Knodell Not Coming

The local option committee of this city has received the following dispatch from the headquarters at Portland:

"Unexpected demands in dry counties re-submitting by liquor petitions make it impossible for Knodell to come. See letter."

This does not leave a chance for the debate between the prohibition speaker and Mr. Cantrell. It is not known if Mr. Knodell will be here before the election.

Stock Conditions

Chas. Horton, who has recently returned from California, says that the feed in that section is quite good and that a large number of cattle are being pastured there this summer. Recent rains have improved the conditions and the lands are not as dry as has been reported. The markets of California are now being supplied with grass fed beef from the ranges of that state.

Bathing an Elephant.

If there is one thing which an elephant enjoys above all things else, it is his bath. In India elephants are used to draw the great guns of the heavy batteries. They take their baths in the barracks at the troughs where they drink, and they behave much better about it than many children. They have to be down and be patient while they are washed by their attendants. They turn themselves about very promptly to suit their convenience. The attendant rubs the hide with a piece of stone instead of a sponge, and if the stone slips out of his hand the elephant politely picks it up with his trunk and hands it back. After they have been well scrubbed the elephants give themselves a shower bath, using their trunks to dash the water upon themselves, and they can hit any part of their bodies with ease.—London Mail.

Clever Birds.

A gentleman tells the following in regard to the cleverness of two gold finches upon which he kept a close watch while they were building a nest on a small branch of a tree. When the nest was finished he noticed that the weight of the birds and the eggs was too great for the strength of the supporting branch. The goldfinches also perceived that the nest would fall unless something was done, and, after a great deal of bird talk, they flew away and came back with a stout string. Then they cleverly fastened the bending twig to a stronger and higher branch of the tree, and thus preserved their nest and its contents from destruction.—London Standard.

Clever at It.

"He likes to brag."
"Yes, of course."
"Why of course?"
"It is the only thing that he does well."

A COMING EVENT.

Another certain
Sign of spring
Is here where all can see.
The man who runs
May read, indeed,
He need not climb a tree;
A surer sign
Than dry reports
Sent out by weather men
Or by the flying
Of the birds.
Who may fly back again.
The flaming posters
On the boards
And hanging in the store
Proclaim the three
Ring circus will
Be in our midst once more.
The circus will
Be back again.
Enlarged in every way,
With all its glitter,
Gilt and blare,
So don't forget the day.
With wonders new
From every land,
Beneath the shining sun
And with a bunch
Of awkward clowns
To show us old time fun,
With elephants
And greatly bears
Performing in one ring.
According to the
Tells that are
A certain sign of spring
With all its splendour,
Gorgeous great,
It's acreage of tents,
So don't forget
To get a job
And earn that fifty cents.
Nothing Naughty For Him.

"I hear your husband is mentioned for vice president."

"Impossible. He is a charter member of the Antivice society."

A Tender Spot.

"Your ma didn't have those things when she was your age, and I guess you can get along without them," exclaimed the distracted father to his daughter, who had just asked him to buy out a millinery store or something like that.

"No," replied the amiable daughter. "She didn't have such a kind and indulgent father as I am blessed with. I've heard you say yourself that the Skinners were all tightwads."

It is useless to add that the daughter got what she wanted.

An Aching Void.

When April comes with smiling sky
And fragrant breath of growing things
You feel with half a smothered sigh
The yearning that the season brings.
For satisfaction full, complete,
To change to sweet content the sigh
You only need with joy to eat
A piece of mother's pieplant pie.

When life seems listless, half asleep
And nothing pleases of your life
Don't pause and in your weakness weep,
But take a swig of buttermilk,
Or if perchance you restless grow
And think in vain of changing scenes
Just give your appetite a show
And try a dish of pork and greens.
