

HOSPITAL HERE IS FAVORED BY STATE SOCIETY

TUBERCULOSIS MEET HELD

SITE HERE PROPOSED

Number of Patients Coming Now Carries Weight—Early Construction Is Predicted—Mrs. A. H. Oliver Praised For Work.

Deschutes county was distinctly favored as the site of a proposed state tuberculosis hospital to be built within a few years, at the meeting of the state tuberculosis association at Portland this week, reports Rev. J. Edgar Purdy, who returned this morning after attending the meeting as a delegate from the Deschutes county public health association. The Salem hospital will be insufficient for the number of patients in a short time, and new facilities will undoubtedly be provided.

The number of patients now coming to Deschutes county was given much weight in the discussion of the proposed new hospital. While the decision on the location of the hospital will rest with the legislature and the state health department, the tuberculosis association's recommendation in the matter will carry much weight. Sentiment was strong for a location at Bend, said Rev. Purdy.

Seal Sale Praised

Deschutes county's seal sale was the most successful in the state, it was brought out, and Mrs. A. H. Oliver, chairman of the committee in charge, was given much credit for her work in organizing the sale.

There are now between 8,000 and 10,000 developed cases of tuberculosis in Oregon, it was shown, and over half are in Portland, according to the report.

BELIEF HAS A FOUNDATION

Idea That Seventh Child of a Seventh Child is "Gifted" Not Altogether a Fallacy.

The seventh child of a seventh child (sometimes "the seventh son of a seventh son") is supposed to be gifted with the power of curing headaches and more serious ailments by the laying on of hands, and to have other magical powers. In other words, he is supposed to have a "gift."

Among the later discoveries in eugenics was that the younger children of very intelligent men inherited more of their father's intelligence than did the older children; or, as sometimes happened, that the children of a younger son were supremely gifted with intelligence. The reason for this—according to eugenic theories—is that talented men or women, like many others, usually marry when fairly young if they marry at all. The older children of such a talented man have therefore the tendency to inherit only what mental qualities he may have developed at that time.

But supposing that the talented man, as is usually the case, continues to develop amazing mental qualities, then if he has children when his brain is completely mature, those children will probably inherit their father's matured mentality; or, if they do not inherit it, their children (the clever man's grandchildren) receive the inheritance.

Writers Got Money in Advance.

The Seventeenth or Eighteenth century author traded rather more on the trustfulness of the public than does the new school, for he peddled his book before it was written and sometimes spent the proceeds before he had completed half a dozen chapters. The only difference is that his peddling was particular rather than general; he went round the houses of the great and wealthy with his "plan" and the great and wealthy, generally in sufficient numbers, got rid of him by agreeing to have their names put down for a subscription. If they were very great or very wealthy they might expect a dedication thrown in, as it were, in which respect the modern peddler has no advantage, for no obligation is implied in the purchase of a copy of the book.—Manchester Guardian.

Huge Apple Tree.

At Meath gardens, Helston, Cornwall, England, is a remarkable apple tree planted over seventy years ago. It needs a 35-stave ladder to reach the top branches, and the tree is dome shaped, with branches reaching to the ground. When underneath the tree it looks like a room capable of holding over 200 persons. It is reported to be the largest apple tree in Cornwall, Devon and Somerset, and this season was loaded with fruit of very fine quality estimated to weigh over two tons.

GOOD SHOOTING GIVES VICTORY

GAME OF CLOSE GUARDING WON BY BEND HIGH QUINSET—ORRELL AND JOHNSON CLEVER IN SCORING BASKETS.

Phenomenal shooting on the part of Orrell and Johnson of the Bend high school quintet, which triumphed over the close guarding of the Prineville team, was responsible for the 24 to 18 victory gained last week by the local school. That the game was exceedingly close was shown in the score at the end of the first half, 12 to 10 for Bend. At no time, however, did Prineville have the lead.

The guarding on both sides was so fast that for over five minutes after the game began, neither team scored. Finally Orrell shot a basket from somewhere near the center ring, and a minute later repeated the trick. Johnson converted a foul and Orrell scored his third basket before Smith, Prineville's reputed star forward, was able to get his lone basket of the game.

Johnson threw another foul and he and Orrell each secured another long distance score, while Roberts and Almack of Prineville each got two of the same description toward the end of the first half.

Norcott took the first basket in the second half, and Jacobs of Prineville the next. Then after a period of hard "wrestling," the Bend team managed to get its collective eye in the basket and the score was boosted to 22. Orrell and Kohfield each getting a basket and Johnson two. Roberts of Prineville scored twice more, and Norcott of Bend took the final basket.

The teams: Bend— forwards, Orrell (10), Johnson (8); center, Norcott (4); guards, Claypool, Kohfield (2); Prineville— forwards, Smith (2), Almack (4); center, Roberts, (8); guards, Jacobs (2). Wright, Referee, L. Coyner.

