Miss Laura Rand, member of the year's graduating class of the University of Oregon and manager of the 1921 girls' glee club, has just been elected soloist and Precursor of the local Christian Science church. Miss Rand recently moved here from Portland with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Rand. Having been selected cosortier of this district by the Spirella Corset Co., 1 John Bevis and Lee Garwood had the experience of drifting towards the rapids in a dead gasoline launch last week and when they were picked up by Smith's ferry boat, the boys claimed the rapids looked as high as mountains and were roaring like a Kansas cyclone. The two had gone up the river a few miles when the engine refused to work. They were making way toward the Washington shore until they came to the eddy which kept them in mid stream and rapidly drifting down. People in town and in the country, after the boat had been abandoned, thought the old steamer Tahoma had gotten back in the river and was blowing a distress signal. They surely did about, and a good thing they could, for they would have drifted over the rapids in a short time had they not attracted the attention of the ferryman.

T. J. MILLER SHOT BY LUTHER FAGAN

Luther Fagan, just out of the penitentiary, shot T. J. Miller West Side orchardist, at his ranch place about noon yesterday, and then threatening to kill the women, forced Mrs. Miller and her daughter, Louise Miller, to enter an automobile. He disappeared at once in the car, but Sheriff Johnson later heard of his having been sighted near Tucker's Bridge. Fagan declared he was going to kill the women. He is believed insane, and poses feared that they would find the wreck of the automobile. The car occupied by Fagan, whose penitentiary term has just expired, was reported to have been stolen from the Miller home. Fagan, indicted here two years ago on a charge of attempted rape, Miss Watkins being the complaining witness, was found guilty by a jury. According to the testimony at the trial he followed the young woman, who had been superintendent in a southern California hospital, north. The testimony tended to show that he attempted to intimidate her. He was alleged to have assaulted her one evening while the two were on an automobile ride on the West Side. Miss Watkins is a daughter of Mrs. Miller. Fagan escaped from the penitentiary a little over a year ago. He was recaptured in eastern Oregon. The bullet made a flesh wound in Mr. Miller's chest. It struck a rib and was deflected across an arm. It is miraculous that the bullet did not penetrate the chest wall, it is said. A boy 11 years old, named Anderson, who was recently taken by Mr. Miller from the Portland Boys' and Girls' Aid Society home, was also forced to accompany the party in the automobile. Mr. Miller was not felled by the bullet wound. Fagan with the gun still on him and threatening to shoot again, forced the man to walk to his home. He permitted them to summon Dr. M. Thrane, and even while the physician was there, Mr. Miller says, the women were kept under the gun. Fagan permitted Dr. Thrane to leave for the hospital here with Mr. Miller, but threatened that he would kill the women if any report was made of him to officers.

FRUIT CONFERENCE IN PORTLAND SOON

Fruit growers from six states of the Northwest, including representatives of local shipping concerns and growers, will assemble at the Chamber of Commerce in Portland, July 11, 12 and 13, for the Western Fruit Marketing conference. Problems confronting the industry will be fully discussed and a program for remedying the present evils is slated to be drafted. P. O. Powell, secretary-treasurer the Oregon State Farm Bureau, with headquarters in Portland, has announced the program for three days' sessions, which are sponsored by the state farm bureaus of Oregon, Washington, California, Montana, Idaho and Utah. George A. Mansfield, of Medford, president of the Oregon State Farm Bureau, is scheduled to speak on the amalgamation of existing co-operative marketing associations and organizations of additional units. The subject of financing the growers and acceptance of fruit paper by local and federal reserve banks has been assigned to F. A. Duncan, president of the Yakima National Bank, Yakima, Wash. E. A. Bryan, of Boise, Idaho, will discuss the future of cooperative marketing. The necessity for an annual western fruit marketing conference will be explained by Ward M. Sackels, of Hamilton, Mont., manager of the Montana Fruit Distributors. The problem of pooling of purchases is to have an important place on the program. A speaker has not yet been assigned. The success of the Oregon Co-operative Growers' Association in its advertising campaign will be told by C. I. Lewis, assistant general manager of the association. Information will be given on advertising various western fruit.

Where Statistics Spell Something

Of all the business failures recorded in 1920, leading authority ascertained that 84 per cent were firms that did not advertise. Some of these firms may have figured that they were saving money by not advertising, but quite likely what they saved was used up by the overhead and they failed to realize that overhead can only be taken care of by volume and that volume is best increased by intelligent advertising. In 1920 when they were easy to sell goods, 84 per cent of the firms which failed were non-advertisers what will the percentage be in 1921 when there is keen competition in production and selling.—The Informant.
