THE NON-PARTISAN COMMITTEE

On Saturday, August 21, a party, headed by Robert E. Smith, representing the Oregon Taxpayers League, and Lloyd Riches, secretary of the Oregon Editorial Association, met at the rooms of the Commercial Club for a discussion of ways and means of educating electors on the ills that would befall Oregon industry and commerce, if they vote for an initiative measure, proposed for the November ballot, providing for a reduction of interest to four and five per cent. The visitors also discussed, and with equal emphasis, the Non-Partisan League. When these men, who had already held similar meetings in 11 other Oregon counties, completed their presentation of data, it was unanimously decided by the men present that some organization should be perfected in Hood River county, not only for educating people against the five per cent interest measure but for waging a campaign against Non-Partisanship. The meeting was made up of representative citizens, ranchers, professional men and business men. As it was Saturday morning, and an exceedingly busy time for the merchants present, it was decided to forego organization for the time being and the suggestion that the Commercial Club and Merchants Association appoint an executive committee of five to take charge of the work, was adopted. The action of the meeting was at once made known to J. H. Fredrick, vice-president of the Commercial Club and C. O. Huelat, president of the Merchants' Association.

The officials of the clubs heard the message, which placed emphasis equally on the menace of the five per cent interest measure and on the Non-Partisan League. They agreed to take the initiative in appointing the executive committee, the names of which were published last week. But it appears letters mailed out to the members of the committee, calling the first meeting, failed to make any mention of the Non-Partisan League, and the five men chosen, or those of them present, organized for the sole purpose of combating the interest bill. Nothing, however, was said to the press about the omission of the Non-Partisan part of the program, and thus embarrassment was brought to members of the committee. It was unfortunate that the press was not correctly informed of the failure of the officials of the Commercial Club and Merchants Association to follow the program as outlined at the original meeting.

As was stated in the Glacier last week, we believe Non-Partisanship as great a danger for Oregon as the five per cent interest bill. We are not opposed to farmers organizing for the betterment of their business and to secure more for their product. In view of the prices that farmers receive for produce and the ultimate charge made to the consumer, even though the produce passes through but few hands, there seems some need for reform. But Non-Partisanship, as put to practice in North Dakota and which leaders of the organization here to foist on Oregon and other Northwestern states, puts into effect a state socialism that would bring us many more ills than the one we can discern would follow in the wake of a five per cent interest bill. Indeed, we have reached the point where it will be necessary to do some thinking. We dread that not a tenth of the electors of Hood River county have any degree of understanding of Non-Partisanship and what have been its effects in North Dakota. Many who have professed a support of the radical trend have done so simply because of dissatisfaction with existing conditions, while others, of conservative tendencies, have expressed opposition simply because they refuse to tolerate anything that smacks of radicalism. We are reaching a point where we should give this new system of state socialism a close study. The very fact that the citizenship of Oregon communities has been found susceptible to the bacteria of Non-Partisan propagandists indicates the need of changes that will better the opportunities of producers. In no very distant time, if the signs of today mean anything, voters of Oregon are going to have to take a stand. If the electors will fully inform themselves we have no fear of the outcome.

THE FAIR

The Hood River county fair should be better this year than ever before. It will have all the impetus of the Monday celebration behind it. We were shown to what success we can carry a venture if we all get behind it. Fair sentiment already seems fairly general. But the fair board tells us that more exhibits and interest is needed on the part of fruitgrowers. They want more exhibits of early apples. If no apples are available they want the growers of the different districts to take space for a general boasting of their district.

Our great celebration not only laid the foundation for better intra-community spirit among us Hood River residents, but it is already resulting in a better inter-community spirit. The Dalles guests of the day as well as the numerous folk up from Portland came to know Hood River people as one community can never know another merely by hearsay. The Dalles Chronicle on Tuesday afternoon carried one of the best accounts of the fete that has appeared. It cannot be bettered. It was written by Ned Baldwin, secretary of Representative Sinnott. We feel that we are expressing the sentiment of every Hood River citizen when we say, "Thank you."

Hood River creamery is supplied with milk by Hood River orchardists. Manager Galt has determined to make the butter turned out from cows raised by growers of the world's finest apples second to none. He is succeeding well, and the butter sent to Corvallis recently tested highest of 10 Oregon creameries.