IMPROVEMENT SEEN IN TRAPS SCORES

Creditable Marks Made in Shooting Doubles—Buchwalter Scores High in 25 Bird Event.

Consistent improvement was noted in the work of Bend's trapshooters Sunday over the scores made earlier in the season. S. T. Fox and Dr. J. C. Vandeventer made creditable marks in shooting "doubles," two clay birds being sprung at the same time at different angles. Fox broke 15 of the 20 birds, and Dr. Vandeventer 13.

Other scores were: 20 bird event, Claude Metz 19, S. T. Fox 19, D. H. Peoples 20, H. D. Innis 19, R. N. Buchwalter 21, Dr. J. C. Vandeventer 20, L. E. Sealey 13; ten bird event, Dr. Vandeventer 7, Innis 7, Fox 8, Buchwalter 8, Peoples 4.

I used it for all my children and also for my grandchild. It always did fine work." Foley's is pure, wholesome and absolutely safe. Sold Everywhere.—Adv.

FIRE DESTROYS BATTERY SHOP

PROPRIETOR DRIVEN FROM BED IN EARLY MORNING—LOSS IS HALF INSURED—SHORT CIRCUIT THOUGHT CAUSE.

Fire shortly after 7 o'clock last Thursday gutted the battery shop of H. R. Riley on Greenwood avenue, completely destroying the battery equipment and badly damaging the building. Riley, who was sleeping in a room at the rear of the building, was driven out of bed by the flames. The cause is believed to have been a short circuit in the battery room, as the fire started there.

The loss in battery equipment was about half covered by insurance, said Riley. Two cars belonging to him were in the front part of the shop, and were badly scorched before they could be taken from the building.

Acting Fire Chief John Taylor estimated the loss at between $2,000 and $2,500. The insurance amounted to $1,200.

The fire department made a good run, and extinguished the roaring fire in the battery shop in short order with the effective use of two hoses, using pumper power.

Firemen seem to be particularly unlucky in having fires on their own property. Riley is the third member of the department to have a fire in the last year, the others being George Stokoe and Emil Hess. W. R. Riley, father of the proprietor of the shop, has recently sold his interests in La Pine with a view to taking part in the operation of the shop which was destroyed this morning.

Lieurance's Symphonic Orchestra, Noted Organization, Exemplifies Musical Ideal

Local People to Enjoy All-String Combination, Organized by Thurlow Lieurance, Noted Composer of Indian Music.

The appearance of Lieurance's Symphonic Orchestra will mark a red letter day in local Lyceum affairs. This company was coached by Thurlow Lieurance, noted composer of Indian music, and is undoubtedly one of the finest orchestras now appearing before the public. While Mr. Lieurance does not travel personally with the company, he has entrusted the leadership to Harry Anderson, a fine young violinist, a pupil of Mae Reese of Berlin, and later with Carl Steckenberg.

There are eight people in the company, five violins, cello, piano, and a soloist, Miss Violet Falk, contralto. The program features the difficult symphony music which usually is heard only in the large metropolitan music halls.

CHRISTMAS TREES WILL LAST

Little Danger That in Years to Come the Children Will Be Deprived of Joy.

Don't join any gloom group that may be trying to form a society for the prevention of cruelty to Christmas trees, advises a writer in the Kansas City Star.

The forests are there to be used, and if, as we utilize the trees, we make it possible by replanting for our children and our children's children to have trees, there is no reason for not having Christmas trees as well as all the lumber we need.

That is the way the scientific forester, the man who grows trees like the farmer grows wheat, looks at this matter of Christmas trees.

While there is still some regrettable ruthless cutting of spruce and fir for the Christmas tree market in northern states, many Christmas trees are now a by-product of the forests. There are small trees in every properly managed woodlot that must be sacrificed so that the others may have room to grow. These make fine Christmas trees.

Christmas trees are also being raised in nurseries. Baby spruce and fir trees are planted by man so that the babies and children of man can have Christmas trees in their nurseries. And a Christmas tree is usually between the ages of five and ten years, just about the age of the child who enjoys Christmas most. In the future years, it is expected that nearly all of our Christmas trees will be raised by nurserymen from the forests.

DON'T SWALLOW THEIR YOUNG

Popular Idea Concerning Snakes is Not Borne Out by the Observations of Scientists.

Snakes don't swallow their young. The ventral scales on a female snake are controlled by a muscle just behind the head. Ordinarily they are horizontal, but when the mother snake contracts her muscles the muscle on the back of her neck, which immediately brings the scales to a vertical position. This opens a slit under the bottom jaw, and at the same time loosens the abdominal skin, thus forming a pouch. The younger ones dart through the slit and into the pouch, and this is what has led people to think they take refuge in the mother snake's stomach.

