OREGON WEATHER
Fair, except showers in north-west portion; moderate southerly winds.

MORE GOOD APPLES WANTED

During the past winter people in the north-central and eastern part of the country have had to pay nearly as much for apples as for oranges, says an eastern authority. Quite frequently, too, the best apples to be had in those sections had been shipped there from the far west.

The head of the horticulture department of New Hampshire college reports that state as producing only 250,000 barrels of apples in a season in recent years. Formerly the state produced 1,000,000 barrels in a season.

This year the horticulture department is urging every farmer to look to his abandoned orchards, to give the best care to trees worth it and to plant new trees in place of dead ones or poor stock.

The old-fashioned farmer doesn't think it worth while to prune and fertilize orchards. He allows the fruit to become small and gnarly, until it isn't worth the cost of marketing. True enough, he had his troubles in other years. Marketing facilities were so poor that he couldn't get his apples sold after they were raised and gathered. And they were not so generally desired as they are today.

It would be a good thing for farmer and town dweller alike if farmers in Oregon and everywhere else would follow the New Hampshire man's advice and raise more and better apples. There is an apple-hungry public that will eat all the fruit it can get hold of.

ANCIENT AND MODERN EDUCATION

The predicted reaction has come in the academic halls. Princeton, long a stronghold of the classics, requires no Greek either for getting in or out, and one year's study of Latin is all that is demanded for the degree of bachelor of arts.

Yale goes even further. No Latin is required for entrance to the university, nor any advanced algebra, trigonometry or solid geometry for Sheffield Scientific school. Even Oxford, the ancient English seat of education, sponsors the statement that "the classics, while all admit their inestimable services to learning in the past, are gradually receding into the background."

Of course this revolution is aimed to meet the present demands for that sort of education which shall fit men to get rich the quickest, and to meet the condition arising from the high wages of unskilled labor; but it is a mistake to let it go too far.

"Through the overwhelming defeat of the dregs Chicago has spoken in tones that will ring in the ears of those subservient law makers who have so eagerly surrendered the liberty of American citizens at the dictation of a clique of paid prohibition lobbyists," says a dispatch from the Wicked City. That's right, Chicago's election reports do ring in the ears of Americans. Also, what Berger, LaFollette and Debs have said "rings" in the ears of the people.

What Hurts. Sometimes a man doesn't mind being henpecked a little, just so the chickens don't laugh at him.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

AT THE MOVIES At Joy Tonight

Gifted by nature with genius and that beauty which few actresses in motion pictures possess, but which directors class as "splendidly screenable," Pauline Frederick ranks as one of the foremost stars of the silent drama. Miss Frederick is a player of exceptional merit, robustious yet exquisitely feminine, an actress of a versatility reminiscent of Bernhardt and Dejazet, and withal a woman of such personal charms as to endear her to a vast army of admirers.

Words Most in Use. It is declared by a philologist that nine words do one-fourth of the verbal work, and 34 words one-half. The nine most useful words are: And, he, have, it, of, the, to, will, you. The 34 more that, with these nine, do half our literary work are: About, all, as, at, but, can, come, day, dear, for, get, go, hear, her, if, in, me, much, not, no, on, one, say, she, so, that, there, they, this, though, time, we, with, write, your.
