Life and Death.

Just because you think life is not worth living is no sign that death will be worth dying.

HUSBAND AND WIFE BOTH SICK

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Comer, Shenandoah, Va., were ill. He writes: "My wife had rheumatism in her arms so she could not use them. She has no trouble since taking Foley Kidney pills. I don't have to get up at night so much since taking Foley Kidney Pills, nor have I a weak back." Act quickly; tonic in effect. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

Up the Flowery Mountain.

Every year thousands of Chinese pilgrims risk their lives in climbing up the side of Hwa-Shan, the Flowery mountain, which is sacred to the Taoist religion. Any one reaching the temple far above is supposed to have any request granted as a reward for valor and endurance. The Hwa-Shan mountain is over 6,000 feet high, and the ascent in many places must be made along a narrow ledge of branches laid on posts driven horizontally into the face of the precipice. There are no handrails, but a chain held on a rock face offers some security to the ascending or descending pilgrim.

Entrance Must Have Made "Hit."

One Sunday morning a crowd was standing on the depot platform, a short distance from our home, waiting for an excursion train. The night before we had hung curtains around the broad front porch, and were sleeping out there on our steel-winged cot, as it was very warm. I was sleeping close to the edge and when my wife got up rather suddenly over went the cot and I rolled out onto the lawn, clad only in my nightshirt, in plain view of the waiting crowd.

I didn't go with my wife to meet the returning excursion that evening.—Exchange.

DREW ON HIS IMAGINATION

To Put It Mildly, Longfellow was Not Always Accurate in His Descriptive Poems.

The poet Longfellow has set an example of inaccuracy in dealing with our Pilgrim ancestors which has been widely followed. His charming poem, "The Courtship of Myles Standish," has been read by millions of his countrymen and doubtless accepted by great numbers as gospel truth. Yet it has no historical basis, says a writer in the Boston Transcript. There is not a scintilla of evidence that the fearless captain, who was small of stature and red-haired, but every inch a soldier—had any desire to win the affections of Priscilla Mullins. He was a very busy man during the first years at Plymouth. And, but for his wisdom, skill and heroic actions, there is little doubt but what they would have all been murdered by wild savages, who were not wholly restrained by Massachusetts. It seems too bad that so brave and unselfish a man as Standish was should now be paraded before his descendants as a rejected suitor. He and they deserve a better fate.

The poet is no more accurate in dealing with him than he is in describing the marriage of John Alden and Priscilla. What a pretty bit of fiction it was to place Priscilla on a "milk-white steer," when there was not a cow, nor a steer, in all New England!

STOPPED ANGRY WIFE'S TEARS

Woman's Emulation of the "Cinderella Act" Probably Averted Dire Domestic Tragedy.

Mrs. G. started for the shoe repair shop the other day with a slipper that needed mending. Once in the street she remembered an important message and stopped to telephone in a little office on the ground floor of the building in which she lives. The proprietor showed her the instrument in the rear.

Just then the proprietor's wife entered the office, and first of all she saw Mrs. G.'s slipper lying on a table.

"So you even have her shoes here!" she cried and began to weep. Her tears quickly turned to anger, and in a moment she began to upbraid her husband.

Then Mrs. G. interferred. "That's mine," she said, appearing from behind the screen.

The angry wife looked at her during a pause in her heated language. "I don't believe it," she snapped.

"I'll show you," said Mrs. G., and, like Cinderella, though the prince was missing, she tried on the slipper.—New York Sun.

INSECTS MAKE LEAVES 'WALK'

Queer Creatures Responsible for Odd Belief That Has Long Been Held in Australia.

There are some strange leaves in Australia which the people used to think could walk alone. Whenever there came a gust of wind these queer leaves blew off in a perfect shower.

As leaves generally do, they turned over and over, and rested upon the ground. Then they would seem to crawl toward the trunk of the tree from which they fell. Since that time it has been found that these leaves, as they were thought to be, were real insects and lived upon those very trees. Their bodies are thin and flat and their wings veined, just like a leaf. If they are disturbed their legs, which are folded away under their bodies, leave their whole shape exactly like the leaf of a tree, with stem and all. Bright green in the summer, these singular little insects, chameleon-like, slowly change their color to a dingy brown, just like a leaf that has been frosted. It is strange that, with wings, they do not fly, but rather walk or crawl along the ground.

Queen Liked Her Ale Strong.

The City of London Brewery company, whose premises are offered for sale, claim to be the only brewery in the city of London existing from the time of Queen Elizabeth, and it is quite possible that the queen occasionally sampled their brew. Elizabeth was a specialist in ale. She liked it strong, as witness the plaintive note her host, the earl of Leicester, sent to Lord Burleigh: "There is not one drop of good drink for her here. We were fain to send to London and Kentworth and divers other places where ale was; her own beer was so strong that there was no man able to drink it."

Testing Material in Cloth.

Mixtures of cotton and wool may be tested by raveling a bit of cloth and burning two of the threads, one running with the selvage, the other crosswise to it. The cotton thread burns quickly with a flame and smells like wood; wool chars slowly without a flame and smells like burning hair. Shoddy, or remanufactured wool, is often used with wool. This can be detected by raveling out a bit of the material, when short broken fibers may be seen. In general, a woolen material which has cotton in it will become more wrinkled when wet than all-wool goods.

Ancient Zoological Gardens.

Records show that King Nezahualcoyotl had zoological gardens in Tezcuco, Mexico, in the middle of the Fifteenth century, and in the next century Cortez found aviaries and fish ponds at Ixtapalapan. Montezuma II, emperor of Mexico in the beginning of the Sixteenth century, had large collections of animals in the gardens of his capital.

Almost all of the modern zoological gardens date from comparatively recent years, and contain large collections of fine animals, more suitably housed than at any time in the history of the world.

SNOW LEAVING FOREST ROADS

CARS MAY PENETRATE TO BIG SPRINGS—ALL ROADS TO TWIN LAKES OPEN—ODELL AND EAST REACHED SOON.

Snow in the Deschutes national forest is receding rapidly toward the summits, forest officials report. On the Sparks Lake road, now under construction, it is possible to drive beyond Big Springs, although there are still a few patches of snow.

Any of the roads leading to Twin lakes may now be used. East lake is still inaccessible, but it is reported that it is possible to get within three miles on the east side. The report is not confirmed.

It will be possible to reach Odell lake within two weeks, according to William Brock, proprietor of the resort there, who, with his wife, is in town today. Two miles this side of the lake there is a north slope with still enough snow to stop a car.
