Silk Weaving.
The wife of the fourth emperor of China invented silk weaving and was worshipped in consequence. Japanese bronze work resulted from a woman's efforts.

Oliver Cromwell.
In the early days of his career, while lying in bed, Oliver Cromwell declared he saw the curtains part and a woman of Titanic stature appeared, who told him he would be the greatest man in England. Cromwell was subject to fits of high temper.

A Roumania Custom.
Good luck comes to a home in Roumania if a bat and a gold coin are buried together under the threshold.

Austria's Cotton Mills.
The cotton mills in Austria divide themselves into four separate groups—the Bohemian mills along the northern border, the lower Austrian mills lying just south of Vienna, the Vorarlberg mills and the mills around Trieste.

The Amazon.
The greatest river in the world in flood of waters, draining an immense region, the Amazon, is one of the least useful owing to the character of the region through which it flows and the fact that it is subject to stupendous floods, owing to the vast volume of water which is poured into it in the rainy season under the equator.

Riffraff.
Rief is Anglo-Saxon and means rag. Ruff is also Anglo-Saxon and means sweepings. Hence "riffraff" means the offscourings of society, the refuse from the sweepings—human trash.

A Left Handed Salute.
To salute with the left hand is a deadly insult to Mohammedans in the east.

Prayers in Belgium.
In Belgium at 6 o'clock evening you hear from every cottage the voices of father, mother, children and servants saying their prayers, and it is much the same at noon.

Russian Peasants.
Russian peasants believe in witches, demons and evil spirits and live under such conditions that in ordinary times in the Russian villages 50 per cent of the children from birth to five years die and 250 to 400 per 1,000 of those from birth to one year.

Gate of the Dead.
In Seoul, Korea, there is a small gate in the city wall known as the gate of the dead, through which all dead bodies must be carried out. No one may enter through it.

The Great Pyramid.
The great pyramid covers thirteen and a half acres of ground, was originally 475 feet high and contains 60,000,000 cubic feet of stone. Sir William Pitt informs us that the mighty pyramid could not be built today for less than $150,000,000.

Dante's Dream.
Dante, the Italian poet, is said to have dreamed of the plot and characters of his great work, "The Divine Comedy." The story goes on to say that this phenomenon occurred when Dante was only nine years old.

Billiards.
To Henriette de Vigne, a French artist of the reign of Charles IX. (about 1571), are ascribed the invention of billiard tables and formulation of rules for the game, although the origin of billiards has been accepted variously to China, England, Spain and Italy as well as France. Shakespeare asserts that Antony and Cleopatra were good enough friends to play billiards without falling out, but he doesn't mention how or when the game got into Egypt.

Somnambulists.
Somnambulists can maintain their footing in the most perilous places so long as they remain in a state of somnambulism, but if suddenly awakened they instantly lose their self possession and balance.

For Sore Throat.
For an inflammation in the throat infuse one large handful of cinquefoil in a quart of water. Let it boil to a pint. Strain it and sweeten it with honey very sweet and swallow two or three spoonfuls often. This, though a simple medicine, is an old remedy and may be relied on. The herb is otherwise called five leaved grass.

Careless.
A woman horse thief who had dressed in a man's clothes was detected at Midland Junction, Western Australia, because she got off the wrong side of the animal and also loosened the wrong side of the girth.

Announcing a Birth.
In some parts of Holland a birth is announced by fastening a silk pin-cushion on the doorpost. If the pin-cushion is red the baby is a boy and if white a girl.

To Head Off Another Visit.
The superstition belief that "where death has passed on death could easily pass in" came from the means, who never carried a coffin of an ordinary door, but although the door of death, which was carefully bolted and barred, a corpse was taken away.

Algebra and Chemistry.
Algebra and chemistry were introduced into Europe by Mohammedans, and chemistry and algebra are Arabic words.

Kiss Microbes.
There are microbes in a kiss, sweetheart, is what the savants say, and yet, despite these microbes, do you think you'd say no to a kiss should crave of you with microbes or without? Don't think you would deny me in the winding of love's toils?

Don't think that we should know or care of odorous fingered hands or brightly lit eyes? Don't you think that we would care to kiss the millions who not all and kiss the same old way?
As Adam kissed sweet Mother Eve in paradise that day?

