HAS THE WORLD IMPROVED?
(Goodwin's Weekly.)

Since before the first rays of light, the heralds of the dawn of civilization were seen in the east, tribes and nations have settled their differences by war.

The stories of those wars were first preserved in tradition and legends, later by written accounts, and the traditions, legends and written accounts make up today the bulk of human history. The appeals at first were to idols of wood and stone, then to oracles and gods which men had invented; then to the living God and later still to Him who came preaching peace and good will to man.

The first wars were for plunder and power, and men fought with clubs and stones. Now the weapons are magazine and rapid-fire guns with great guns carrying death for miles, with serried ranks of scientifically trained men, armed by the latest devices for killing; with armored ships and torpedoes, with bomb and fire carrying aeroplanes, with all the sinister inventions of men, and the nefarious means which the genius of man has called into action to carry murder in their advance and to leave wreck and death and broken hearts in their rear.

This makes up the substance of the world's history. Is there any pleasure in contemplating it? Has it really settled anything save that here and there the dark page is lightened by the story of some tribe's or nation's struggle for disenthralment from unbearable tyranny?

As said above the first wars were incited by lust for loot and power. The most terrible war that the world has ever witnessed is now raging over all western Europe. What are the motives behind it except the motives behind the first war ever fought with some other quite as unworthy motives added?

The plea of commercialism is but an enlarged plea for power and loot; to this is added the land lust which is a passion with all the nations engaged. Deep down what more is there in this war, what more of principle, than there was in the darkened soul of the chief in the stone age who wanted the cave of a neighboring chief because it had more accommodations than his own cave had, and who figured that as one of his tribe had invented the bow and arrow and tipped the arrows with flint, he would have so much the advantage over his neighbor in a fight that he could easily take his cave?

A few years ago the great white Czar, looking over his vast domain and looking upon the degradation of a majority of his people, for a moment was touched, and possibly, for a moment, there came to him a vision of what would be could the revenues of his realm be devoted to educating his people, teaching them the loveliness of the first pages of the book of knowledge; teaching them how to profitably work, supplying them with homes and the means to earn a generous living. It must have been so, for he issued an invitation to the world's other powers to come together, and together formulate a code of laws through which to decide their differences peaceably and so away with war and its brutalities. The nations joyously assented; they sent their representatives to a congress; the code was framed and all subscribed to it, and one enthusiastic lover of peace built a great and splendid palace of peace in which the perpetual congress was to be held.

But alas! All the great powers beyond the sea, one after another, broke their plighted faith and at the sound of the first note of the old cry for loot and power, picked up again their weapons and began to cut their neighbors' throats. Have we any right to question the methods of the men of the stone age? Will the present war sober the nations enough to cause them to revive the agreement and to add penalties enough for would-be breakers of it to hold them to the compact?

In the Sweet Bye and Bye.

In about 1985, when we will have made our stake and can print a paper just as we please, our personal column will be a great deal more interesting than it now is. Specimen locals then to appear:

Abe Cheat was in and paid us his subscription this week—a dollar and a half that we never hoped to get.

In our humble opinion, the old-fashioned red petticoat was a great deal better than none at all, which kind seem to be strongly in favor this summer.

While it is a well known fact that Jim Kreditt's kids never get a penny for candy, Mrs. Kreditt says Jim manages to scrape up forty cents a week for chewing tobacco.

Mrs. Goode informs us that her neighbor, Mrs. Tightwad, borrows her Tribune every week, and, like everything she borrows, never returns it. When we become mayor we shall make it a crime to borrow a paper.—Maxwell (la.) Tribune.

Sleep is Great Dope.

I go to roost tired out and sore, and sigh, while yet awake, "There's no use living any more, life's such a grievous fake. It's nothing but a round of toil and tears and things like those; my heart a sorer than a boil, I have so many woes." While grumbling thus I start to snore until the bed-springs rock, and then for seven hours or more, I sleep around a block. Ah, far and wide my snores are flung, till wakeful neighbors yell; I learned to sleep when I was young, my tutors taught me well. For seven hours or maybe nine, I sleep with ardent zeal; then in this withered heart of mine, new energy I feel. I murmur, as I don my rags, "How foolish is despair. I don't indorse those dismal wags who say that life's a snare. I'm glad that I have work to do, and wish I had some more; I'll gaily toil the long day through, enjoying every chore. I feel as fresh and free from aches as Adam, ere his fall; bring on your wildcats and snakes, and I shall whip them all." Oh, sleep! It is the only dope that's never known to fail, that brings new courage, faith and hope, when man is tired and stale.—Walt Mason.

Take One Pain Pill, then Take it Easy.

For Neuralgia, nothing is better than Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills Used by thousands for a generation

Those who have suffered from neuralgic pains need not be told how necessary it is to secure relief. The easiest way out of neuralgia is to use Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. They have relieved sufferers for so many years that they have become a household necessity.
"I have taken Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for five years and they are the only thing that does me any good. They have relieved neuralgia in my head in fifteen minutes. I have also taken them for rheumatism, headache, pains in the breast, toothache, muscle and pain in the hands and limbs. I have found nothing to equal them and they are all that is claimed for them."
