FRIDAY - SEPT. 4, 1903

A crank with a loaded revolver in his pocket made a persistent effort to see President Roosevelt and was arrested and locked up Wednesday evening.

John W. Knowles, of LaGrande, though backed by the entire Oregon delegation in congress, didn't get the registership of the land office in his own town. The plum went to E. W. Davis, of Union, who was recommended by ex-Congressman Moody. This causes Knowles to rush into print with a roar that reveals in every line the wind-jamming politician. We fancy his backers are much disgusted over his performance. Here is another straw to indicate the setting of the political wind against the Mitchell regime. If the anti-Mitchell republicans do not win in the next Oregon elections present signs are greatly misleading. The election of Fulton to the United States senate last winter was the beginning of the end of the Mitchellites, or softs, as they were called when the money question led politics. It drove Multnomah county into the Simon camp and all that remains to be done now is to transfer the paper title. The rest of the state cannot combine against Multnomah. One need not be much of a prophet to see H. W. Scott succeeding John Hipple Mitchell in the United States senate. Mr. Scott is not a product of the Simon machine. Indeed, it is said that he and Mr. Simon do not speak as they pass by. But there is reason for the presumption that Mr. Simon does not care to return to the United States senate, that that position is not altogether congenial to him, and that he would be willing to keep hands off that office so long as he could knock out his historic enemies and get control of state politics. This would leave Mr. Scott singularly free of political entanglements and give Oregon a senator who would in every way command respect for the state.

There ought to be a special statute to prevent the pollution of the Deschutes river, and perhaps other Eastern Oregon streams. What would become of the people in the Deschutes valley if the river water were to become unpotable? There are no wells to supply the wants of the people. It is river water or nothing. That stream, now so pure and cool and altogether delightful, is likely to become polluted in the course of time as the population of the valley increases and towns grow up on the edge of the river. All sewage and animal refuse ought to be kept out of the river. It is now, under the circumstances of living on the Deschutes, a moral crime if not a legal one to make the river a dumping ground for undesirable matter ranging from kitchen refuse to the carcasses of defunct animals. Neither ought this river to be paved with tin cans and old stoves. The law as it stands is not sufficient to protect the Deschutes. We must rely upon the sense of decency among the people to serve until the proper laws can be enacted.

George Schlecht, the popular Bend newspaper man, was a Prineville visitor Saturday. He reports Bend dead—very dead.—Prineville Journal.

But George came back next day and then Bend resumed its wonted liveliness. Bend is all right.

The county board of equalization began its annual sitting at Prineville last Monday. The assessor, having been employed until this time in making up his roll, submits it to the county board of equalization, which body makes any corrections that may be deemed just. Thereupon it becomes an assessment roll and goes to the county clerk for conversion into a tax roll. Any person who does not appear before the county equalization board to see that his assessment is properly made is estopped from enjoining the collection of any tax that he may allege to be wrongful.

BEND NEWS FROM PRINEVILLE.

Old and New Townsite--Canal versus County Road--Steffa Moved.

PRINEVILLE, OR., Sept. 3.—The plat of the town of Bend was vacated by the county court yesterday, on petition of the Pilot Butte Development Company, owner of the plat. No lots had been sold in the old plat which had been filed last year, so its vacation was a simple matter. It is understood that the new plat prepared in accordance with a careful survey, will be filed soon and lots may then be sold.

The county court this week also made an order permitting the P. B. D. Co. to build its irrigation canal on the right-of-way of the county road, shifting the roadway to one side where there might be conflict between them. The court also orders a review of the work of the viewers who examined a route for a proposed change of the county road near Bend in July. The viewers thought they were restricted in their examination to the route that had been stipulated for between Attorney Bruik, for the petitioners, and Mr. Keed, for the remonstrants. They expressed the opinion that if given the liberty of the petition they could find a new location for the road that would avoid all objections.

A. G. Richardson and D. F. Steffa have moved their household effects in from Bend and taken a house for the winter. Mr. Steffa's mother is expected to arrive soon from the East and occupy the house with them. The county superintendent has not in any way recognized Mr. Steffa as clerk at Bend this year and there will probably be no occasion for such recognition hereafter. It is said that Mr. Steffa may become identified with the Crook County Journal.
