OREGON FLOWERS

Oregon should not be noted over the nation for her roses only. She should be known as the flower state. It is true that Oregon roses have no superior, that the great fragrant blooms in the Rose City and in scores of other places, in June, are super roses. But where can you find more beautiful asters than those of an Oregon autumn? Where do dahlias, those magnificant beauties of late summer and early fall,

The Dedge Brothers motor to., and a party of other high officials of the ecompany, who journeyed to Pendleton for the Roundary for a tour of the valley. The visitors, who are traveling by private car, left the train at The Dalles, where Dodge representatives greeted them. R. B. and L. S. Bennett joined the party which motored down over the Highway. The trip was made by horse-back over the trails along Herman and Eagle creeks.

"We covered 75 miles of trails, extending from the top of Mount Definance to Indian mountain, and inspected the damage to timber in tracts owned by the old Stanley-Smith Lumber Co.," says Mr. Blanchar. "About 5.000,000 feet of the company's timber were destroyed. To much praise, however, cannot be given Mr. Brown and his organization for their efficiency in the company's timber were destroyed.
