AFTER EFFECT OF SCARLET FEVER

"As an after effect of scarlet fever," writes Mrs. J. McCullough, 236 Snyder St., Easton, Pa., "my throat was always dry and I had a hacking cough. One bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar gave me relief." Checks coughs, colds, croup; stops tickling in throat and bronchial irritations. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

OZONE AND THE SAND MAN

The Two Are Quite Closely Related, Though Probably Few People Could Tell How.

People who spend their vacations at the seashore at this time of the year usually find that their nights are dreamless and restful.

They say that the sea air makes them sleepy. Wheeled along in a beach chair, one is likely to feel drowsy or even go to sleep.

It is the ozone in the air that does it. The air at the seashore is full of ozone, which might be called a concentrated oxygen. Ozone is a powerful and healthful stimulant.

Whence, by the way, comes the nursery idea of the Sand Man, herald of sleep?

The answer is that the approach of sleep checks the flow from the eardrums which keeps the eyes moist. There results a dryness and slight uncomfortableness of the lids, causing one to rub the eyes. The Sand Man has come, and it is time to go to bed.—Philadelphia Record.

MAN WHO BUILDS OWN FORTUNE.

It is certain that the first Vanderbilt, the old commodore, who began as a skipper between New York and Staten Island putting dollar upon dollar and thought upon thought, plan upon plan, became financial king according to conditions in his time. He built railroads, developed industries, lived a fuller, happier life, with more variety and enjoyment in it than the third Vanderbilt. He was not born into wealth, but acquired it; to him wealth and millions were new things.

It is certain that a man who starts from the bottom, without the aid of any one except his own hands and brains, and acquires well being and health and happiness by self-denial for himself and for a wife and children, will enjoy much more pleasure and variety in life than a man born to riches, who was not inspired by any particular ambition.—Amerikal Magyar Nejszava, Hungarian Daily.

NO TRUE CENTURY PLANT.

There are no true century plants in the sense that it takes them a hundred years to bloom. A number of plants, however, do not bloom until they have lived for a long term of years. The classic example of such plants is the tall palm of India which lives for 50 years or more and becomes a tall tree before it blooms. After it has sent up its immense flower-stalk the whole plant dies.

Our American "century plants" often fruit at the end of eight or ten years under natural conditions, but in the house they may refuse to bloom at all. Many of the bamboos act like the century plants and bloom but once after a long period of vegetation. Such species are known as monocarpic plants.

CHAMPION PIG STATE.

It may be surprising to many easterners to learn from the census that Iowa is the champion pig state, with a count of 7,864,304. The second in rank, Illinois, falls to around 4,000,000, while the 3,000,000 class includes only Missouri, Indiana, Nebraska and Ohio. Kansas, which used to boast of its great droves, now has fewer than 2,300,000, a drop since 1910 from 3,000,000. The Sunflower farmers have recently been going in strong for wheat or oats, in preference to corn, the great pig food.—Providence Journal.

W. F. Arnold and wife were Sunday visitors at Sisters.

The county fair in Redmond was well attended by Cloverdale people, especially children's day, when our school was closed and the children went over to enjoy the sights.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Healy of Culver, spent Thursday visiting at the home of Mr. Healy's sister, Mrs. Thomas Arnold.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hilleary went to the high desert Monday on business. Hilleary expects to leave for the valley soon to spend the winter with his mother.

ANCIENT TAVERN A LANDMARK

Constructed in 1818, it stands as a Monument of Good Work Done by its Builders.

One of the oldest and most historic places in Painesville is Rider's tavern, located one mile west of the town hall on Mentor avenue, says the Painesville (Ohio) Telegram. The old landmark was built in 1818 by Joseph Rider, who is thought to be the third inhabitant of Painesville. The tavern is located on the old Cleveland-Buffalo road, and was a stopping place for the stage coaches in the old days.

The building, as one can imagine, was built to stand the wear and tear of the weather. The old place is made of hand-hewed beams whose perfection and durability show the art of the man who made them, both in ability as an axman and as a woodsman.

