Pine Creek—Makes Two Teams Even

In the ball game today the Klamath Falls team beat Silver Lake by a score of 17 to 6. In the morning's game New Pine Creek beat Cedarville 6 to 4. This practically gives Klamath Falls the $600 purse, for the only time the team has been beaten was in the game with Cedarville, but that team has now been defeated by New Pine Creek and early in the tournament Klamath Falls won from the New Pine Creek team. It is very probable that if Klamath Falls' team will defeat the Cedarville team they will be given first place.

Chairman's Speech

frequent, and permit mankind to turn their hands to the peaceable pursuits of life rather than to the destruction of one another.

"The Democratic party realizes the part that America must inevitably play in the affairs of the world, and that we cannot escape participation in the settlement of every world problem that arises; but America's weight and influence must ever be on the side of peace, on the side of justice, on the side of the oppressed; and if the will of the people shall commit to our hands the scepter of power, it will be used for the realization of the high American ideals that raise our own people to the loftier and better things and through our precepts and examples contribute to the well-being and happiness of all mankind."

WHITE HOUSE COURTESY.

The Way President Polk Threw Down the Gauntlet.

If any president of modern times were to exhibit the official indecency that John Adams exhibited when Jefferson became president he would be denounced by every reputable newspaper and intelligent citizen of the land. It was then, as it is now, the accepted duty of the retiring president to receive the incoming president at the White House and accompany him to the inauguration ceremonies, but the last official act of Adams as president was the nomination of a member of what were called "midnight judges" the night before the inauguration of Jefferson, and during the night he and his family withdrew from the White House, leaving none but the servants to receive the incoming president, writes Alexander K. McClure in the Circle.

It was President Polk who first had the courage to disregard the political passions of the times by inviting Henry Clay, who had been his competitor, to dine with him and Mrs. Polk in the White House. It was near the close of the Polk administration, during which Clay had been a senator most of the time, and it shocked the Democratic sentiment of the time when it was announced that Clay had dined with President Polk, not on a state occasion, but had been welcomed at the family dinner as a friend. Clay was the soul of chivalry, and Polk was a man of unblemished character and high attainments, and his example of courtesy to Clay has never since been broken.

Catching Deer by Hand.

"This red deer," said the keeper, "was caught by hand."

"But a red deer is the fleetest of the fleet."

"Right you are, but this fellow was caught by hand all the same. It is a feat that is often done in the winter in the still woods choked with snow. You see a deer and chase it. Getting confused, it soon deserts the firm deer paths or runways, and then it is helpless. It flounders terribly, up to its neck in snow.

"You hurry toward it. Harder and harder it struggles; more and more tired it becomes. In a very little while it is so exhausted that you can go and take it up as though it were a baby. The swift, strong, healthy creature is as weak and helpless as a babe."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

England's Day.

April 23 is a memorable day in English history. To begin with, it is the day dedicated to the patron saint of England, St. George. It was through the crusaders that St. George was so selected. He was born in Cappadocia, and later his bravery against the Romans became a military tradition; hence the regard for him on the part of the English warriors who engaged in the crusades. On this day also Shakespeare is reported to have been born and died. Later, in 1661, Charles II. was crowned king on April 23. Lastly, Wordsworth died on this momentous day.—London Standard.

THE HIPPOCRATIAN OATH.

What Every Conscientious Physician
Undertakes to Do.

"First and last, day and night, he who has given himself to the cause of medicine sees the most sordid, the most terrifying, the most pitiful, side of humanity," says a writer in Appleton's Magazine. "His training is in the stables, where the elements of life may touch even the lowest and basest. His service is demanded in sickness and pain, and his final act, as irrevocably as the rising of the sun, is to close the eyes forever of others, even perhaps those whom he brought into the world. He is the possessor of secrets, the repository of sorrows.

"Into whatever house I enter I will go for the benefit of the sick. With purity and holiness I will pass my life and practice my art. So ran the oath administered by Hippocrates to his students almost five centuries before Christ, and so still stands today the physician's ideal. Medicine then partook of a character of holiness, for the student, too, swore to reckon him who taught him this art equally dear to me as my parents, to look upon his offspring in the same footing as my own brothers and to teach them this art if they shall wish it without fee or stipulation.

"Can any one today with an inkling of the life of the disciple of medicine doubt that the spirit of this ancient oath is rigidly observed in its practice, or that, as Hippocrates dictated 2,500 years ago. Whatever in connection with my professional practice or not in connection with it I see or hear in the life of men which ought not to be spoken abroad I will not divulge, as reckoning all that should be kept secret?"

BUENOS AIRES.

An Orderly City in Which Affairs Are Well Conducted.

Things are done well in the City of Good Airs. There are good things to eat, comfortable rooms to live in, places where a man can get his exercise and outdoor sport. After the tropics the gringo feels like a man who has been hopping from foothold to foothold in a swamp and steps at last on solid ground. The creature comforts of a capable, wide awake, well arranged city soothingly envelop him. The eschero knows where he wants to go, the waiter knows what he wants to eat. The mounted policeman, in breastplate and horsehair helmet, rides him back with the rest of the crowd and does it so quietly and with such sophisticated nonchalance that he promptly conceives a passionate admiration for that policeman and his beautiful horse, falls into the communitist pride common to all city dwellers and is ready to declare that there is no other policeman so fine in the world. The streets are clean and well kept, and the buildings which line them, however gingerbreadly their architecture, are held within decorous maximum and minimum limits of height. Everything is near at hand. The hotel, club, bank, drive, the restaurants and theaters are all within, so to say, feeling distance. And this physical compactness and neatness, this continental glitter and activity, set here oasis-like, combine to give the whole a certain diminitiveness and cozy intimacy. There's a "little old Buenos Aires" too.—Arthur Rubi in Scribner's Magazine.

Accomplishes.

A rival to the celebrated Mrs. Malprop is to be found in a certain New York street car conductor. The other day a party of several women boarded his car. They were not able to find seats together, and two sat on the opposite side from the others. The woman who paid the fares for the group offered the conductor a half dollar, neglecting to mention how many fares were to be taken from it. "You're paying for those four here," he said, indicating those who sat in line with her of the purse, "and," waving his hand in the direction of the two on the opposite side, "are those ladies implicated?"—New York Times.

Whales.

The largest of all mammals are the elephants, but the whales. A large elephant weighs about six tons, but the largest whale reaches the immense weight of 150 tons and would furnish four carloads of flesh and blubber. About forty different kinds of whales and dolphins are known and, although they live in the open sea and look like fish, they are not fish at all, but are true mammals, breathing air and feeding their young on milk, like cows and horses.

East African Highlands.

The young Englishman, he be officer or settler in the east African highlands, cuts a hardy figure. His clothes are few and far between. A sun hat, a brown flannel shirt with sleeves cut above the elbow and open to the chest, a pair of thin khaki knickerbockers cut short five inches at least above the knee, boots and a pair of puttees comprise the whole attire. Nothing else is worn. The skin, exposed to sun, thorns and insects, becomes almost as dark as that of the natives, and so hardened that it is nothing to ride all day with bare knees on the saddle—a truly Spartan discipline from which at least the visitor may be excused.—Strand Magazine.
