

Stability starts with the crude

One of the most important requirements of a good motor oil is that it possess stability—that is, that it maintain its chemical composition and its lubricating body under all conditions of engine operation.

If an oil changes its chemical composition—"breaks down"—at high operating temperatures, it can no longer maintain a lubricating film between the bearing surfaces, and its value as a lubricant is destroyed.

Certain crude oils possess a higher degree of stability than others. Because of its large production of practically every type of crude, this company is free to choose for the making of Zerolene only those crudes which are particularly adapted for the purpose.

The Patented Vacuum Process

In the process of distilling and refining these selected crudes, it is of the greatest importance not to destroy their natural "oiliness" and stability. For this reason we employ our own patented high-vacuum process exclusively. By this process the oil produced—Zerolene—retains all the natural "oiliness" and stability of the original, selected crude from which it is made.

No other refiner on the Pacific Coast uses any form of vacuum distillation. No other refiner in the United States uses as high a vacuum as this company.

Zerolene of the correct grade for your car gives perfect lubrication and permits the development of maximum power, speed and gasoline mileage.

LICENSE LAW IS WORRY TO GROWERS

Oregon's regulations for the licensing of automobiles, requiring that all laborers employed on work in the state secure Oregon plates, has alarmed apple growers, who cite that a large percentage of the annual harvest season help is from other states. Fear is expressed that a strict enforcement of the law may eliminate this class of labor. Last season, it is declared, scores of automobiles from California brought families here for the apple harvest. This class of itinerant labor, which moves south for the citrus harvest, following apple picking, is declared the most efficient that can be secured in the orchards.

Indications now point to a famine of harvest help here this fall. Although the annual strawberry harvest requires a limited number in comparison with the fall apple picking, growers experienced a shortage of help throughout the berry season last spring. Sheriff Johnson expresses the opinion that transient apple pickers, here for a few weeks only, will not be required to buy Oregon motor licenses.

Californians Like Valley

Among the most enthusiastic motorists who tour over the Highway this season, according to Mrs. Boyd Summers, who with her husband operate a service station at the top of the Ruthon Hill grade, are California folk.

"Many of them like to stop and talk of the scenery of the gorge," says Mrs. Summers, "and most of them have heard of the Hood River valley and make it one of the goals on a Highway trip. One California party has visited the valley twice this season in an effort to see Mount Hood. Each time the smoke has veiled the peak. They told me the other day they are going to try it once more before motoring south."

East Fork Ditch Breaks

Service of the East Fork Irrigation District was interrupted last week by a break in the ditch in the Mount Hood district. Repairs were rushed and the flow of the system was restored immediately. The cause of the break was not determined.

The break, the second that has occurred in the system this season, caused no damage, as the rainfall Thursday and Friday gave orchards a good soaking, eliminating immediate necessity of irrigation water.

Cooks Grade Open

The Cooks grade of the North Bank Highway, between Underwood and Stevenson, according to A. D. Cannon, who was with his family at Shipperd's Springs and on Wind river recently, will soon be open.

"One can make the road all right now," said Mr. Cannon, "but it is a little dangerous at one point where the road is almost impassable as result of construction. By the end of the week it will be fully completed, and the trip down the north side of the river will be fully worth while."

Hurlburt Loses Barn

Spontaneous combustion from newly mown clover hay is supposed to have ignited the Oak Grove Barn of City Engineer Hurlburt last week. Among the losses, which will total about $3,000, were 20 tons of hay, two automobiles, power sprayer, quantity of apple box shooks, wagon and farm implements. The loss was only partially covered by insurance.

Cause of Appendicitis

When the bowels are constipated, the lower bowels or large intestines become packed with refuse matter, that is made up largely of germs. These germs enter the vermiform appendix and set up inflammation, which is commonly known as appendicitis. Take Chamberlain's Tablets when needed and keep your bowels regular and you have little to fear from appendicitis.

RAINFALL IS WORTH MANY THOUSANDS

The general rain prevailing last Thursday and Friday over the entire mid-Columbia was declared by fruit growers to have been worth thousands of dollars. While the precipitation's chief benefits were to clear the foliage of trees of an accumulation of dust and stimulate a thrifter growth of leaves and fruit, in non-irrigated sections, it is declared the size of apples will be materially increased. The rain, reaching 40 of an inch here, improved valley highways and stimulated traffic to Mount Hood resorts.

Albert Weisendanger, forester in charge of the Eagle Creek camp grounds, here Friday, reported that the rain has entirely extinguished the big Herman creek forest fire and all crews, except enough men to gather up equipment and close base camps were called in.

PETERS REVIVES CASE AGAINST ASSOCIATION

A. W. Peters, has revived an action begun against the Apple Growers Association several years ago in which he seeks the recovery of an approximate $5,000, alleged to be due to himself and 15 other growers in the distribution of surplus of the sales organization for the year 1916. The case was not pressed to trial because of another similar action begun by the Davidson Fruit Co. against the Association. The latter case, which went to the supreme court and was reversed with instructions that the Association make an accounting of its 1916 surplus, was recently eliminated by an agreement when the plaintiff company sold the surplus to its storage company here.

Mr. Peters, to whom all of the other growers have assigned their claims, alleges that the cooperative sales agency under its laws should make an annual distribution of its surplus fund. The Association, however, claims that rights of participating in such distribution is lost by growers on their withdrawal from the organization.

Hood Has Youngest Climber

While it was announced last week that a nine-year-old boy climbing to the summit from the south side was the youngest child ever to ascend to the top of Mount Hood, local folk claim that Fay Howe, who at the time was only 8, still holds the record for an ascent to the peak. The girl is the granddaughter of Henry L. Howe, city recorder, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. I. Howe, who now reside in Portland.