The tavern was noted for its hospitality, dance hall, cooking and bar. Many a joyful event took place within the walls. There were other taverns in and about the locality and Mr. Rider had to be on his toes in order to capture all the trade he could. To better insure his business Mr. Rider built a road which is now Walnut street, and which brought the weary travelers directly to the door of the building where they were sure of being shown to a good bed.

The building, as it stands now, although in good shape for the time that it has been built, is beginning to show the effect of age.

The tavern has been an heirloom, as it were, of the family since it was built, four generations having lived within the protection of its sturdy walls.

WISDOM OF JOHN CHINAMAN

Instruction and Advice That Have Been Current in the East for Many Centuries.

The following bits of wisdom were written 2,700 years ago and have been very highly esteemed by the Chinese people down through the centuries. They are selected from the Chinese "Four Books."

If a man himself does not walk in the right path, it will not be walked in by his wife and children. If he does not order men according to the right way, he will not be able to get the obedience of even his wife and children. To nourish the heart there is nothing better than to make the desires few. Here is a man whose desires are few; in some things he may not be able to keep his heart, but they will be few. Here is a man whose desires are many; in some things he may be able to keep his heart, but they will be few. To have faults and not to reform them, this, indeed, should be pronounced having faults. The philosopher Tsung said: "I daily examine myself on three points: Whether I may have been not faithful; whether, in intercourse with friends, I may have been not sincere; whether I may have not mastered and practiced the instructions of my teachers." When we see men of worth, we should think of equaling them; when we see men of a contrary character, we should turn inwards and examine ourselves.

EXPLAINING IS ACCUING.

The man himself is his own best explanation and excuplation. If we are not fit to be taken on trust for what we are, all that we may say about ourselves will not help much.

When a prisoner is arraigned upon a charge of crime, the first effort made in his defense is to procure character witnesses. They tell of him as they have always known him, to establish the antecedent improbability that such a man as his acts have shown him to be would do the thing of which he stands accused.

"Many doubts deserve not to be cleared," said wise old Samuel Johnson. Public men, attracted for things they never thought of doing, have learned to be patient and keep silence under a running fire of censure from those who would be well pleased if they could pull them down.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

CREDIT BRAHMA WITH ALL SONGS.

Hindus believe that Brahma, whom their scriptures say is the creator of the universe, also is the father of music. He is described as wearing a "form of sound," and his followers teach that he has delegated the supervision of the music he evolved to the goddess of learning, Saraswati.

To Saraswati is attributed invention of the complicated musical instrument of the "vina." Vocal music in India dates back to the chanting of the Sham Veda. The Vedas were written about 2500 B. C. and contain references to several musical instruments.

The Hindu system of notation has seven notes and was perfected about 350 B. C., passing from India through Persia to Arabia, and introduced into Europe in 1022 A. D. by Guido d'Arrezzo, a Benedictine monk.

RIVERS AS AIRWAYS.

Just so long as we lack suitable airways and airdromes, it appears that the safest practice is to follow our leading waterways, such as rivers, canals, lakes, coast lines, and so on, using seaplanes for the purpose. In this manner a pilot can always make a relatively safe landing, as compared with the airplane pilot flying over rough country devoid of landing fields. A number of rivers and other waterways have been surveyed with this object in mind.—Scientific American.

TWO PLEAD GUILTY ON BOOZE CHARGES

L. D. Poole and Joe Bush Each Fined $50 In Police Court For Having Liquor In Possession

L. D. Poole and Joe Bush, both of this city, appeared in police court Friday pleading guilty to charges of having liquor in their possession, and paying fines of $50 each.

Poole was arrested after small boys, found in a badly intoxicated condition Sunday, told police officers that they had stolen the beer for their spree from Poole's woodshed. Bush, it was alleged was the owner of a bottle of moonshine seized at the boxing smoker at the gymnasium Monday night. While entering a plea of guilty Bush states that he did so merely to end the case. The bottle was not his, he declares.
