As the Editor Sees It

This town has many boosters and you all know them, you admire them, you respect them. And your respect is more precious to the genuine booster than is your gold. It is only the killer who stands alone, without friends without future. Be a booster. There may be a killer or two in this town, but we hope not. But if there are any we hope they will cease killing and go to boosting. There is no honor or profit in killing, but there is much to be gained through boosting. Be a booster! We need the booster we need more boosters. But we can exist handsomely without the killer, for the killer's principal diversion in life is to take a knock at the town, at its people, at their ways, and at everything and everybody connected therewith—except the killer. Be a booster! If there are any killers in this town let's convert them, so all can be boosters. The booster is of value to every legitimate thing with which he comes in contact, while the killer is not even of value to himself. Heaven loves a booster and hell is full of killers. Everybody be a booster for Ione!

Jamaica's Rat Plague.
It is supposed that rats destroy every year at least a twentieth part of the sugar canes in Jamaica, amounting in value to a little short of a million dollars. The sugar cane is their favorite food, but they also prey upon Indian corn, on all the fruits that are accessible to them, and on many of the roots. Some idea can be formed of the immense swarms of these destructive animals that infest this island

MILK PAIL NOTES.

The strainer never was made that will take foul matter out of milk. None ever will be made. You have got to keep it out.
The testing association promotes a greater appreciation of the cow, and consequently better results are sure to follow.
Feed the calves so they will keep on milking and form the habit of persistency. Inheritance has something to do with persistency in milking, though care and feed will encourage and establish the habit.
You can make fairly good axle grease from stale cream, but never good butter.
The man with five cows and a separator is better off than his neighbor with eight cows and no machine.
The dairyman who will sell off each season two or three of his poorest cows will soon improve his herd if he replaces them by calves raised from his best cows.

One of New York's Show Places.
The collector's office at the custom house is one of the show places of New York city. His ornate room was decorated from designs by Cass Gilbert, who drew the plans for the custom house, and Will Guernsey. This high-ceilinged apartment, with its oak paneling, mural paintings of Dutch ships and Colonial scenes, and its great fireplace, cost upward of $25,000. The ceiling of raised gold figures on a purple ground is a copy of an old Italian ceiling, with original figures, such as fish, tridents, boats and other appropriate subjects. The big fireplace with wide hearth and high mantel-shelf, is of gray stone. Below the shelf is inscribed the history of the first custom house, which stood on this spot.—New York Sun.

German Women as Soldiers.
Something like a century ago Prussia rose against Napoleon, who was already weakened by the retreat from Moscow, and with the help of the Austrians and also of a very large body of Russians managed to drive the French army over the frontier, after defeating it in the tremendous two day struggle at Leipzig.

It appears that certain women played a prominent part in this fighting. Seventeen daughters of Prussia were at the front during this momentous conflict. They were most capable as soldiers, able to command and able to obey, as well as being capable of withstanding the hardships of campaigning. To cite some instances, Maria Werder, a woman of Silesia, was allowed to serve as a hussar in the same regiment as her husband, who was a wealthy landowner.

Elenora Prochaska is one of the better known of these heroines. She engaged, under the name of "Carl Rens," in the Light Horse when only eighteen, and several poets have sung of her courage. A monument to her memory stands in Potsdam.—Washington Star

Military Decorations.

Medals as decorations for military service were first issued in England by Charles I. in 1643.

WHITE WINGS ON PARADE.

"What are the windows open for?" old Father William said.
"To let out dust, to let out dust," said White Wings on parade.
"What makes you smile so gay, so gay?" old Father William said.
"I'm glad for what I'm going to watch," said White Wings on parade.
"For they're cleaning up the city. You can hear the brooms go swish." old Father William said.
The maids are in the kitchen; they are washing pan and dish. They've cleaned out all the corners and every nook you'd wish. For they're cleaning up the city in the morning."

"Where have the noisy children gone?" old Father William said.
"They've sent them to their gran-nies," said White Wings on parade.
"Where are the tolling husbands?" old Father William said.
"They've left the house to wifery," said White Wings on parade.
"For they're cleaning up the city. You can hear them scrub and dust." old Father William said.
They are cleaning stoves and faucets; they are scraping off the rust. They are polishing and shining till you'd think the pipes would bust. For they're cleaning up the city in the morning."

"What's that so black against the sun?" old Father William said.
"It's but a dirty city," said White Wings on parade.
"What's that that squeaks beneath my feet?" old Father William said.
"The carpet sweeper now in use," said White Wings on parade.
"For they're cleaning up the city till the walls and floors shall glow." old Father William said.
They're fixing up the gardens so the springtime plants'll grow. They're whitewashing the cellars so that all the dirt will go. For they're cleaning up the city in the morning."