Two Pine Grove youngsters are expressing pride of an ascent of the mountain last week. They are Melvin, aged 11, and Margaret, 10, children of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sieverkropp. The parents also climbed the mountain.

BISHOP PADDOCK WARMLY DEFENDED

The following letter in defense of Bishop Paddock appeared in the Oregonian of last Friday:

Portland, Aug. 10.
To the Editor: I am an Episcopalian born and bred, an adherent of the so-called high church party, and as such the more stately forms of our accepted ritual are very dear to my heart. But I view with both dismay and alarm the triviality of the charges preferred against that most revered man of God, Rev. R. L. Paddock, bishop of eastern Oregon, whose righteous influence and good works should be made known throughout the width and depth of this entire continent.

The only excuse that comes to hand in regard to the charges that he has worn "hain of woad" than the bishop's robe and has not established enough new church buildings is that some of the smug and well fed promulgators among the eastern clergy, though no doubt of good intentions, have not the least comprehension of the vastness of the land and the tremendous difficulties that confront a missionary bishop. Bishop Paddock makes his visits to obscure sheep and cattle ranches over hundreds of miles of prairie, away from main traveled roads, where the rums of the jackrabbit and the gopher and coyote make only foot travel possible. It would be manifestly impossible for him to travel in his robes or to carry them with him in any reasonable condition. He does, however, carry one thing with him in so plain sight that "he who runs may read." A golden cross, the symbol of his faith, and the message of which he never fails to deliver in a manner which has reached the hearts of thousands of rough frontiersmen and herdsmen, who would never enter an edifice dignified by the name of church. His detractors can travel in a luxurious Pullman from the confines of the state of New Hampshire to the southern boundary of Pennsylvania, traversing the extent of five different states, covering the entire journey in 12 hours, a period in which Bishop Paddock might possibly "mush" his way to two ranches, where he holds his service suited to his hearers, in a reverent, holy and simple fashion, and is known for miles and miles as the very best "mixer" extant.

We do not so much need more churches with stately aisles and groined arches as more from-the-heart worshippers; fewer sensational sermons from our pulpits and more of Jesus Christ and him crucified; less of costly fitting and expensive music and more sympathy with the needy and help for the fallen.

Someone some time since divided the groups of Episcopals into three classes: Low and lazy. Broad and hairy. High and crazy.

It must be only individuals of the lazy, crazy or hairy types that could so belittle what has been a perfectly self-sacrificing and heroic period of service. One can but hope that if, when so beset by these great-like torments, Bishop Paddock holds to his announced resolution of tendering his resignation at the coming convention in our city, it will be declined by so unanimous a vote in the narrative that its echoes will shake Mount Hood. Marian D. Merry.

Assault Case Dismissed

County authorities were puzzled last Friday over charges preferred by Mrs. Wallace Hanna, 16-year old bride of two weeks, against S. S. Johnson, young Mount Hood garage man, who, she declared, the day before attempted to assault her. Mrs. Hanna's testimony, however, at the preliminary trial before Justice of the Peace Outhank, did not jibe with the story told officers the night before, and on motion of District Attorney Baker, the case was dismissed.

The young woman, according to her stories and her testimony under oath, had called Mr. Johnson to transport household goods from one Upper Valley home to another. She claimed in both instances that the attempted assault occurred while they were in a residence alone. To officers she reported that she had made no outcry. At the trial, however, she swore that she had cried and struggled with the man for 30 minutes. Neighbors living within 300 feet of the small home, however, failed to hear any outcries. Officers express the opinion that some family jealousy was the basis of the charges. Ernest C. Smith represented Mr. Johnson at the hearing.

Association Issues Pear Instructions

The Apple Growers Association has announced to its affiliated growers that it will pack all Bartlett pears this year as on recent former seasons. The fruit will be received at cold storage plants here and thoroughly pre-cooled before they are packed. Packers will work in refrigerated rooms. Growers are warned to haul the fruit direct to packing houses from the orchards. Gravenstein and King apples will be packed under the same grade rules as last year.

Spray Poison Kills Cow

Glenn B. Marsh lost a valuable cow last week, death of the animal having been laid to poisoning from arsenate of lead spray on orchard hay. Sprays this season, it is said, have been double strength, and growers have been advised to avoid feeding hay from orchard tracts if they would eliminate further danger of poisoned livestock.

Young Boys are Sophisticated

Precocity and sophistication of Hugh E. McNutt, 15, and Richard Fenwick, 13, astounded Juvenile Judge Hasbrouck, who Saturday, on their admission of theft of $250 from Mrs. Erroll Holland, cashier of the Rialto theatre and young Fenwick's sister, committed them to the Boys' Industrial School at Salem.

Same Old Story But a Good One

Mrs. Mahala Burns, Savannah, Mo., relates an experience, the like of which has happened in almost every neighborhood in this country, and has been told and related by thousands of others as follows: "I used a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy about nine years ago and it cured me of flux (dysentery). I had another attack of the same complaint three or four years ago and a few doses of this remedy cured me. I have recommended it to dozens of people since I first used it and shall continue to do so for I know it is a quick and positive cure for bowel troubles."

THE CALL FOR ECONOMY,

conservation, coupled with practical utility is the demand that has resulted in millions of sales of Ford Cars, Trucks and Fordson Tractors. Wherever there is a problem of transportation that is particularly annoying because of excessive wear and tear or because of extraordinary road or weather conditions, a Ford car or truck gets away with the job.

But even under ordinary conditions, when there are no great difficulties to overcome, when the matter of hauling resolves itself in the transportation of a commodity over a given number of miles, the small first cost and the low up keep of the Ford Truck makes it the choice of every careful buyer of transportation.
