The Thinness of Popularity.

Old Gargon Graham to his son.

The first banana skin which a lot of fellows step on is a desire to be popular. Of course it's a nice thing to be popular, but that's a business in itself. When a man spends time trying not to make enemies he hasn't any left to attend to business. Whatever line of conduct you adopt you're bound to make enemies, but so long as there's a choice I want you to make yours by being straightforward and just. You'll have the satisfaction of knowing that every enemy you make by doing the square thing is a rascal at heart.
