NEW FREIGHT RATE LAW MAKES JOKER

Railroads Will Combat Late Measure Passed at Last Election

Calling attention to the fact that an initiative measure numbered 358, better known as the maximum freight bill, was passed by the people at the recent election and it is now in force, the Railroad Commission directed a letter to each of the common carriers in the state directing them to observe its provisions, according to a dispatch from Salem to the Portland Journal. That the railroads, instead of complying with the request will ignore it and contest the legality of the measure, seems certain, from advices received here from an authentic source that, just as soon as the Commission seeks to enforce the measure, the railroads will institute proceedings to restrain it.

As the measure completely upsets all railroad rates, save those of the first class, the railroads are certain to combat it in the courts and an effort will likely also be made, when the Legislature meets to repeal it. The measure during the campaign encountered but little opposition, as it was generally believed it would be defeated by a large majority.

Upwards of thirty millions of dollars will be the money value of the patronage that will be at the disposal of President elect Wilson when he goes to the White House. This represents an arm of office seekers that will aggregate about 120,000.

WILSON IN FAVOR OF CONSERVATION

Democratic Force of West Will Have Voice In Policies

That the coming Democratic administration gives assurance of conservation of western lands is given in the following editorial from the Oregonian:

The result of the election has added so greatly to the democratic strength in the West that this section will have a powerful voice in shaping the policy of the new administration. With such public land states as Arizona, Colorado, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Dakota and Oregon supporting the Administration and with California, Idaho and Wyoming close, the Democrats must give ear to the demands of the West.

That they were awake to this fact when they nominated Wilson is apparent from the plank on the subject of conservation which was adopted at Baltimore. The Democratic party representatives of the West may be trusted to see to it that the promises embodied in this plank are kept. The House committee on public lands is under no political obligation to give heed to extreme conservationists of the Pinchot brand, for the latter are lined up with Roosevelt. It has the double motive of platform pledge and political expediency for adopting a more liberal policy than it inclined to favor in the last session. If any of the members of that committee who opposed the Borah bills should remain obdurate, Underwood, who will have most to say in organizing the committee of the new House, should be wise enough to supplant them with more liberal minded men.

The Democratic party is pledged to a policy of conservation which shall encourage development while preventing waste or monopoly; which shall confine the National forests to forest land and shall allow settlers to take all agricultural land which may be included within the limits of reserves. The party is pledged to the development of Alaska's coal land. The greatly increased Democratic representation from the West should cause the fulfillment of these pledges.

Explosions Exposed

For the first time since the twenty-one persons were killed in the blowing-up of the Los Angeles Times Building on October 1, 1910, James B. McNamara's detailed confession to having caused the explosion, with his motives for doing it, and his comments on the fact that so many persons were killed was related on the witness stand in the "dynamite conspiracy" trial last week at Minneapolis. Orvie E. McManigal testified that the confession was given to him by McNamara shortly after the Los Angeles Times explosion, while he was shielding him in the Wisconsin woods. Aside from the Los Angeles newspaper tragedy, several other attempts of dynamiting buildings were claimed to have been revealed to the witness.

O. T. Nelson a homesteader near Ft. Rock, in the northern part of the county, was in Lakeview the first of the week. He is a representative of the Angeles University of Los Angeles and was here in the interest of that work. There are several people in Lakeview taking a correspondence course with the university.
