MACHINE HITS ROCK, PASSENGERS DUMPED

Making a wide turn Saturday afternoon to avoid a machine coming west on Oregon, the light car driven down Wall by A. J. Sanford of Redmond hit a rock, poised dizzily on two wheels for a moment, then fell over on its side, dumping Sanford and one other occupant onto the cinder surface of the street.

Car and passengers were only slightly shaken up. Sanford, with the aid of bystanders, tipped the machine back onto its four wheels, tightened the top, applied the crank, climbed into the auto with his companion and proceeded on his return trip to Redmond.

RESERVOIR SITE WINS APPROVAL

GEOLOGIST WIRES STATE ENGINEER REMOVING ANY POSSIBLE DOUBT AS TO FEASIBILITY OF DESCHUTES STORAGE.

A telegram received from Percy A. Copper, state engineer, from W. O. Crosby, who made an exhaustive examination of the Benham Falls reservoir site in 1919, removes all doubt as to the feasibility of the project, reports the Evening Telegram. Additional information was asked by Professor before he gave his final approval of the site and his report is said to be based largely on this information.

The message received by Engineer Copper comes from Jamaica Plains, Mass. It says the report has been mailed and copies also sent to Washington, to Denver and to A. J. Wiley of Boise, a consulting engineer of the U. S. reclamation service and one of the members of the board that examined the reservoir. The Crosby telegram says a successful dam and reservoir seems to be assured.

The director of the reclamation service has recommended that $400,000 be expended on the Deschutes project, and according to Mr. Copper there is no apparent reason why the big Deschutes project cannot go forward as soon as financial and other arrangements are completed. The investigation made by the state and the U. S. reclamation service involves about 200,000 acres of land, but, because of the decreased flow of water in the Deschutes river in the last several years, the area that can be reclaimed may be smaller.

BAKER APARTMENTS UNDERGO CHANGES

Building Now Made Up of Three Room Units, And New Name Is Given By The Owner.

The work of remodeling the Baker apartments at 232 Broadway, recently purchased by J. J. Powers, was completed Saturday. The building has been altered in such a manner as to be made up of three-room units instead of two as was the former plan.

Hot and cold water and baths have been installed in each apartment and the rooms have been newly furnished throughout.

The cost of the improvements, together with that of the furniture, is estimated at $2000.

The remodeling has also extended to the name, this having been changed to the Broadway apartments.