The microbes of a kiss, sweetheart, pray what, pray, what, are they? Of confidence and sweetest love and hope that day by day
These microbes all will stronger grow and flourish as they may
While I kiss you and you kiss me the sweet old fashioned way.
—Pittsburg Post.

A Comparison.
"Bliggins makes a great fuss over trifles," said the critical person.
"Yes," answered the nervous man; "you can't ask him the time of day without his getting as excited as a cuckoo clock."—Washington Star.

He Was It.
Mollie—Tell me, did you ever win a prize at a lottery?
Clody—No; I never did, but my wife did. —Yonkers Statesman.

Different Bait.
They fished together, he and she, beside the bubbling mountain brook. He used minnows small for bait. She used a sweet but saucy look.
When they quit the noisy stream the man's a lone they sought. He hadn't looked a single thing. Did a "cuckoo" also had caught. —Detroit Tribune.

Experience Contribution.
Poetic Friend—Some one says a lady in the house is a wellspring of joy.
Exasperated Young Parent—Well, don't you believe it. As an element of enjoyment a lady in the house is a screaming farce. —Baltimore American.

The Same Thing.
She—I'm told you believe in nothing.
He—I never said so. I said I believed only in what I understood. —Punch.

Fly Time.
Of all slow tortures ever Satan fed, To all that is on human life a blight, The worst is when one wakeful lies in bed And hears a fly approaching in the night. —Judge.

One of Many.
Mrs. Mirkins—Your husband told my husband that his word was law at home.
Mrs. Birkins—Yes, it's one of those laws that are never enforced. —Chicago News.

How He Made It.
"They say he made money speculating."
"No. The other fellows were speculating." —San Francisco Examiner.

Depends on Your Mood.
Here's the difference 'twixt humor in books And that which we hear after meals—The former's as old as it looks; The latter's as young as it feels. —Punch.

An Alibi.
Pat—Say, Moll, p'wast' an alibi, O' dunnit?
Moll—Faith, an alibi is when a man is a fatter hen' where he ain't. —Chicago News.

All on One Side.
"He seems very proud of his family."
"Yes, and that's just where his family can't reciprocate." —Pick-Me-Up.

"For some girls it merely freckles. While others it does tan."
—Minneapolis Journal.

Not to Be Told.
"I see you've got a new fountain pen. What do you think of it?"
"Hush! The minister is sitting over there, and he'll hear us." —Cleveland Leader.

A Big Difference.
She—What's the difference between a dimple and a wrinkle?
He—Oh, about thirty or forty years. —Philadelphia Inquirer.

An Unwieldy Wish.
If what we're wishing could be done And each held automatic away, We should be looser, every one, With no one willing to obey. —St. Louis Republic.

Hard Work.
Bacon—Trouble always reminds me of a wet bathing suit.
Egbert—How so?
"It's always so hard to get out of it." —Yonkers Statesman.

Getting Nearer.
Westward the star of politics Boon takes its hurried way, And Denver and Chicago get much nearer every day. —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Has That in Plenty.
"A prophet is without honor in his own country," remarked the moralizer.
"True," rejoined the demoralizer, "but he is never without competition." —Detroit Tribune.

At Her Feet.
Her father leads a mighty trust (He is a noble grafter), And thus it is his lordship must His proud soul humble to the dust—But dust is what he's after. —Judge.

The Mysterious Time.
Boots (who has overslept)—Will ye please to get up, sorr? It's an hour later than it was this mornin' yesterday mornin', sorr. —Punch.

The Red Headed Policeman

(Copyright, 1908.)

One day as the red headed policeman was pacing his beat in a certain American city of 100,000 inhabitants a woman called to him from the steps of a house and reported that, soon after daylight that morning, just as she had awoke and was making ready to get up, she had been frightened half to death by the sight of a large monkey at the open window. She had screamed out, and the animal had fled. Later in the day she had seen the monkey frisking about on the roof of the shed attached to the house next door, into which a stranger, who was evidently a foreigner, had moved three or four days before. He was a man of middle age, and there was an old woman with him, probably to act as housekeeper.

