Unfounded Rumor— A rumor was prevalent on the streets of Grants Pass Sunday afternoon that President Wilson had been assassinated earlier in the day. How the rumor started is unknown, but it flew like wildfire and was even announced from the pulpit of one of the city churches. This morning the Courier telephone was kept ringing constantly by people anxious to know the facts. The rumor was unfounded. Got the Watch but Got Pinched— A warrant was sworn out in Judge Holman's court today for Fred Wallace, a young man who has spent most of the summer around Grants Pass. Forester MacDuff on Annual Trip— Forest Supervisor MacDuff left Tuesday on the Crescent City stage for the Smith river district on his annual trip of forest supervision. The forestry office here has been active the past summer in the various improvements of Uncle Sam's domain within the Siskiyou reserve. More than 100 miles of telephone wires have been installed, 50 miles of trail built in the various districts and unusually efficient work accomplished, in keeping down the forest fires that are such a menace to the national forests at this time of year.

Accident Narrowly Averted— An appalling accident was narrowly averted Sunday afternoon when three automobiles met near Hells Gate on a narrow grade overlooking Rogue river. Sam Williams and Alfred Letcher in their automobiles were returning from Galice, Mr. Williams was ahead, and in rounding a point espied Commissioner C. L. Barlow coming down the grade. He turned out against the bank to allow Mr. Barlow to pass. Mr. Letcher, thinking that Williams had turned out for him to pass, went full speed ahead and a head-on collision was in sight. Barlow applied the brakes and put on the emergency, but was unable to stop and turned out to clear the two machines. He and two companions in the car gave a leap and landed in the road. The car struck a tree and started to pitch over the bank and into the river, but hung on a balance at the verge of the precipice. Everyone was badly frightened, but no one was hurt, and when Mr. Barlow's little Brush car was pulled back into the road he continued his journey toward home.

OLD SWEETHEARTS MEET AFTER MANY YEARS A pretty romance was brought to a happy ending Wednesday evening when Rev. J. S. Stubblefield united John F. Lloyd of Grants Pass and Lydia L. Van Brimmer of Klamath Falls. Only a few relatives and friends attended the ceremony. The contracting parties were sweethearts when Mrs. Lloyd was in her early 'teens and the groom was in his twenties, living in Central Kansas. Circumstances separated them, Mr. Lloyd going east for a time, and upon his return he found the young lady married to another man. A few years later he married also. Both families eventually drifted to the west, and each was parted by death from the helpmeet taken at the altar. A few months ago the widow and widower met again, and the wedding last Wednesday evening is the result.—Klamath Falls Herald.

A new 2-ton automobile truck has been installed at the Almeda mine and is hauling matte to Merlin for shipment, making two round trips from the mine to the railroad daily. A number of trips have been made to Gold Hill for lime rock to be used in the smelting. These trips cover a distance of something over 99 miles and are made in a day of 10 hours. The truck starts from Merlin in the morning, making the run to Gold Hill, loading, then back to Almeda, unloading the lime and loading with matte, then to Merlin to the railway station. A large force of practical miners is at work in the shafts and the smelter is being run continuously with satisfactory shipment of matte.

GAME OF C. O. D. GETS YOUTH INTO TROUBLE

An alleged dealer in gold bricks walked squarely into the hands of Sleuth McLane Saturday afternoon, and was taken into custody, green-banded hat and all, and held in the city jail to await the order of the sheriff of Jackson county, where he was wanted for having worked bunco games on hotel men in Ashland and Medford.

Hammond or Ash, which were names used by the man, a dapper appearing fellow of about 30 years of age, had a novel scheme which he used to produce easy money from hotel keepers who "fell" for his game. He would find the name of some guest of the hotel who was not at the immediate moment in the hotel, and would call up the hotel from some outside phone, representing himself to be the guest, and would state that he expected a C.O.D. to be delivered at the hotel for him, and asked that the hotel settle for it and charge it to his account, when he would settle on returning to the hostelry. A little later a confederate would appear at the hotel with the package, make the collection and disappear. The hotel would be long one valueless package and short in its cash account. This game was worked with profit in both Ashland and Medford.

The Grants Pass police department was notified to be on the watch for the man, and Chief McLane set out on a still hunt for him Saturday afternoon. The chief was standing in the Smith cigar store within a few feet of the telephone when a young man called up the Josephine hotel, and representing himself to be "Mr. Ash," said a package would arrive during his absence and asked that the hotel pay the C. O. D. charges as an accommodation, and that he would settle later. That was as far as the game went in Grants Pass, for Mac told the stranger that he had a package for him himself, and he gave him a suite at the Hotel de MacLane, where no C. O. D. packages ever get past. The messenger who assisted in the game at Medford is said to have been arrested there. It is believed that a confederate was in on the deal here, but he has not been found, and the package failed to arrive at the hotel on schedule time.

Mr. Rehkopf was born in Germany and came to Jacksonville in 1856; later he formed a partnership with Wm. Pernoll and engaged in mining at Williamsburg, then a thriving camp. On the decline of Williamsburg, he purchased a farm near Provolt, on which he has lived for 40 years. Up to within three months of the time of his death he was hale and hearty. He leaves one son, Henry Rehkopf, of Provolt.

CITY HOLDS RECORD FOR LONG TELEGRAM

All local records for the longest telegram were broken Saturday afternoon when the Western Union office sent a three-thousand word night letter to New York. So far as known this holds the record for a single message. This was handled without causing any delay to other wire traffic. Manager Presley and Operator Belding relieving each other during the sending, which took a little over two hours. In order to move this lengthy message without interfering with other business, it took the wire chief at Portland a few minutes to hook up a circuit made up of a common side of one wire from Grants Pass through a set of repeaters at Ashland, thence on a quad to Portland, where the only relay was necessary. Portland handing it direct to New York. The message referred to was sent by the city of Grants Pass to attorneys in New York, being the full text of the railway ordinance.