THE PICNIC

The meeting Monday pointed an invaluable reason to Hood River folk. Future meetings of such a nature will be all the more successful for it. Community endeavor will proceed with more of a unity of action. It was a day on which the entire population of the valley forgot politics, old grudges or religious preferences and participated in a great democratic gathering.

We should get together in such wise at least once a year. If we do so we can set a pace throughout the coast for community development.

The events of Monday to a newspaper man were something like a three-ring circus, and it is inevitable that some feature will be missed in the story that chronicles the joyous happenings. But we wish in our passing comment to express an appreciation of the faithful work of all committees, from executive committee all the way down to each individual community committee. The cooperation that was evidenced even surpassed that of war days, when we were all working for the great cause for which our boys were fighting.

Space does not permit of renaming these committees, but toward all of them we feel sure the county feels deeply grateful.

Our guests seemed to enjoy every moment of Monday. We are glad that they carried away with them thoughts that will linger in their memories and cause them to remember Hood River with kindness and interest. Our guest of honor, Mr. Benson, must have considered the great and sincere ovation to him a crowning moment of his life of hard work and achievement. We are glad that he knows the hearts of his countrymen while the current of life still flows strongly.

THE OLD OAKEN BUCKET

Time was when men could listen to "The Old Oaken Bucket" with genuine appreciation. But the moss-covered, iron-bound receptacle of olden times has been replaced by faucets and fountains and patent individual drinking cups. Along with prohibition the world will lose that wondrous conversational accomplishment of some men who discoursed with pleasure, and an actual knowledge of their subject, on the merits and peculiar qualities of various vintages, brews and products of the distillers. It was indeed a pleasure to see the epicurean bon vivant sip his wine with a perfume 20 years old and compare it with other vintages. Alas, he must now satisfy his delicate palate with an insipid concoction of the soda fountain. The shade of Robert Louis Stevenson must congratulate itself that all that was mortal of the great writer has departed the reformed earth.

And yet men like to display their knowledge of things good to drink in these days when the sign of the camel is predominant. The Portland Telegram last week carried a news story of even greater calamity than the ordinary, telling of the loss of a citizen there, at the hands of lucky burglars, of a quantity of old wines. Quarts and quarts, according to the Telegram story, of Louis Roderer and Bernascher Doctor, were obtained by the liquor thieves. The Telegram referred to the latter brand of wine as champagne. The general public would have remained ignorant but the superior knowledge of the editor of the Portland Spectator, who hurled a shaft of wit at the Telegram's editor, whose experience in the olden days, presumably from the Spectator's remarks, had fitted him for a better understanding of beverages, wouldn't permit so greivous an error to remain uncorrected. That wine with a name sounding like a college degree, according to the Spectator, is, or perhaps we should say with more correctness, was a Moselle without sparkle.

Such learned discussions will soon pass and knowledge like that imparted by Mr. Hume will be interred with departed octogenarians in the next 25 or 30 years.

TIRE REPAIRING
THAT'S GUARANTEED
Image of tire repair equipment.
If you knew you could get your old casings repaired in a way that would mean several thousand additional miles of service, you wouldn't hesitate a moment, would you?
You can, NOW. We guarantee it. When you bring your injured tire to our shop we will give you a very careful repair.
If we tell you we can make it practically as good as new you can depend on it - WE WILL. We guarantee that the repair will outlast the rest of the tire.
That's fair, isn't it?
We have recently installed at 6 Oak Street a Haywood Model 12 Tire Repair Plant. Haywood machines are in use in all first-class shops all over the world and the Model 12 is the biggest and best outfit built by Haywood.
So cleverly does it do its work that an entire section of a tire can be renewed, leaving little if any trace of where the old surface leaves off and the new begins.
An entire new tread can be applied to an old tire in such an altogether satisfactory way as to give in many cases double mileage and all without a single stitch being taken in the rubber.
Blowouts, Sand Boils, Rim Cuts, Punctures, etc., can be repaired in a perfectly satisfactory way.
Nothing but the highest grades of repair stocks are used in our plant.

YOUR TIRES ARE TOO VALUABLE TO THROW AWAY; GET THEM OVER TO WHITEHEAD'S TODAY.
