Greenport, L. I.—After being ill for ten months, Cortland Brooks is dead at his home here. When he began to cough he was taken to a hospital and put in a plaster but continued to be bothered with the same cough even in his sleep. Physicians diagnosed his malady as tuberculous of the spine.

Recorder Ruminations

In a personal letter from a friend in Chicago, who is closely posted on conditions on LaSalle St. in that city he says: "Times are dull here yet. A lot of men are out of employment. But things seem to have picked up a little of late."
He encloses two weekly review letters from New York brokers, one of which appears sufficiently interesting to publish in part. It is valuable as the point of view of one class of citizens. Sober minded people must recognize in it some powerful blows at the blind self-satisfaction and conceit of the average American boomer. The extract follows:

As the result of Germany's challenge the whole of Europe is learning a much needed lesson in economy and efficiency; the vitality and solidarity of the British empire will thereby be augmented and stabilized for many generations. Of all the countries in the world the United States of America is the least efficient, least economical and most absurdly governed.

It should be distinctly recognized that our present pre-eminence in commerce and finance is not due to superior organization, favorable prices or skillful salesmanship. The Allied powers must have munitions of war and here they can purchase them in unlimited quantities if they are willing to pay the price.

After the war it will possess no natural advantages in the markets of the world save that due to financial power and possession of fitting wealth unless we, too, learn the lesson. Why is it that Germany is so efficient not alone in war but in industry? It is because the faculties and feds originating in other countries become in her hands stepping stones to continued advance in science and industry and no system of education is tolerated or supported which does not result in material gain.

The idea that every one born into the world is capable of a "career" has sorely blighted our public educators; financial exigencies are compelling the re-organization of the public schools of New York city and we hear considerable discussion of the relative merits of the different systems of education.

The "Gary" system may be good, but it is ridiculous to talk of its spiritual advantages or claim that it will enable pupils to lead "broader lives." The value of the system must be capable of being expressed in gold dollars, otherwise it is swindling the tax payers to adopt it.

The fact that the free born "American" is too good to work with his hands or perform unskilled labor, accounts in a large measure for the continual stream of undesirable emigration which flows toward our shores.

We must, then, if we are to get our share of the world's commerce after the war, cultivate efficiency in education and government and cease heekling real enterprise with foolish laws and socialistic vagaries.

Although there is much in the above with which we can not agree, especially the placing of a standard goal which is the ability to turn talent into dollars, still its impelment of the notion that every American is a king and should lead and not follow is forceful. Teamwork and not leadership should be emphasized.

No one thing that could happen to Bandon would be of so much value to it as the securing of a railroad. A railroad would give it that one thing essential to its development and stability, not only in the mind of people seeking a home but those who are already here—permanence.

It would remove that ever recurring doubt that has a blighting influence and no one thing would set the residents of the city unitedly to pulling in a common direction.

The extension of the railroad from

Coos Bay to Bandon would be the best thing that could happen to the city and no effort should be neglected that would help to bring about this desirable end.

With continental Europe burning up its substance in powder smoke, destroying property and life in a manner unexampled in the history of the world; disregarding every law of God or man that stands between a nation and that which it desires, with a nation to the south of us in the grip of anarchy, it appears from our viewpoint that the Wilson proposal to increase the armament of the nation will prove one of the most popular acts of his administration.

Representatives of the warring nations of Europe are on their way to meeting at Bern, Switzerland, for a conference, goes an item of information from across the water. That a conference will be held is denied and there appears more or less mystery attached to the gathering. While the tendency of the leaders on both sides is to go on, for pride is an unyielding thing and pride is at the bottom of the whole trouble, yet the people of the warring nations recognize that this is not their fight and evidences of their unrest may be readily noted despite the rigid censorship.

If the common herd, the people who are bearing the brunt of battle and taxation make up their minds to end the foolish struggle they can do it. The occurrence of a boundary line does not make the people on one side saints and on the other side demons. Humanity is the same no matter under whatever flag it may be found and the interests of all are in the long run, identical. If this conference should turn out to be representative of the people of these unfortunate nations and from the conference they should evolve a United States of Europe, who shall say that the loss of blood and property has been in vain?

J. N. Langlois brought up the Hosmer troupe from Dairyville Monday.

F. M. Langlois of Dairyville was having a house built on the lot recently purchased of Ed Ohman.

The ocean had been quite rough during the week and as there was no wind here it was surmised that there were heavy storms out at sea.

The Hosmer show was given a very light attendance.

The schooners Lilla and Mattie were towed to Riverton for coal which they would load in part and finish with lumber. This was the first shipment of coal from the river.

W. C. Wrenshall and brother Harry returned to Bandon from a few months absence during which they visited the Auckland Islands, the Samoan Islands and Australia, finding nothing the SERVICE FIRST!

Did you ever try to figure out how much your telephone was worth to you? Each time you place a call and each time you answer the bell, just reduce todollars and cents the value in convenience and comfort and saving of time and money which the telephone is to you. Then add these values at the end of the month and you will have a sum much greater than the cost of our service. It may be twice as great or a hundred times as great. This is your dividend of service. You may increase it at your pleasure by using the telephone more.