"What makes the housewife breathe so hard?" old Father William said.
"I guess it's dust, I guess it's dust," said White Wings on parade.
"What is that cloud that flies so high?" old Father William said.
"They're beating out the dusty rags," said White Wings on parade.
"For they're cleaning up the city; they are sweeping all the rooms." old Father William said.
They have worn out all the britches in a half a million brooms. They'll not be glad to see tonight instead of darkness gloom. After cleaning up the city in the morning."—Orestis G. Caroon.

THE ECONOMICS OF CITY PLANNING.

Thomas Adams, English Expert, Emphasizes Its Practical Phases.

"I am very glad to hear that among the objects of the American Civic Association is that of getting rid of the impression that city planning has mainly to do with the large cities of hundreds of thousands of inhabitants, and, indeed, that it is not solely concerned with these cities, but that one of the main functions of city planning is to deal with the small town and even with the small village community," so said Thomas Adams, the well-known English town planning expert now civic adviser to the commission of conservation of Canada, in opening an address at the recent convention of the American Civic Association on the subject, "The Economic Basis of City Planning."

Continuing, Mr. Adams said: "Town planning does not deal with the beautification of the town, but town planning, I should rather like to put it, includes the embellishment of the external features of the town, both in regard to its public buildings and in regard to its transportation. But these matters are only part of what should be properly regarded as city planning. And when we come to analyze the fundamental things in city life we find that really we ought not to begin with the embellishment or with the beautiful in the city, but that after the routs of civil life the two things that matter are the industrial and the residential as the factories and home life. You want not only to look forward for the next thirty, forty or fifty years in regard to your park systems, but you want to make sure that in the next forty, fifty or sixty years every person who builds a new home will be secured against disease which may be created by anything that can be prevented. You want to make sure that the conditions shall be healthy in regard to housing as well as in regard to the general civic aspect of the city."

Mr. Adams emphasized the necessity of proper legislative steps to give municipalities power to carry out town planning schemes. He pointed out that to have a successful application of restrictive regulations there must be cooperation between the owner and the municipality. "If you leave the control of your building development until the buildings are up the owner is not going to submit to restrictions which will take away his property. If you go to him twelve years before he will join you in the proper health regulations which will help him properly to control and restrict the property so long as you restrict everybody else in the district accordingly."

In closing Mr. Adams said: "Somebody said that you in America have no war. Have you not? You have got war with potential degradation and slum life just as we have in Europe and you have to fight it. You have war with all these difficulties that breed preventable disease, with those difficulties that always confront us. I want to appeal to the American Civic Association to be up and doing. Not only let it be said that this hemisphere is a place where there are liberty and freedom, politically speaking, but it is also a hemisphere of homes."

What He Calls Her.

"Now, Willie," said the teacher of the primary class, "let us see whether you can tell us the name of this graceful looking animal with the big pronged horns? Hunters go up into the woods every fall to shoot this beautiful creature. It is very cruel of them to do so, is it not? Can't you tell us what the animal is called? Come, now, think I am sure you know what it is. What does your father call your mother when he comes home at night?"
"He calls her Betsy 'cause it plagues her."—Chicago Herald.

Fatal Shock.

Poor Watersbury died in a nervous fit. His was an unusual fate: They built him a house and finished it inside of the first estimate.

FLY CAUSES DREADED INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

INFANTILE paralysis is one of the most baffling diseases the medical profession has to deal with. Although it is confined largely to children, it sometimes visits adults. Death often follows within a week after infection and sometimes in as little time as forty-eight hours. High fever, delirium and convulsions mark its presence. The Rockefeller Institute was founded in 1901 primarily to arrive at some preventive or curative agent to fight the plague. It has received since its establishment gifts from the oil magnate aggregating more than $5,000,000. The institute grew out of the death of Jack McCormick, one of Mr. Rockefeller's grandchildren, who died of this awful disease. The child's death awakened within its grandparent the determination to use his wealth to dispense the hidden and mysterious cause of the disease.

Moving Picture Tricks.
Some of the most thrilling scenes in the moving picture dramas are taken with the aid of small models, which are considerably less than life size. It is much cheaper, of course, to burn up a toy building or to sink a miniature ship than to destroy an original to make a moving picture holiday. The models used for this work are carried out with great attention to detail, and the pictures are taken with the camera very close to the ground to get the proper perspective. The moving picture audiences, even when paying the closest attention, are completely deceived.—Boston Herald.

The Stronger Material.
A crockery dealer was just closing up his store for the day when one of his customers, a grocer, came in in a great hurry.
"Here," said he, "I packed this jar full of butter and the jar split from top to bottom. Perhaps you can explain the phenomenon."
"Oh, yes; I can!" was the ready reply. "The butter was stronger than the jar."—Atlanta Constitution.