"And I'm asking you, sir," continued the woman as she raised her hand and waved it to and fro, "if it's the law in America that a foreigner and an old woman and a rascally monkey can move in next door to a respectable widow woman, who has paid taxes for the last fifteen years, leaving the monkey to run at large and scare people out of their seven senses?"

"It's an Italian, ma'am, who is your new neighbor," answered the policeman. "I was jabbering with him the day he rented the house."
"Then he's in the hand organ business?"
"Then he's not, ma'am. He's in the count business. He's had to fly from his own sunny skies to save his life. You ought to be proud that you have a live count living next door."

Three or four days later the police heard at the station to which he was attached of a bold burglary in the neighborhood. A burglar had entered by a second story window and made a haul of money and jewelry, and no clew had been left behind. This burglary was followed by another within twenty-four hours, and then came what the police and press called a "wave" of crime, though it was strictly confined to despoiling private residences. In some cases it was impossible to tell how entrance had been effected. In others it was plain that an open window was the route.

Of course the detectives investigated, and of course when no arrests followed they got a roasting in the newspapers. It reached the point where the chief of police was asked to resign as a man utterly unfitted for the place. In return he bounced two of his detectives because they could not pick up clews where no clews had been left. Then the red headed policeman sat down to do some thinking. He thought of many a thing before he followed the line down to the widow who had told him about the monkey.

Then he began to scratch that red hair and think the harder and finally decided to take a walk around on Sands street and see if the count still occupied the house. He reached the house of the widow first. Again she was standing on the steps. At sight of him she descended to the walk and said:
"So it's you, is it? I've been waiting a whole week to ask you if it's the habits of monkeys to go to bed like honest folks at night and get up at a reasonable hour in the morning or whether they are phillandering all over town after midnight and coming home any time before daylight."
"In the wilds of Africa, ma'am"—began the officer, but was interrupted with:
"But these are not the wilds of Africa. I've been doing some watching for these last few moonlight nights. I didn't know but the Black Hand would be coming for the count next door. I've seen the monkey come and go half a dozen times. He comes and goes by way of the shed roof."
"And what of it, ma'am—what of it?" asked the officer.
"I can't say, sir, but it's a matter that bothers me. I thought I'd speak of it and let it bother you."
It did bother the red headed policeman for the next hour. Then he consulted with his superiors, and as a result two detectives were sent to interview the count. They didn't succeed in their purpose. He and the old woman had skipped out in a hurry an hour before their arrival. People who had seen them go said that they had no monkey along with them. In fact, the animal was discovered on the roof in the sunshine and fast asleep, but escaped capture. It was felt certain that he was the mysterious burglar, and a watch was set on the premises. He came not back, while during the next ten nights there was a burglary every night to mix things up again. Then a boy solved the whole case.

Two blocks distant from where the count had lived an old tomcat had retired to a stable to die in peace. In his wanderings the monkey had come across him and, being full of sentiment, had sought to make the feline's last hours pleasant ones. He had continued to rob and plunder as before, but had deposited everything beside old Tom and was a mourner there when discovered and shot by the red headed officer. More than $3,000 worth of stuff was found right there, and, leaving the respectable widow entirely out of it, the officer took on a new and prouder look as he said to himself:
"It pays for a policeman to have thoughts. If I hadn't had 'em this thing would never have happened, and it might have been twenty years before they made me a roundman."
M. QUAD.

SUMMONS

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, for the County of Klamath, Bertha R. Conner, Plaintiff vs Daniel R. Conner, Defendant.)

To Daniel R. Conner the above named defendant: You are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled suit on or before the 23 day of July 1908, being the last day of the time in the order of the publication of this summons, the first publication thereof being on the 11 day of June 1908; and if you fail so to appear and answer, for want thereof the plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief prayed for in the complaint herein to wit: For a decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony existing between plaintiff and defendant; for the care and custody of Lorene J. Conner and the costs and disbursements of this suit; and for such other and further relief as to the court may seem just and equitable.

This summons is served by publication thereof in the Evening Herald by order of the Honorable J. B. Griffith County Judge of Klamath County, Oregon, made, dated and filed in this suit at Klamath Falls, Oregon, on the 11 of June 1908. Which said order is required that summons in this suit be published once a week, for a period of six successive and consecutive weeks from the 11 of June 1908.

H. W. KERRICK,
Attorney for Plaintiff.
