Eggs Variously Preserved.

Eggs are preserved in many other ways besides cold storage. Often the preservative is effected by excluding the air by coating, covering or lumers-ing the eggs, some material or solution being used which may or may not be a germicide. An old domestic methboiling water from twelve to fifteen see-onds. Sometimes they are treated to a solution of alum or salicylic acid. Other methods consist in varnishing with a solution of permanganate of potash.

varnishing with collodion or shellac:

packing in peat dust, preserving in with vaseline, preserving in lime water, preserving in a solution of water

The Consumer's Error.

The consumer is often to be blamed for the milk souring quickly. First-bottle and at a low temperature may by any manner of preservation.

wood ashes, treating with a solution of

should be tied on,

To carry a trunk or any bulky ar-employes in industrial enterprises.

labor-saving machinery.

cient employes.

---

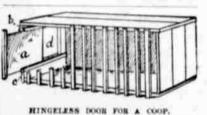

Alfaifa was an unknown crop a few years ago. Now it is one of the most reliable and profitable of Texas crops. It has not been long since the onion was produced only in a few short ray fronting agriculture is competent farm one of Texas' best advertisements. The effort to raise for the market mehelp that can be secured at a compensation proportionale to the net earn- dicinal plants began with one enterings for the furmer. Manufactures, prising citizen of Grayson County only mining and railroads furnish employ- a few years ago. Now this line is be ment to a vast number of workers who ling taken up and will be carried on for are under trained foremen and their all it is worth. The list is growing wages are graduated according to the longer, and the prices of cotton and amount of product they can turn out, other farm products are better than Manufacturers and transportation cor- they used to be, and the man with the porations are capitalized and the in- hoe is growing more independent. The vestment is required to earn a fixed sugar beet is now being tested. Colodividend for the stockholders. The rado holds first place in the production earnings are expected to exceed the of beet sugar in the United States, dividends, operating expenses and fixed with 422.732,530 pounds of sugar from charges to create a surplus fund to 138,366,366 acres, while Michigan and conduct affairs in emergencies and dur- California are closely matched for secing panies without stopping dividends, and place, producing 105,000,000 and The farmer is compelled to compete 164,000,000 pounds, properticals, The active open hacket for neip to conduct sugar fact crop in this country last his agricultural operations. While the year brought $1,500,000,

The present year will be an impor returns a reasonable profit, he has no tant senson for experiments with the p course if the season's results are con- sugar beet in Texas. Let the tests be ducted at a loss. The manufacturer in made under as good conditions as postimes of financial stringency to profect sible. There is really no doubt as to stockholders discharges a part of his the results in localities where the soil force, reduces their wages or runs his is of the right density and quality. plant on shorter hours. The farmer Lands that produce fine crops of beets of the ordinary variety or the "blurgest curnips in the world" are quite sure to break a few records in sugar beets if given a fair test.-Galveston News.

Improved Chicken Coop.

The diagram shows a convenient way to make a coop for the poultry yard. of which the special feature is its door, Procure a box of the right dimensions and saw a hole, d, in one end. Then Agriculture is annually becoming strengthen the box with narrow strips more of a business proposition and the of wood, b c, on each side of the hole

b c. This acts as a groove for the door, a, to silde in. Thus you have a sliding door, which opens and shuts with the greatest ease. The front of the coop is inclosed with lath, or narrow strips, placed 2% to 3 inches ing more attractive and diversified and apart. The top should be covered with labor needs to be more skilled to meet good grade of roofing paper to make it waterproof. A coop of this sort should be 2 to 21/2 feet long, 16 inches deep and not less than 20 inches high. while 2 feet would be better.-Richard Moncure, in Farm and Home.

Mand Miller, in the summer's heat, Raked the meadow thick with wheat.

The judge rode slowly down the lane, Smoothing his horse's chestnut mane "With wheat at a dollar per," said he by two-inch scantlings eight feet long. Then he smiled at her and she blushed at

> And over the meadow fence he clim. 'Will you marry me, sweet maid?" he said. And she told him "Yes," and they were

Alas for maiden, alas for judge. For old designer and wheat-field drudge

Lord pity them both and pity or all, For Maud didn't own the wheat at all

And the judge remarked when he learned Don't talk to me about dollar wheat!"

San Francisco Argonaut. How Animals Doctor Themselves. Man night often take from the lower animals a lesson as to the cure of himself when III. All sorts of enimals suffering from fever cat little, ile quiet in dark, airy places and drink quantities of water. When a dog loses his appetite he knows where to find chiendent -dog grass-which acts as a purgative and emetic. Sheep and cows, when III, seek certain herbs. Any animal suffer-Ing from chronic rheumatism keeps as far as possible in the sun. If a chimnanzee be wounded he has been seen chewed up leaves and grass. Farm Blats. The horse is man's best friend, therefore he is deserving of a friend's treat-to stop the bleeding by a plaster of ment Don't forget that the barnyard pornure is the best all-round fertilizer you can obtain.

od is to pack the eggs in oats, bran or · Pasture makes the cheapest hog feed on the farm and clover makes the best eggs with line water, which may or hog masture. may not contain sait. In Germany Don't let money act as a padlock on sterilization is effected by placing in your heart and shut in all the kindness and happiness. The animal that has a full, bright eve is upt to be healthy. And a moist nose is another indication of health. The man who keeps his troubles to himself is better thought of than he who burdens his neighbors with them. boric acid and water glass, varnishing The neighbors have their own troubles to think about. Little things on the farm amount to glass. The last three methods have as much in the end as they do in any proved most successful. Infertite eggs other business, yet the farmer as a rule will keep much better than fertile eggs does not pay as much attention to dotalls as does the city business man. Talk over with the good housewife all the undertakings of the farm. She will have some good advice to offer. The burning of straw and stalks, except in special cases, is a wasteful practice and has no place in judiclous farmkitchen for a few minutes or was Every farm should have a pair of poured into a pan that had been scaled. It is the only way for the washed in the dishpan and wiped on a farmer to know exactly where he towel that had done service for all stands in his buying and selling.

milk should not be left standing in the the busy senson opens means money in sun a minute after the milkman the pocket. When it is put away in the full is a better time for repairing.