It requires careful and skilled dissection to detect the pouch, because the skin shrinks when a snake is killed. When the poison gland is removed it tightens the skin under the neck, and the youngsters can't get into the pouch. In the female snake, between the pharynx and the gullet, there is a peculiar, lid-like valve, and anything passing this valve can't possibly return.

Cat Took Nap in Limousine.

The cat that looked at a king was only slightly more ambitious than a Hyde Park tabby that took possession of a limousine standing by the curb, remarks the Chicago Post. The cat, a bedraggled stray, was pussyfooting through the rain of one of the recent cold days, evidently in search of a comfortable place for a nap. It passed by doorways and flungers as not up to its aristocratic demands, then spied the limousine standing at the curb and promptly decided to move in.

Unfortunately for the cat, the doors of the car were closed. Tabby found this out after a thorough inspection that started at the left side running board, included the top and then the right side running board. Finally the cat tried the front, but the windshield was closed, too. Then tabby picked out a spot on the hood that still retained some heat from the engine, curled up and went to sleep.

Tabby held possession until the owner appeared.

Weeds.

What hidden virtue is in these things that it is granted them to sow themselves with the wind, and to grapple the earth with this immitigable stubbornness, and to flourish in spite of obstacles, and never to suffer blight beneath any sun or shade, but always to mock their enemies with the same wicked luxuriance? It is truly a mystery and also a symbol. There is a sort of sacredness about them. Perhaps, if we could penetrate nature's secrets, we should find what we call weeds are more essential to the well being of the world than the most precious fruit or grain. This may be doubted, however, for there is an unmistakable analogy between these wicked weeds and the bad habits and sinful propensities which have overrun the moral world; and we may as well imagine that there is good in one as in the other.—Hawthorne.

Domestic Stuff.

"Oh, goodness gracious mercy, I'm most distracted! I've looked for it everywhere and I simply can't find it!" wailed Mrs. Worrylotte.

"Why don'tcha look where you're sure yuh didn't put it?" inquired Worrylotte, who knew his woman.

ERROR COMMITTED BY MANY

Grave Mistake to Leave Business Position in a General Cloud of Unpleasant Feeling.

The man or woman of small ambition and smaller achievement feels that it is his privilege and pleasure always to leave a position he is "quitting" in a cloud of unpleasant feeling. So long as he remains in his position he puts up with unpleasantness, stifles his dislikes for the men over him and does his best to grin and bear things. When he realizes that he can take his destiny in his own hands, and ask to have his name stricken off the pay roll, he takes intense satisfaction in airing his prejudices and showing every one in the place just how he feels about things. He undoes in a day all that he has gained in the months or years that he has worked there.

The man or woman with ambition knows that the world of business is a small place. Merely from a selfish point of view it is essential to maintain pleasant relations even with those who, you feel, have treated you unjustly. If you have put up with their ill treatment while working for them surely you ought to be more willing to do so when you have the inner satisfaction of knowing that you are going.

In fact, you can stretch a point and forgive and forget old rancors. It may be, you know, that in another shuffle up you will be placed in a position where one of the persons for whom you have the most spite will be placed in a position where his friendship will mean a great deal to you. So do the well-bred thing, which is to stifle your own petty animosities and exercise your self-control to the extent of leaving the old place with a handshake all-round.—Exchange.

THOUGHT NOT REALLY RAPID

Mind Moves Comparatively Slowly, Notwithstanding Expression That Has Become Common.

"As quick as thought" is an expression much used to denote the acme of speed in action, but, like so many popular expressions, this one is misleading. Thought, or at least the mental registering of a sensation, is not an exceedingly speedy process, the thought impulse moving at the comparatively slow speed of 110 feet a second, or 75 miles an hour. Light travels nearly nine million times as swiftly. Thought would be hopelessly beaten in a race with a motorcar.

Perhaps a good illustration of the comparative slowness of thought waves is to assume that a man had an arm 75 miles long and that, when he was not looking a friend should grasp his hand. Before the owner of that arm became conscious that his hand had been touched, the friend would have released it, and had time to walk four miles or eat a very extensive dinner.—Kansas City Star.

Two Kinds of Thinkers.

There are two kinds of people in the world—word people and fact people. The former deal in words and phrases and form their judgments on opinions and beliefs. The latter analyze questions and draw conclusions only from the point of view of what they believe to be established facts. The two types are as far apart as the north and south poles and are incapable of carrying on anything in the way of intelligent argument or debate, because they do not talk the same language or think by the same method. The word man starts with a desired conclusion and fashions his facts to produce that result. The fact man analyzes his subject, seeks to establish the truth in regard to facts which have a bearing on it and then fearlessly draws what he believes to be honest conclusions. His process is like the working out of a mathematical problem; he does not know what the answer will be until the last figure is made. He thinks forward, while the word man thinks backward.
