Very little has yet been done towards Beaverton's proposed street fair this fall. It has been suggested that some time during September would be the better time to hold the fair. But as yet there is practically nothing in hand towards organization to get the matter under way and the first proposed date will necessarily have to be postponed. We have learned that the Beaverton Grange has appointed a committee to solicit and prepare an exhibit for the county fair, and the grange expects to have a larger and better display of agricultural products than it had last year at the county fair at Forest Grove, and you are all familiar with its prize winning success then. The idea at first was to hold the local fair just ahead of the county fair and secure the grange exhibit for our street enterprise. In that case our fair cannot be postponed to a later date than the first days of October.

Suit has been brought in Josephine county, through the district attorney, to oust E. J. Lind county commissioner, because of the fact that he is also serving as county roadmaster. The contention is that he cannot hold two offices at the same time. As roadmaster Mr. Lind receives the same per diem—$3 to $5—as he does as commissioner for each day of actual work performed by himself. The case will be watched with interest by several other Oregon counties that are doing likewise.

The politicians are still discussing what to do with the O. & C. land grant. They are all very generous in turning the surplus funds, after paying the railroad company $2.50 an acre, into the school fund, benefitting the school fund being always a popular proposition. But it should be remembered that these same politicians squandered the Oregon school funds by letting the school lands get away from the state for a little or nothing. For the sake of the poor, homeless and landless let us have a new deal in disposing of these lands, one not originated with the elements that have wasted our school lands in the past. —Col E. Hofer at Waldport.
