LEGION CLIMB A SUCCESS

climber wants to keep his mouth shut. The hardest pull of all is the last 1,500 feet, almost straight up, where the lifeline gives aid and lends the climber an assurance that is certainly needed. Before one reaches the top, which it seems will never be gained, lungs pump like a bellows, and knees grow weak and wobbly. The sensation of pulling one's self over the edge of the snow bank of the summit will last throughout the longest life. It is a moment of real thanksgiving.

The rangers of the forestry lookout station on Hood's top Sunday were a busy lot. The total of the Legion party of 111, Cloud Cap Inn parties and the Mazamas, who came up from the south side, reached 312. The lookout boys were ready for them with cups of steaming coffee.

Every one of the 111 climbers is now talking more about the descent than the ascent of the snow peak. While the climb up requires from three to four hours, the most of the distance down is negotiated in no many minutes. Just sit down on the snowfield, sloping at a 45-degree angle, and turn yourself loose. This is the word of the guide. You do it with trepidation, yet you do it, and before you can give a second thought you are whirling over the snow faster than any express train every traveled. Your thoughts move fast. For a few seconds you wish you were back up there with the party, and then the fear is gone, and you wish the downward journey would last forever. You hit a bump, go head foremost for a while and end up feet up on the snow. You do not mind the leveler expanse of Newtown Clark Glacier. Snow has packed its way up your nether clothing. It is perhaps in your hair and you shake yourself free of the deposits like a dog just out from a snowdrift. You shake your eyes to the old mountain and proclaim to all the world that you never had such a kick out of anything in all your life.

The mecca to the Legion camp had much interesting and funny instances. J. H. Fredrick, who was accompanied by the writer, was unable to start until 6 o'clock Saturday night. We reached the end of the mountain road at 9 o'clock and proceeded to pack in over the long trail when it was discovered that his left hand rear tire was flat. Mr. Fredrick is one of those fellows who does not believe in procrastination. Although he had a spare on the rear of his car, he decided to change there to fix the flat tire. He has not had much experience in repairing tires, and it required no small time for him to remove the rusty rim. He persevered, puffed and spoke gently to himself occasionally, for a Salem party with three women was parked alongside eating lunch before the long walk. Mr. Fredrick mashed his finger, and in this moment one of the facetious girls in the Salem party remarked: "It seems as though I hear voices out across the sea!"

Mr. Fredrick with extreme dignity turned to the young woman and said: "Madam, I am packing."

The first woman over the top Sunday was Miss Elizabeth Campbell, Hood River county health nurse. The oldest man to make the summit was C. W. Mecher, former Chicago resident, who is 65 years old. S. G. Stanton, of Portland, who weighs 235 pounds, was the fattest climber. Albert and Daniel Davies, 10 and 12 year old sons of Carl Davies, of Corvallis, and Karl sell Dowd, aged 14, son of Col. and Mrs. W. S. Dowd, were the youngest climbers.

The complete list of those who climbed over the top is as follows: Col. S. Dowd, Wm. R. Dowd, Albert Davies and Daniel Davies, Parkdale; James M. Wilson, Mosier; Mary Wilson, Oswego; C. W. Mecher, Chicago; L. Sepin, Albert Roth, Arthur Linky, Mr. and Mrs. Harry N. Nelson, John Duffield, C. W. Rhoades, Leona Rhoades, R. J. Hyndman, John Perry, S. G. Stanton, Ruby Stanton, Garnet Stanton, Viola Weeks, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Little, V. C. Turner, Lawrence E. Davies, all of Portland; F. M. Taylor, Margaret Taylor, Louis Plog, Odell; John Deignan, East Orange, N. J.; J. Lee Stewart, George Mitchell, Mrs. R. A. Josling, Shedd, Velma Smith, Pendleton; Don C. Chase, Heppner; Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Clark, Hillsboro; H. H. Roades, Underwood, Wash.; Josephia Fulton, and Kathryn Bayley, Grand Dalles, Wn.; E. H. Dobson, Vancouver, Wn.; A. H. Johnson, Berkeley, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith, Millwaukie; Ruby Genkel, James Peck and Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Peck, Maryhill, Wash., and Bud Gaudford, Mrs. C. C. Cuddiford, Herman A. Steverkrupp, Bernard Page, Wilmoth Gibson, Hans K. Hoerlein, C. E. Graves, Clarence L. Miller, Albert Kollas, Frederick J. Page, Frederick Page, Jr., W. O. Sheppard, Cecil Laifferty, C. F. and Edwin A. Sonnichsen, Grayden Coleman, Robert Coleman, E. E. Goodrich, Elizabeth Campbell, Lydia Johnson, Thad Peterson, E. E. Gomal, Dorothy Wisinger, Clarence Allen, Evelyn Hasbrouck, J. A. Schindler, Earl Dunbar, Edgar Franz, Mrs. Earl Franz, T. A. Squires, J. A. Hillis, Fred Hillis, W. H. Carrigan, Mrs. Edw. W. Van W. Farrel, Geo. Jennison, Miles Lockman, Dane Kemp, Milton Forbes, A. L. Page, Geo. Zolls, C. G. Metcalf, and the following members of Company C, McClellan: Woody, R. Wilbur, Davis, Horn, Hanly, Von Lubken, Malmot, Absten, Goin, Alexander, Frey, all of Hood River. Guides were: Mark Weygant, chief, and Ralph Davies, Cyril Thompson, Will Jones, J. B. Rice, Harley Perkins and Phil Parrot.

Fred W. Donnerberg was official photographer for the climb. He ventured far out on elevated places of the snow fields to catch pictures of the long lines of climbers.

The committee of the Legion Post in active charge of the affair included: Kent Shoemaker, chairman, who presided at the Saturday night campfire; R. L. Post, in charge of the noon camp; Edw. W. Van Horn, supervising the policing of the camp, and Harold Hershner, W. Harmon and J. A. Schindler were cooks. Truman Butler was appointed censor for Mayor and Mrs. Baker while on the mountain. Mr. Butler declares that he was glad that Mayor Baker decided not even to make Coopers Spur. "He would have had to go on alone," declares Mr. Butler. "I was thankful when he said, 'Let's go no further on the glaciers,' Sunday."

Among the prominent people of far distant residence who attended the climb but did not make the summit were: Capt. John Hathaway, regular army; Norma and Clara Everson, of Chicago; Nettie Fisher, Blue Island, Ill.; T. A. Rafferty, deputy secretary of state; Patricia Sweetser, of Salem; Myra Weber, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Some other interesting facts of the climb are given by Mr. Shoemaker as follows:

At the time the provision truck left for camp only 85 had made complete reservations. Friday night 103 had completed their reservations. There were 217 people fed in camp.

Justice Onthank sentenced Sol. Waine to 30 days in jail for manufacturing liquor but paroled him. Mrs. Waine appeared in court and offered to serve the term for her husband. She declared that she had made the liquor, which she considered necessary for her husband's health. Judge Onthank stated that he had investigated and found the Waines hard working people, who apparently attended to their own business. He warned Mrs. Waine, however, that further manufacture of liquor would send her husband behind the bars.

Lenz was given a fine of $300 and 90 days in jail.

Tuesday Waine was rearrested on a charge of selling liquor. With undeniable evidence, he admitted the charge and was given the same sentence imposed on Lenz.
