McKellar's Bill Strikes at Cold Storage Combine.

PROVIDES HEAVY PENALTIES

Tennessee Representative's Measure Has Backing of Attorney General and Secretary of Agriculture Houston. Limits Time in Which Food Products May Be Kept in Storage.
 Washington.—Representative McKellar of Tennessee introduced a bill in the house designed to prohibit all cold storage manipulation of food products and prices. Mr. McKellar has had several conferences with Attorney General McReynolds and with Secretary of Agriculture Houston, and his measure is understood to have the backing of these officials.
 Mr. McKellar's bill would protect the public against being sold stale products by provisions that all goods in storage must be so tagged as to show the date of production or manufacture and the length of time held in storage. Drastic anti-trust provisions are included in the measure, providing extreme penalties for agreements by which it is sought to fix buying or selling prices or by which territory is divided among the big dealers. This section is aimed particularly at the meat trust, which controls not only the meat industry, but the egg market as well.

 It is provided that daily reports shall be made by packers and storage houses to the government, showing stock on hand, receipts and deliveries. The bill contains maximum penalties of $10,000 fines and ten years' imprisonment.
 These periods are provided in the bill in which food products may be kept in storage:
 Beef or its products, seven months; veal or its products, two months; pork or pork products, four months; sheep or goats, four months; lamb or kids, three months; poultry and game, three months; fish, two months; butter, three months.
 One provision which, it is believed, will protect the public against the purchase of bad eggs and will force the price down is that fixing the storage limit on eggs at three months. It is provided, however, that eggs may be stored for six months and placed on the market after they have been labelled as "seconds."
 It is the contention of Mr. McKellar that it has been a common practice to remove food products from storage during holiday seasons and then return them to storage if they are not sold. The bill specifically prohibits the return of any goods to storage after they have once been withdrawn without reference to the time they have been in storage. It is provided also that goods frozen in storage must be sold in a frozen condition.

GOT LICENSE YEAR AHEAD.

Planoe Was Too Hasty, and Girl Breaks Engagement.
 Denver.—Robert Talbot, a student at the University of Denver, obtained a marriage license to wed Miss Edith Chaunell Twitchell one year from now, but his brother, Charles Talbot, a Denver attorney, canceled the license.
 Young Talbot is protested. The action of his brother in having the license canceled is thought to have grown out of the publicity given the wedding preparations one year before the ceremony was to be performed.
 "There is no engagement," said Miss Twitchell. "Our engagement was to have been announced just before our marriage."
Suit Ends When Hag Dies.
 Jonesboro, Ark.—After a jury in the circuit court had driven twenty-five miles to determine the marks on a hog's ear and settle a suit between Dan Keller and Joe Simmons they found the animal dead. The court made the farmers shake hands and agree to be friends. They had quarreled five years over the ownership of the hog, which finally died of old age.
